Falling ill of a heavy cold on Dec. 12, 1799, he developed quinsy sore throat, a malady that today would yield to modern medical science, but which in Washington's day baffled the skill of the ablest practitioners. Doctors Craik, Dick and Brown were hurried to summon [illegible], but their remedies were without avail. Bleeding was frequently resorted to, but to no result. Washington had no disillusioned regarding his condition; he knew that his end was near. He was dying. Calling his physicians and family to his bedside, he expressed regret that he was causing them so much trouble and anxiety, but remarked that it was a common duty which mankind owe to one another. In his final hours he still had his thoughts, for who will deny that phantom-like, in final review, there passed before his fading mind the memories of the long ago—Barbadoes, that beautiful isle in the southern sea where summer reigns supreme; the benumbing cold and desolate hillside at Valley Forge; the dusty road to Alexandria; the rhythmic murmur of the ox when, 25 years before, feeling hands bore him across the river and forever from the sight of his comrades in arms, and the peaceful shade of his Mount Vernon home.

When death came at twenty minutes past ten in the evening of Dec. 14, 1799, Dr. Dick, one of the three doctors in attendance, with the aid of his pocket knife, cut the cords holding the leaden weights of the clock upon the mantle in the room where Washington lay. The clock is today the priceless possession of Alexandria lodge, No. 22. The hands of the clock have never been moved from that day to this, pointing to the moment for all oncoming generations of men, when dissolution came to the great founder of this mighty nation!

My countrymen! Never in the flood of time, did the man, the country and the opportunity meet as it did in the case of Washington. How precious our inheritance this gift of a marvelous country, from our great forebear. How valuable the natural resources of our nation! How mighty its rivers! How vast its plains! How fertile its soil! How rich its mines! How abundant its forests! And with what wisdom and foresight did the fathers [illegible] has withstood the vacissitudes of time and circumstances and stands today the wonder and the marvel among the political documents of all time. How precious the thought that we are the only nation on earth which has a birthday, knows when it is, and celebrates it! How beautiful and symbolic is our national emblem, the first flag that has never led our soldiers in a war of oppression, but has frequently been unfurled in crusades of mercy—a flag that strikes terror to the hearts of tyrants, and stirs anew the life blood of liberty in the hearts of men everywhere!

The red bars of this flag represent the precious blood of the fathers who gave us this nation; the blood of the patriots in later time who preserved us a nation, and the blood of our boys who, in recent days, gave to the world this nation! The white bars of this flag represent the loyalty to principle and devotion to the highest ideals of American citizenship which have enabled this government of free men to endure. This flag has never known surrender, and with God blessing our people, with continued wisdom and courage, it never will.

Chief Stanton Speaks.

The Garden City Trio entertained again for which they were recalled by a rousing encore. Chief Howard L. Stanton was introduced and was given an enthusiastic greeting.

Chief Stanton spoke of the pathetic aspect of a farewell banquet, which the members of a fine volunteer fire company were attending. The volunteer organizations had begun to pass out in the 90's, the chief said, he was an old volunteer, who had served more years as a volunteer than as a member of the paid department and they had had a long and honorable record. He referred to the Prodell boys and Charlie Twist as ideal members of the volunteer department. Norwich had as fine an organization as any in the country, and the city had been fortunate in its fire records. The city is now out for a big fire in some of its localities and he said he hoped if such an emergency ever arrived the old boys of the "Hooks" would feel the spirit to lend a hand. The chief spoke of his expectation that the Greeneville district would have the finest equipment possible and he hid the ambition to remain as twenty-five years as chief of the fire department and he cordially thanked the men for the many courtesies he had received at the hands of the Greeneville Hook and Ladder Co.

The 1922-1923 officers of the company are: Henry Redhead, foreman; John T. Evans, first assistant; Harrison Wilson, second assistant; Elmer Johnson, secretary-treasurer; Frank Burke, steward.

The banquet arrangements were successfully carried out by the committee comprising William S. Murray, chairman; Harry Redhead, Geo. E. Geer, John T. Evans, John T. Telford, John W. McKinley, secretary.

The past foremen of the company are: William Burton, Joseph H. Henderson, Charles W. Burton, Archibald Buchanan, James Dunn, Frank Burke, James Hislop, Charles S. Twist, William J. McKnight, John W. McKinley, William S. Murray.

SEVEN STATE COUNTIES GAIN SCHOOL CHILDREN

Seven of the eight counties of the showed a gain in enumeration of children of school age. Fairfield being on the losing side with 733 less than last year, according to the official figures now tabulated at the capitol at Hartford. The state's gain was 4,439. Fairfield county's loss is ascribed to Bridgeport's figures where there is a loss of 1,858.

In 1920, the year of the last national census, the ratio of the whole population to that of school age was as 4.15 is to 1. If this ratio holds good at this time the population of the state would be 2,190,985.

Hartford county, with 84,050 school children enumerated, gained 2,100. New Haven with 113,924 gained 1,276. New London with 24,704 gained 785, Fairfield with 94,768 lost 733, Windham with 12,918 gained 426, Litchfield with 20,142 gained 318, Middlesex with 11,676 gained 145, and Tolland with 7,094 gained 125.

In New London county, Norwich has the largest number of school children enumerated, 5,920, a gain of 192, but New London showed the largest gain, 224, on an enumeration of 6,517.

Four towns in the county, Franklin, Groton, Lebanon and Lyme showed losses.

PRESENTS ARGUMENTS FOR WOMEN AND CHILDREN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Hartford, Feb. 22.—A meeting of the Farmers' Legislative organization was held this morning and was addressed by Miss Mary C. Wells, secretary of the Consumers' League. Her subject was House Bill 188, Senate Bill 95, and Senate Bill 206, which affect the employment of children. It was the intent of the bills to secure for every child a course of study equivalent to eight yearly grades in reading, writing, spelling, English, language, geography, history and arithmetic.

Concerning House Bill 188 she argued that ten hours a day labor in factories is too great a strain upon women who are prospective mothers.

She gave the following statistics:

There were 36,243 women employed 10 hours a day in Connecticut factories in 1920.

Ten hours a day spent upon monotonous, repetitive processes by women standing or sitting in the same spot, all day, in the inside air of the factory, depletes their vigor and endangers the health of their offspring.

Women as a class are not so strong as men.

It is their nature to continue at work after they are fatigued or ill as men do not. In many cases their vitality and earning capacity diminish with their years of work. Whereas men look forward to promotion and increase in pay as the years go on, women fear lessened vitality and lower pay.

Advertisements sometimes read, "Women between eighteen and twenty-five desired."

Many women factory workers are of necessity occupied with exacting home duties. Married women rise early in the morning—in suburban towns at 4.30 o'clock—get the breakfast, dress the children, wash the dishes, place the youngest children out for the day, walk to the trolley station, and walk from the other end of the trip to the factory to be at their machines at 7 o'clock. They do their cleaning, washing, ironing and baking at night or on Sundays. Unmarried women in most cases have considerable house work to do.

Interest in the bills was shown by the many questions that were put to her. It is not believed that the bills will have a smooth passage.

VOTE AFFILIATION WITH STATE P. O. CLERKS

New Haven, Feb. 22.—The Connecticut branch of the United National Association of Post Office Clerks, at their 25th annual convention here, tonight adopted a resolution in favor of effecting an amalgamation with the Connecticut Federation of Post Office Clerks now in session in New London.

A committee of three was selected to enter into negotiations with a similar committee from the federation. Other resolutions were adopted concerning relief from night work, Sunday work and excessive overtime.

C. P. Fransicus, national president, spoke on several phases of the clerks' work. He did not approve affiliating with the American Federation of Labor, holding that the clerks would gain no benefit.

The next convention will be held in Bridgeport, Feb. 22, 1924.

ATTORNEYS FINISH TRIAL IN BUTTS VS KING

Trial of the suit of Charles R. Butts, shareholders' agent, and others, against John T. King of Bridgeport, which was begun here in the superior court Tuesday before Judge Allyn L. Brown, was concluded at 1 p. m. Wednesday with arguments by the attorneys, W. H. Wiggin of Danbury for the plaintiffs and W. H. Comley of New Haven for the defendant. Briefs are to be filed not later than March 16 and answer made not later than March 26.

The plaintiffs seek for a decision from the court directing the receiver of the Bridgeport and Danbury trolley road to call the stock subscription for $199,600 worth of stock made by Mr. King but subsequently assigned to A. William Sperry of New Haven, which the plaintiffs claim was a fraudulent and void assignment as to all creditors.

Witnesses Wednesday were Clarence B. Thompson of West Haven and Edward G. Andrews and a deposition by Silas C. W. Jones was read. He had been treasurer of the trolley road and was interested in the Aetna Construction Co. of New Haven that built the road.

FIRES SHOTGUN AT BOYS WHO PLAGUED HIM

Plagued by a group of boys who were said to have called him names and thrown snowballs at him, Julian Daza of 44 Second street fired a shotgun into the crowd at the corner of North Main and Second streets Thursday afternoon about 1.45.

Two of the boys, Raymond Sullivan and Stanley Szefkowski, were peppered in the legs and ankles so much that they had to be attended by a doctor, and two others, William Soko and John Gromko, received a few scattering shots.

Daza was arrested about 3 o'clock in the afternoon by Officer John Casey and was locked up at police headquarters until bonds of $1,000 were given for him by Martin Rozycki for his appearance in police court. Daza is employed in the Shetucket company mill.

H. P. Beausoleil Painters' Trustee.

Bridgeport, Feb. 22.—Charles H. Marsh, of New Haven and David H. Mackenzie, of this city, were elected president and vice president of the Society of Master House Painters and Decorators of Connecticut at the annual convention held here today. Other new officers are: J. E. Grimord, Meriden, second vice president; O. V. Marsh, Hartford, secretary-treasurer; H. P. Beausoleil, Norwich, and J. W. Collins, Hartford, trustees.

Had Fit On Franklin Square.

Charles Carpenter, colored, a paper hanger, was taken with a fit on Franklin square about 8.30 Thursday afternoon, falling to the sidewalk near the corner of Rose place. He was picked up by Officers B. Keenan and T. Murphy, and was attended by Dr. W. T. Driscoll, who took him home in the doctor's automobile.

First Pussywillows.

Mrs. E. M. Careton of East Thompson, near Putnam, several days ago found quite a few pussywillows in her poultry yard, indicating that spring is not far distant. Below zero temperatures, ice and snow evidently have no terrors for the pussywillow.

Spanish War Veteran Declares Tanlac Treatment Overcame Stomach Trouble After All Else Failed.

"Before I got Tanlac I was wasting both time and money trying to get my health back," is the unqualified statement of John Morano, a Spanish American War Veteran, living at 15 Travers Ave., Port Chester, N. Y.

"My stomach had been in such a bad fix for two years that I couldn't eat anything in peace. What little I did eat would bloat me as tight as a drum and keep me in pain and misery for hours. My nerves became all upset so and I would get up morning almost frantic for want of sleep. I lost weight all the time and was getting in a terrible fix.

"Finally, as a last resort, I began taking Tanlac and it has helped me just like it had been made especially for my case. My digestion seems perfect now, for I never have an uncomfortable feeling although I am eating my three hearty meals every day. In fact, my stomach feels like a new one and my nerves were never in better shape, either. I have gained ten pounds in weight and feel as good as new. Tanlac is certainly great."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Recently it was announced in this column that Mrs. Ina A. Frost of the Riverview section had been awarded first prize against the world for the example of unique Irish crochet lace she entered in the international exhibition of the American Thread company held in New York.

This morning this announcement may be augmented by stating that the thread company has exercised its right under the competitive agreement to retain any exhibit entered upon payment of a sum equal to that offered for the winner of the first prize.

On Thursday Mrs. Frost was notified that in addition to the check for $65 given as an award for winning first honors in the class in which her exhibit was entered that the company has decided to retain her exhibit and pay an additional $65 therefor. The check accompanied the letter, and also expression of the wish that Mrs. Frost maintain her interest in the annual exhibits and enter as a contestant again next year.

In addition to the cash awards and felicitations on having won them, Mrs. Frost was given a blue ribbon, significant of her triump over exhibitors from many nations.

What happened in Putnam Thursday in the destruction of the Donahue block, may not happen at any time in the future in Danielson, but it had the effect of making many consider the matter of carrying sufficient insurance and impressing the public with the danger that is attached to using soft coal for heating buildings. One of the benefits of the coal strike last spring and summer, one will recall. Large number of Danielson people visited Putnam Thursday to view the ruins of a business block completely wiped out by fire, and not a few of them came away thinking—of many things it may be said. If the Putnam fire may be charged to industrial trouble, it was rather a heavy assessment on individuals who are entirely innocent—and, insofar as can be ascertained, isn't going to help miners who went on strike and made half a nation suffer during the present winter season: A fire in Putnam, Conn. doesn't help a dissatisfied miner in the Pennsylvania coal region, and doesn't earn a cent of profit for a limousine-riding coal operator or railroad official. But it is a severe penalty on this section of eastern Connecticut.

The Danielson Rod and Gun club, a newly organized group of strength and representatives of all the territory here about, has made application to the state fish and game commission, according to an announcement Thursday, for the stocking of certain trout brooks in eastern Windham county. This is a matter of keen interest to sportsmen, especially in view of the fact that listed in favored brooks are streams that are closed to fishing over important parts of their lengths. Snake Meadow brooks is one of these streams and the Brick Yard brook another—in this immediate vicinity. Both are excellent trout streams.

It occurs to some trout fishermen that there is little use in asking the commission to put fish in brooks where trout fishing enthusiasts are forbidden to seek their favorite sport. It is true, as any trout fisherman hereabouts well knows, that one may fish certain sections of Snake Meadow brook—one of the finest trout streams of New England—but are forbidden by "posted" signs to fish other sections of the brook. The same is true of Brick Yard brook and other streams listed in the restocking plan.

It is held that if the state is to supply trout for brooks hereabouts that such brooks should be free and open to every citizen and that posted brooks should be excluded from the restocking operations of the state.

A few "crabs" can put a brook in the banned class, but fishermen regard it as better to accept that handicap than to let the crabs control best sections of brook—to their own advantage and at the expense of the state.

Thursday at his home in Dayville funeral services were held for Shubael Blanchard, 90, Rev. William Swainson, pastor of the Congregational church at Dayville, officiating. Burial was in Dayville cemetery. The bearers were Shubael Watson, a grandson of the deceased; Charles Franklin of Dayville, Ray Whipple and Leon Blanchard. Louis E. Kenedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

With object of preventing further chimney fires such as occurred at the Brooklyn Center school Friday afternoon Superintendent of Schools Leon M. Farrin has instructed the principals to take steps to learn if the chimneys at their buildings need cleaning. He pointed out the advisability of this investigation at a teachers' meeting held at the Danielson graded school building.

Superintendent Farrin announced that according to a vote of the school committee, at a special meeting Monday evening, whenever a substitute is employed for a teacher whose salary is $1100 a year or less, not more than $5 per day shall be deducted from the regular teachers' pay as compensation for her substitute. Substitutes' pay will be specially adjusted in instances where the regular instructor's salary is more than $1100 per year, he stated. Mr. Farrin also informed the teachers that the school board has voted to allow a visiting day before the close of the school year and that they may make arrangements for theirs with their principals. He requested that they give him lists of all pupils either above or below grade in their studies. He spoke to the teachers regarding the proper grading and classifying of pupils.

PUTNAM

This city's big fire interfered with the workaday programs of many people Washington's birthday—as many as could break away from routine duties to watch the unusual sight. The school children, scheduled for a half holiday, anyway, quit studies en masse—and will take the consequences today, if the teachers see fit to call them to account for their absence. Yet, after all, there was no time during the fire when any great number of people were on hand. Those who did endure the cold and other discomforts of loitering about were more or less well repaid for their attention. They heard a variety of stories as to what the losses to tenants in the Donahue block was likely to be, a constantly changing expression of estimates of the amount of insurance carried and much other talk that kept them interested in the subject of the hour. They did not miss the fact that a fireman was knocked over by an ill-directed stream he was trying to manage and for a moment appeared to be on the verge of being hurled into the blazing cellar of the building. They were interested in what a force of linemen were doing to clear up broken and hanging wires, and in the men who with picks were clearing the accumulated ice from the trolley tracks in a hurried effort to restore through service and in many other things that are incident to a fire, including what caused the fire and all other details.

With all there was good order every minute. Regular and fire police kept splendid order. The firemen worked methodically. In cases like this one often wonders why the firemen do it for the money they get. They take all kinds of chances, cheerfully, for the good of the city, and are happy if they all come through without an injury, which, happily, they did Thursday morning.

Thursday morning at St. Mary's church funeral services were held for Cyril Remillard, Sr., who died here Monday afternoon. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Mr. Remillard was one of the oldest French-Canadian residents of Putnam, both in point of years and residence. He was born in Napierreville, P. Q., Nov. 21, 1835. He came to what is now Putnam about 60 years ago and since has made his home here. For years Mr. Remillard was engaged as an old-time tin peddler and in this occupation became known to everyone in the city, almost, and the residents of surrounding communities. Mrs. Remillard died nine years ago.

Mr. Remillard is survived by the following children: Mrs. Edmond Meunier, Alberta, Canada; Mrs. E. H. St. Onge, Worcester; Cyril Remillard, Mary Louise, Emma and Mrs. Alcide St. Onge of this city, and Albert of Gardner, Mass. A sister, Miss Elsie Remillard, is resident in Montreal.

Jacob Bakker of the Sawyer district of this town has put Putnam on the map as to breeding police dogs, which used to come from Germany before the war, but are now more or less universally accredited to Belgium, for diplomatic reasons—more or less. However, in "Hans" Mr. Bakker appears to have a wonderful police dog. The animal won first prize a few days ago at the Worcester dog show in competition with other animals of the breed—six of these competitors having been blue ribbon winners in the past. Mr. Bakker also brought away a second prize for a police dog puppy.

This (Friday) evening the 27th annual meeting of the Arcanum club will be held at the organization's new quarters on South Main street, where the club some weeks ago acquired by purchase the Gardner property, one of the most desirable in that section of the city. The Arcanumites will elect officers this evening after listening to annual reports, which will be the most momentous in the club's history. Recently club members subscribed sufficient pledges to make possible the purchase of the Gardner property, an arrangement that assured the perpetuation of a social group that has meant so much to this city during the course of nearly a quarter of a century.

The third annual Putnam High school night at the Bradley theatre on Wednesday evening brought out a large attendance, entertained splendidly by the program that has been arranged. The Harvard prize play, The Florist Shop, was the offering of the evening, supplemented by the unusually attractive feature screen production Cardigan. Members of the cast of The Florist Shop were Christine Murray, Charles Carpenter, Chandler Morse, Rhea DeCoudres and Harry Davis.

The annual financial meeting of the city is set for the first Monday in March. There is much of interest in this coming meeting because of the fact that the appropriations for the year will be passed upon. There is hope that the city will see fit to approve an appropriation of $750 to meet a part of the expense of maintaining a visiting nurse.

Ralph C. Jenkins, superintendent of schools in Putnam, will leave here this (Friday) morning for Cleveland, O., minus one fine tailor made suit which was to have figured in the trip, but which happened to be at Angelo, the tailor's, for pressing, when fire totally destroyed the Donahue building Thursday morning. Mr. Jenkins is going to Cleveland to attend a national conference of school superintendents and supervisors.

Attorney Mahlon H. Geissler of the firm of Torrey & Geissler was in Boston Thursday when a telephone message informed him of the fact that the firm's offices in the Donahue building had been destroyed by fire. Attorney Geissler is the secretary of the Putnam Building and Loan association, important records of which are in one of the safes now buried under the ruins of the burned building.

Rev. Harley Graham of Norwich is to be the speaker at the annual church home night of the Methodist church in this city on Tuesday evening of next week. A supper is to be served during the early part of the evening.

Little information that is encouraging comes from John G. Johnson, alderman-at-large and an official of the H. K. H. company, who is at Miami, Fla., for his health. Mr. Johnson suffered a breakdown during the past month as the result of overwork and was forced to relinquish his duties and go south.

Nearly a dozen telephones were destroyed in the fire that consumed the Donahue block Thursday morning. Excepting for one instrument, there was no chance to save any one of them.

Effort is being made to establish a Rotary club in Putnam. Attorney Howard C. Bradford is an active worker in the interest of the club, which it is hoped will include about all of the representative professional and business men of Putnam.

Even only such a short distance to the north as North Webster, snow is piled up along the sides of the state highways to level of the tops of windows in closed cars.

Enclosures being received here with new operators' licenses set forth requests of the motor vehicle department that drivers refrain from throwing lighted cigar and cigarette stubs from cars, from leaving a camp fire burning—because the state needs this co-operation the coming spring as protection against forest fires which burned over 83,000 acres of land in Connecticut in 1922.

Amasa E. Hall, 63, died Wednesday morning at the Day Kimball hospital.

Howard A. Williamson of Woodstock was a visitor with friends in Putnam on Wednesday.

Considerable work for the trolley line snow plow has been found this week in clearing points along the line where the snow has been blown in by the strong northwest winds of the past few days. Wheaton's flats, south of this city, was one section where the plow found work to do.

Another shortage of farm labor is anticipated in towns hereabouts during the coming spring and summer in view of the fact that industrial concerns in the territory are operating full time and paying high scales of wages.

PLAINFIELD

There was a large representation of the Lincoln club attending the hearing Wednesday before the committee on roads, rivers and bridges in Hartford. The delegation of the club were at Hartford to support bill 100 which refers to the completing of the state aid road from Providence through Sterling, Plainfield, Canterbury and Scotland to Willimantic. The bill had been introduced by Mrs. Clinton Frink, representative of Canterbury, who was present and who brought the matter before the committee by a brief but able address, and called on James Lathrop of Canterbury to further present the matter. The following members of the club were present to support the bill, having introduced a resolution from the club: Edward Hall, chairman of a special committee, James Apply, Rev. William C. Prentiss, Percy Wilcox, Walter Kingsley, Jason Lathrop, William E. Barstow, Nathan Exley. Lewis Gendron was also one of the party, a representative from the Plainfield grange, who introduced resolutions from the grange. James W. Walker, the Plainfield representative, was present and urged approval of the bill by the committee on roads, rivers and bridges.

The Woman's club held its regular meeting last week on Thursday at the Community house. The president, Mrs. Charles F. Heap was unable to preside owing to illness. Mrs. Robert W. Generous and Mrs. Fred D. Lyon were the hostesses, serving an excellent lunch. The next meeting will be held Thursday, March 1st.

There was a very large attendance at the neighborhood meeting held Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur I. Moffitt on Gallup street. The meeting was led by Rev. William C. Prentiss, Roy Barstow, pianist and Joseph Sharple, violinist.

Mrs. Edward King has returned from Cambridge after a two weeks' absence during which she was visiting her mother and securing a much needed rest and change.

COLUMBIA

During the scarcity of coal this winter, large quantities of wood are being taken to Willimantic on sleds.

The roads and hills now are in fine condition for sleighing, also coasting, and good use is being made of the opportunity. On Saturday evening a party of young people thoroughly enjoyed the evening coasting on the hill on the road leading from the Green towards Pine street.

A whist party was held at the town hall on Saturday evening, the proceeds being for the benefit of the Village Improvement society.

Henry C. Isham had a birthday celebration on Sunday. Nine members of his family were present.

Rev. T. N. Owen preached to a small congregation on Sunday. His text was Ezekiel 47: 9, Everything that liveth shall live. He said blessings and power come from the rivers, which are permanent in spite of the fact that they are always flowing away. So religion is something permanent is life and human strength is multiplied when we lay hold of the power of religion and obtain faith in God.

Miss Lura Collins, who is living in Hartford, is ill with tonsilitis. Her sister, Miss Myrtle Collins, has gone to assist her.

Word has been received from Miss Susan P. Clapp of Hartford, who has spent her summers in town for many years, that Miss Esther Henry, a very dear friend of hers and well known in Hartford, died recently in Worcester. Miss Henry, who was about 80 years of age, and noted for helpfulness and kindness to others, was a healer in connection with the New Thought doctrine, and will be greatly missed.

Extra Fine Bill at the Broadway

An exceptionally fine array of B. F. Keith vaudeville was presented at the Broadway yesterday to an enthusiastic audience.

Art Clifton and Ray Rodello in The End of a Perfect Day, presented one of the finest and cleanest bits of acrobatic acts seen hereabouts in some time.

O'Brien and Josephine in "The Song Salesman," made an instant hit. They have excellent voices and some real good comedy that plased and drew gales of laughter.

The Elm City Four followed in an up to date vaudeville offering. This quartette is composed of four men each having an excellent voice. They were repeatedly recalled for encores which were generously given.

Eddie White, the juvenile comedian presented a fine offering consisting of song and talks. His talk was very funny and songs good.

Eunice Miller and Boys closed the bill with a unique dancing novelty that was well received.

Here's a Picture That Certainly Hits a High Standard in Production at the Strand.

To see one of the greatest American stories ever translated to the screen, traveling under the most alluring of titles, one has but to view "Shadows", which was shown here for the first time last evening at the Strand theatre.

When Wilbur Daniel Steel created Yen Sin, the Chinese laundryman who was cast up by the sea, he made a decidedly new and gratifying contribution to literature. But when Lon Chaney visualized the part in this newest Preferred Picture, he did something far more important, for he added a picturesque, living, breathing and altogether lovable character to his already long list of screen personalities.

The cast is unusually good. Aside from Chaney, there are arguerite De La Motte, Harrison Ford, John Sainpolis, Walter Long, Buddy Messenger and Priscilla Bonner all of whom do good work. The photography is exquisite. Considerable technical skill is seen in the storm sequences which were to introduce Yen Sin to the austere New England villagers. The production standards are remarkable for their vividness of details Fishing village scenes make up the picture but each scene has an "atmosphere" touch that is out of the ordinary.

A Mermaid comedy, Casey Jones, Jr., helped make this program 100 per cent amusement. A new weekly was included.

Breed Theatre

"Fortune's Mask, which will be shown at the Breed theatre today and Saturday, starring Earle Williams, is one of the most colorful of pictures. In an early scene Dicky Malone—played by Earle Williams, looking strangely unfamiliar in a blond wig—rides into the Central American city of Coralio with his knees hugging the side of a diminutive burro. The debonair adventurer proceeds to stir things up in grand style, treats the entire city to drinks, loses money freely at cards, beats up a few and makes himself generally popular. In fact, the only inhabitants who do not fall for Dicky are the commandants of police and the disappointed lovers of Pasa Ortiz, who, carried off her feet by Dicky's whirlwind method of courtship, elopes with him. In the end it is discovered that there is method in Dicky's madness, the blond wig comes off and he turns out to be the most unexpected person in the world.

Other pictures on the bill include Ruth Roland in "The Timber Queen," —the Pathe news and a Sunshine comedy.

Bristol—At the meeting of the city council, salary increases were unanimously voted for the fireman at the recommendation of the salary committee. The regular fireman were increased from $30 to $32 per week, and the captains were increased from $33 to $35 per week.

FITCHVILLE

On the first Sunday of Lent, at St. John's church, the epistle reading was from St. Paul, 2, to Corinthians, chapter 6, and the Gospel read that of St. Matthew, chapter 4, Section Temptation Christ. The station reference for the mass of the day was St. John Lateran, despite the extreme cold, a large congregation was present and contributed generously to the special diocesan collection for the support of the negro and Indian mission.

It was announced that St. Andrew's church in Colchester was to present a Catholic art association photoplay, The Blasphemer, in Tip Top hall, Colchester.

Next Sunday there will be special Lenten devotions in St. John's church at 2 o'clock. The altar boys are forming the St. John Berkman sanctuary society. A Holy Name society was organized Sunday at the close of mass. John Fields is president; Francis Gribbin, vice president, and Michael Sweeney, secretary.

Copies of The Field Afar were distributed Sunday. Members were asked to read these and become interested in the mission work of the Maryknoll Fathers in Korea and China. One of these missionaries is Fr. O'Shea of Deep River, Ct., another Fr. Sweeney of New Britain. A mission circle is to be established at St. John's church in a few weeks to aid these American missionaries.

The ladies of St. John's church formed an altar society Sunday. Mrs. William McManus was elected president; Miss Frances Kingsberger, vice president, and Miss Eleanor Lynch, secretary.

Rev. Philip J. Mooney, at one time curate of St. Andrew's church, Colchester, of which St. John's church is a mission, and more recently curate in St. Patrick's church, Norwich, has been appointed pastor of St. Andrew's church, extensive improvements have been made to St. John's church. A short time ago carpenters finished shingling and making other necessary repairs to the exterior of the building, while masons have put in a concrete floor and walls in the cellar. The pastor has also installed a new heater. A short time ago decorators from Boston repainted the interior from ceiling to floor, making a wonderful improvement to the church. Later electric lights are to be installed and in the spring the work of grading and improvements about the lawn of the church will be undertaken.

Rev. Fr. Sullivan, also a former curate of St. Patrick's church, Norwich, is the very capable assistant curate to Fr. Mooney.

STAFFORD SPRINGS

Maurice Margolis of Springfield was fined $100 and costs, amounting in all to $113.03, by Deputy Judge Taft in the borough court Tuesday morning after pleading guilty to a charge of operating an automobile while under the influence of intoxicating liquor. At the same session of court Alexander Baker was fined $3 and costs for operating an automobile without a taillight. Mr. Baker claimed that the taillight was burning when he left South Willington for Stafford Springs. Gilbert Wagon, who was driving his truck in the same direction, crashed into Baker's truck, saying that he could not see the latter as the taillight was out.

Charles W. Slater, aged 49, died at his home in West Stafford Tuesday morning after a two weeks' illness with typhoid pneumonia. He was a son of the late Benjamin F. Slater and had been a resident of West Stafford all his life. He was chiefly employed in lumbering and farming. Besides his wife, Bessie McKinney Slater, and his mother, Mrs. Benjamin F. Slater, he is survived by four half-brothers, Edwin Baker of Verbena, Albertus Baker of Brooklyn, N. Y., William Baker of Rockville, John Conklin of West Stafford, and one half-sister, Mrs. Marianna Frasier, of West Stafford.

William H. Heald was in Hartford on business Tuesday.

The public schools closed Wednesday afternoon for the rest of the week. The schools would close ordinarily only on Thursday, Washington's birthday, but on account of so many of the pupils being out owing to illness and because of the shortage of coal, it was deemed advisable to close for the rest of the week. The time will be made up later.

Ansonia—Several hundred citizens gathered at the special public meeting summoned by Mayor John C. Mead to consider several propositions now pending before the General Assembly and affecting the city. Important among the matters was that of a bond issue of $200,000, which is to be spent for municipal improvements.

Thomaston—Rev. Edward J. Curtiss of the Methodist church has been invited by a vote of the official board to remain as pastor another year.

PUTNAM BUSINESS BLOCK WIPED OUT BY FIRE—LOSS $140,000

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, Feb. 23.—This city's worst fire loss in a score of years, the money consideration taken into account, utterly wiped out the Donahue block and its entire contents Thursday morning. In this catastrophe destroying one of the best situated of Putnam's business blocks a gross loss variously estimated from $135,000 to $140,000 was sustained. Not enough was saved from the building to be represented in a $10 bill. The loss is about 50 to 60 per cent. covered by insurance.

A defective chimney flue or some happening to the heater, in which soft coal was being used, is held to be responsible for the fire, which spread with amazing rapidity and defied every effort of the fire department to save the structure. In the first 15 minutes after the alarm was sounded it was evident to even the most casual observer that the building was doomed. Bursting hose handicapped the firemen in their early fight against the fire, which was confined to the building in which it originated, but the firemen are to be credited with having done excellent work in preventing the spread of the fire to adjoining fram buildings in the heart of the city's business section.

It was approximately 7.05 a. m. when men going to work noticed what appeared to be smoke, mixed with the early morning haze, issuing from the Donahue block. These observers finally were convinced that the block was afire and a boy, of name unknown, hurried to the corner of Main and Front streets to pull in an alarm from Box 42.

This youngster was fumbling with the box apparatus when Harry Morse and Charles Donahue hurried up and pulled in the first alarm, which was quickly followed by a general alarm that brought all of the apparatus in the city.

In the meantime there was a dash for the building by those who would venture much to save the valuable stocks from destruction. Captain Remi Delage of the police department was one of the first at the building, with the layout of which he was perfectly familiar. He tried to force an entrance to the Donahue drug store, but failed. He then turned to the stairway leading to the second floor of the building and started to ascend, but was driven back by the dense volume of smoke before he had gone up more than half a dozen steps.

It appeared that the fire had gained considerable headway before it was discovered and those who ventured into the structure within ten minutes after the first alarm was sounded did so at the risk of their lives. In the face of this situation the fight against the spread of the fire was undertaken, but within an hour floors on the street level had gone down with a crash and the flames, leaping and roaring, had eaten their way to every part of the building, which finally collapsed, leaving nothing but a blazing and smoking mass of wreckage in which scores of thousands of dollars in wealth had been destroyed.

Twenty minutes before the fire had broke out Albert Light, janitor of the building, had been in the basement and attended the heater. There was nothing to indicate the impending disaster. An hour later the entire structure was like a raging furnace.

The loss to every tenant of the building is 100 per cent., insurance not considered. The two-story frame structure, built about a score of years ago by R. H. Bradley and purchased from him a few years ago by James F. Donahue, druggist, burnt like tinder.

Mr. Donahue, proprietor of the best equipped drug store in the city, this business located on the lower floor of the building, stands a gross loss estimated at $35,000 for the building and approximately $30,000 on his stock and fixtures, all of which were ultra modern. The building under present day conditions was well worth the loss mentioned and could not be replaced for a lesser sum. Mr. Donahue is protected by a fair amount of insurance, but not enough to cover the loss he has sustained.

Another heavy loser is Charles Sedar, proprietor of a men's clothing and ladies' garment store adjoining the drug store of Mr. Donahue on the street floor. Mr. Sedar said that he considered the gross loss close of $30,000, partly covered by insurance. Like the other tenants, his stock was utterly wiped out, including about $5,000 in woolen goods, in the piece, which he had brought to the store two days ago to be disposed of later in connection with his operations in this line, which is aside from his garment business operations. Mr. Seder said his insurance is not sufficient to cover his loss by several thousand dollars.

The hardest hit of all the tenants of the block is Alexander Varbadian, proprietor of a shoe store at the northerly end of the building. His loss is the nearest to total of anyone in the building, for he had less than $2,500 insurance on a stock estimated to have been worth between $10,000 and $15,000, including much new footwear recently received for the spring trade. Mr. Varbadian was nearly crushed by this loss, coming a week to a day after the death of his wife, leaving seven small children. But with all he was brave and said, "I am young and strong and can work and recover," and the best wishes of the people of the city are that he may live to realize on his strength of character.

The entire second floor of the building was given over to the occupants of offices. The law firm of Torrey and Geissler sustained the heaviest loss on that floor, Attorney Torrey, one of the best known members of the bar in the state, estimated that his law library alone was worth $7,000, and included numbers of valuable volumes that cannot be replaced. In addition one of the firm's office safes contained the records of the Putnam Building and Loan association, of which his partner, Attorney Mahlon H. Geissler, is secretary, including $150,000 in notes. A stream of water was steadily played for hours on about the spot on which this safe is supposed to have dropped to protect the safe from any more heat than could be avoided in the hope that it might withstand the siege and eventually be salvaged with its valuable contents of records intact.

Another attorney with an office on the second floor was Arthur S. Macdonald. He estimated his loss at $500, partly covered by insurance. Dr. Bernard P. Murphy, has a gross loss of about $3,500 and this is duplicated by Dr. H. B. Wright, dentist, who also had an office on the second floor. Angelo, the tailor, was the only other tenant on the second floor, and like the others there, he lost everything—to the last shred.

Adjoining the Donahue block, to the north, is the Hopkins property, occupied as stores on the street level and by Vincent McAvoy, who had apartments on the second floor. Arthur Dufvert, proprietor of the store in the Hopkins building, had the aid of many in removing his stock to the Peloquin block and saved it from other damage that might have been sustained in the trying. The stock of Louise Hibard, milliner, also was removed from the Hopkins building, which was scorched and had windows broken, but did not blaze. The Lombardo fruit store on the street level of the Hopkins building also suffered from the fire, chiefly through smoke and water.

No member of the fire department or other person was injured during the progress of the fire, which blazed at times and belched forth clouds of smoke throughout the day. The firemen did valiant service and not a few of them were thoroughly drenched in carrying out their operations. Chief Engineer Ralph Thurston directed the fight against the fire for hours clad only in such garments as he hurriedly pulled on over his pajamas in responding to the alarm.

During Thursday afternoon and throughout the night the ruins of the Donahue block were under guard of members of the police department, that no one might attempt interference with the safes or other valuables that eventually may be rescued from the ruins.

Mr. Donahue stood the shock of his severe loss well and said within three hours after the fire started that the destroyed structure will be rebuilt, an undertaking that likely will mean the coming spring and summer season and give Putnam a finer block, probably of brick, than the one eaten by the flames. Prompt, too, was Mr. Donahue's action for re-establishing his business. While the fire was still raging he procured temporary quarters in the Peloquin block on Main street and over the telephone ordered stocks of goods sent to Boston for immediate delivery. His spirit under the circumstances was an inspiration to all who meet with losses in life.

Mr. Sedar and Mr. Varbadian were making plans to accommodate themselves as quickly as possible that their patrons in this and surrounding territory may not be lost to them.

The spirit of the people of the city was manifested by the prompt offers of quarters for all who were driven out of their business quarters by the fire. Torrey and Geissler as early as Thursday afternoon had temporarily established themselves in the spacious quarters of the Windham County Bar Library in the court house block, where Attorney Arthur S. Macdonald also will be located until he can make other arrangements. The Windham County Savings bank is doing business as usual today. Other lawyers also received a generous offer of quarters from Louis A. Wolf, who would make office arrangements for them in the new Wolf and Kaminsky block on Main street.

Dr. Murphy and Dr. Wright also were offered temporary quarters in the Bradley building on Front street, and so it went as the good people of the city offered their best to protect those who suffered by the fire from further loss.

Trolley service was delayed for about three hours by the fire, but at the earliest possible moment the firemen cleared the rails of lines of hose, allowing a prompt clearance of cars from the rails and the resumption of normal service. At 11.40 the cars were operating through without the transfers necessary during the forenoon. Supt. Louis Gross of the trolley company expressed his appreciation of the fine manner in which the firemen made possible the clearing of his line at the earliest possible minute.

The big fire did not hold the attention of as large a number as one might expect throughout its course and at times there were less than 200 people about. Watching the fire was a mighty cold occupation on streets coated with ice caused in great part by the prompt freezing of such water as was splashed about or escaped from connections in the lines of hose.

Litchi trees, which bear delicious sugary fruit, will not grow in cool climates.

CONTESTING SEAT OF SENATOR MAYFIELD

Washington, Feb. 23—The controversy over the Ku Klux Klan was brought into the United States senate today with the filing of proceedings contesting the right of Earle B. Mayfield to become senator from Texas.

The contest was brought by E. B. Peddy, republican and "independent democratic" candidate for senator in the election last November, who declared himself elected despite the majority credited by election officials to Mayfield, the regular democratic nominee. A scathing indictment of the Klan, of which it was charged that Mayfield was a member, was included in the petition and was placed on file with Mayfield's credentials to be considered when the new congress meets next fall.

Klan officers were charged with "illegal and fraudulent" acts in the petition, which also allowed fraud in counting the ballots, illegal expenditures of more than $150,000 in Mayfield's behalf, and numerous other irregularities. Among the charges laid at the door of the klan were that it had attempted to erect a super-government, to "seduce and defile the public conscience," to gain commercial and other dominion, to accomplish "prostitution of the Christian religion," to exercise "brutal and tyrannical control and discipline" and to engage in "illegal and immoral practices."

The senate was asked to preserve and recount the Texas ballots, to investigate the Texas primary and election and to prohibit Mayfield from taking the oath when the next congress convenes. His credentials having been received, however, the whole matter, under usual senate procedure, would be referred to the privileges committee when congress reassembles, and pending the committee's investigation, the oath would be administered.

The contestants' petition declared that Mayfield "was not honestly or lawfully elected" by virtue of the fact that Peddy's name was kept off the printed ballot because of the alleged "conspiracy" of the klan, and for other reasons. The document comprised about 25,000 words, and was accompanied by many exhibits, including alleged copies of letters between klan officers, naming Mayfield as a klansman, and urging klansmen to support him.

In support of a charge that Mayfield abused his power as state railroad commissioner to further his campaign, one of the papers accompanying the case quoted him as threatening oil and other interests, in seeking campaign contributions.

"You tell those—that if I am not elected to the senate, I will be railroad commissioner four years more and they had better kick in or they will be sorry," Mayfield was quoted as having informed Mike McNamara, deputy oil commissioner. It was charged also that McNamara was told to get $50,000 in contributions and did turn over some of the receipts.

CAPE COD CANAL BILL LAID ASIDE IN HOUSE

Washington, Feb. 23.—The filibuster begun yesterday in the house by opponents of the bill proposing government purchase of the Cape Cod canal was ended today after republican leaders made it known that they would not press the measure at this time. They called up instead the alien property bill and gave no indication when the other measure could be given consideration.

Chairman Winslow of the interstate commerce committee, in charge of the Cape Cod bill, declared in a formal statement that the party managers had given him "no assurance of consideration of the bill at this session of congress" and opponents freely predicted in private that it would not come up at all. They were prepared to fight it by every parliamentary method if it should, they said.

Representative Winslow said he had "protested" the decision of the leaders, "in view of the merits of the bill and in consideration of constant and positive assurances" that there would be house action on it. Chairman Campbell of the rules committee explained, however, after a conference with the republican steering committee, that the measure had been laid aside so as to end the filibuster and get some legislation enacted before the end of the session. The legislative programme, badly congested before the filibuster began, was complicated further today by the presentation of the third deficiency appropriation measure. This bill contains scores of items and the managers recognized that each of these could be made a fighting point for those members of the house desiring to delay or kill legislation placed on the calendar for early action.

Despite the legislative jam, committees of the house continued today to report out additional bills and resolutions but it was indicated that none of these would have much chance in the final rush of business except, of course, the farms credit legislation which will get early consideration, probably on Saturday. The banking committee worked all day today and far into the night, completing the bill which will follow along the general lines of the Caper measure passed by the senate.

Chairman McFadden planned to have the completed draft and the accompanying report before the members of the house tomorrow so as to pave the way for debate and a vote on Saturday. After its passage by the house the credits legislation would have to be considered in conference but its supporters appeared confident that final congressional action would be possible before adjournment sine die on March 4.

PUTNAM HAD TWO MORE FIRE CALLS IN NIGHT

(Special to the Bulletin)

Putnam, Conn Feb. 22.—Two alarms Thursday night gave the firemen extra work to do after an exceptionally hard day. About 8.45 a passerby noticed [illegible] from the chimney of the telephone building on Grove street. Charles T. Thayer, superintendent of the fire alarm, sent a call for the department. Soft coal used in the heater is said to have caused this chimney fire a few minutes after the janitor had fixed the fire for the night. There was no damage to the building.

The [illegible] just finished with the telephone fire when an alarm from box 36 called them to North Main street where there was a blaze in the basement of one of the mill's recently purchased by the Adams Manufacturing Co. Workmen who were thawing out pipes during the day may have been responsible for this fire, which got so hot as to start the automatic sprinkler system. The fire was in the basement, in the old weave room and the entire mill was filled with smoke. The damage is small.

At midnight the ruins of the Donahue block were still blazing and firemen were playing three streams on the ruins.

WILLIMANTIC

NORWICH BULLETIN
Willimantic Office
81 Church Street Telephone 1663

A short time ago a letter from Bishop John J. Nilan addressed to the priests of the diocese and read to their congregations made known the fact that the Roman Catholic diocese of Hartford has an established ruling against Sunday funerals. This announcement has resulted in agitation by many Protestant clergy of the state against this practice. A number of the Protestant clergymen have already asked their congregations to avoid, if possible, the holding of funerals on Sunday and the matter has been brought up before health boards of various cities.

It is being pointed out that Sunday funerals draw a number of curious onlookers. A canvass of the four Protestant clergymen of Willimantic has been made in regard to the matter and it was brought to light that three of them are opposed to the holding of funerals on Sunday. One of the clergymen stated that he had no objection on the matter and that he felt it was his duty or any other clergyman's duty to officiate at funerals when called upon, whether it be on Sunday of another day.

The remaining clergymen were anxious to make it clear that they would not refuse to officiate at funerals if called on Sundays, but they believed that it should be avoided if possible. It was their opinion that the holding of funerals was an accommodation to mourners and then again in cases where death followed contagious diseases it might be necessary to hold funerals on Sundays.

In the case of deaths among Hebrew people, a part of the religion of the Orthodox Jew is that a body must be buried within 24 hours after death.

Louis J. Coriarty, lessee of the Strand theatre, has entered a complaint against the owner, Ike Rosen, as the result of the low temperature at the theatre Sunday night, which the lessee claims caused a number of the patrons to leave. The compaint has been entered with Prosecuting Attorney Harvey. It is claimed that the proprietor neglected to have the theatre properly heated. Rosen was notified to appear in court Thursday morning to answer to the charge of violating the building heating law.

The parties concerned mutually agreed to a continuance of the case until Monday, March 12. The court warned Rosen to keep the house heated up to 65 degrees while shows are being conducted. The defendant stated that he would conform with the law and that there would not be any more trouble about the heat, as far as he was concerned.

The court pointed out that the owners of the buadings in this state who rent stores, halls, offices or living quarters, must have their building heated to a temperature of at least 65 degrees Fahrenheit. The violation of this law means an arrest and a substantial fine.

The matter of the lack of heat in the theatre was reported to Superintendent of State Police Robert T. Hurley, who is also chief fuel administrator. He notified both Rosen and Coriarty that failure to comply with the heating law would cause the closing of the house by his department.

Late in the fall of 1922, Rosen was brought before the local police court and charged with not heating the building on a complaint entered by Manager Coriarty. The case was nolled, however, when it was disclosed that Rosen had transferred the building to his oldest son a few days before the complaint was made to the authorities.

A drive to raise one thousand dollars for the purpose of paying off the mortgage on the A. M. E. Zion church at 74 Spring street, has been started by the members of the congregation. The cause is a worthy one and it is hoped that the contributions will be plentiful when a general canvass of the city is made.

Rev. David R. K. Overton has been the pastor of the church for the past four years and this constitutes the first appeal for funds he has made since he accepted the pastorate. Noah Webster of the Willimantic Savings institute has consented to act as the treasurer of this campaign and all checks should be made out to him.

There is little doubt that the drive will be a most successful one as Willimantic has already a fine record for putting drives over the top.

Francis Long Woman's Relief corps' members joined together to celebrate Valentine's Day and Washington's Birthday at Grand Army hall during the afternoon and evening Thursday. President Margaret MacArthur opened the regular meeting at 3 o'clock and there were forty-eight members present. Mrs. Ruth James was the musician of the evening. Reports of the secretary and committees were read and accepted. General orders were issued and notice given that the corps would celebrate its fortieth birthday next July.

Memoriams were read for five national past presidents and three national army nurses and a communication from the department secretary accepting an invitation to visit the Corps No. 11, on March 21. It was also vited to purchase five new silk flags. The regular meeting closed with the singing of America.

A Washington Tea was then enjoyed and was served by the executive board in charge of Mrs. Fannie Larkin, chairman, assisted by Mrs. Elinor Benner, Mrs. Alice Tripp, Mrs. Mary Pinock and Mrs. Julia Jackson.

The table was attractively decorated in red, white and blue with candles and crepe paper and little favors at each plate.

An entertainment followed the luncheon. Mrs. Grace Sweet won first prize in the hunt for the hidden paper hearts. Mrs. Lottie Barrows won the consolation prize. Mrs. Ruth James and Miss Inez Paton rendered a piano duet and Mrs. Lottie Barrows read a story of George Washington by Henry Cabot Lodge. Following the entertainment each number was given a valentine from a miniature post office in charge of Miss Addie Cole and Mrs. Lucy Champlin. Dancing was also enjoyed.

In the enumeration of the school census of the state of Connecticut nine of the fifteen towns in Windham county showed gains, Thompson leading with a gain of 130, and Windham second with a gain of 118. The six towns that show losses are Ashford, Chaplin, Hampton, Killingly, Scotland and Sterling. The enumeration of the town of Windham equals thirty per cent. of the enumeration of the entire county.

George D. Watrous died Wednesday at his home in the town of Lebanon. The deceased leaves three brothers, Herbert C. Watrous, of Hartford, John L. Watrous of Middlefield and Walter H. Watrous of Meriden; one son, George B. Watrous of Exeter, and one daughter, Emily Watrous of Lebanon.

He was born December 6, 1847, the son of Leverett and Emil (Dingley) Watrous.

The funeral of Miss Nellie M. Mc Cruhan was held from the late home, No. 80 Union street, Thursday morning at 8:30 o'clock and was followed by a requiem high mass at St. Joseph's church at 9 o'clock. Rev. John E. Clark officiated. Members of the choir with Mrs. Edmond R. Portelance at the organ, rendered Nearer, My God to Thee as the body was being borne into the church. At the offertory, O. Salutaris was sung and Face to Face as a waiting hymn. Some Sweet Day was rendered at the close of the mass.

The remains were placed in the receiving vault of St. Joseph's cemetery where Rev. Father Clark conducted a committal service. The bearers were John O'Rourke, Michael Hurlihey, Henry and Thomas Moran of this city, Philip Dwyer of New Haven and Michael Kelley of Norwich.

Mrs. James Johnson died Thursday morning at the age of 72, at her home No. 13 Pearl street after a two months' illness. The deceased was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., October 1, 1850. She is survived by her husband, James Johnson, who conducts a livery business on North street; also a daughter, Miss Ella A. Johnson, a son Thomas H. Johnson, two brothers, William and Richard Henry of Brooklyn, N. Y., and a sister, Mrs. Alice H. Moulton of Boston, Mass.

Old minds were stirred by memories of '49 Thursday when an old relic of those days—a prairie schooner hauled by a pair of white mules stopped on Main street early in the afternoon. The schooner then went to Johnson's livery stable. On board the wagon were Russel B. Moon and Ralph Peck of Independence, Missouri, who stated that they were going over the trail that their forefathers took when they left Concord, N. H., in '49 for the California gold fields. The passengers said that they left Independence on May 6, 1921, with the schooner, being drawn by two oxen. The trip has been by easy stages since that time, the course during the summer of 1921 being as far south as Atlanta, Ga.

They arrived in New York city in January and at that place one of the oxen sustained a broken leg and had to be killed. The other ox was killed and turned into beef. A pair of white mules were then bought and the trip resumed towards the north. The men stopped over night in this city and this (Friday) morning will leave for Norwich.

Engine Company No. 1 responded to an alarm rung in from Box No. 47 at the corner of Maple avenue and Bellevue street shortly after 11:30 o'clock Thursday morning. On arriving at the scene they found that their services were not needed. The alarm was for a small blaze in the residence at No. 64 Maple avenue, owned by John Bellevance.

Plumbers were working in the attic of the house and had left a gasoline blow torch in the middle of the floor. Two small boys were playing about the attic and were suddenly heard to shout fire. The plumbers found the woodwork on fire and a quantity of sakum ablaze. The men secured buckets of water and soon extinguished the blaze. A member of the Bellevance family became excited and rang in the alarm. But slight damage was done.

Archibald W. Buchanan of Mansfield Center, agent of the state board of education was at the State Normal school Thursday forenoon to meet children between the ages of 14 and 16 who sought employment certificates. Five applicants appeared and passed the required tests. The examinations were held at the state school due to the closing of the town building.

State Policeman Fred T. Caron of the Stafford Springs barracks was at the patrolmen's room in the local police station Thursday meeting applicants for motor vehicle drivers' licenses. Licenses were granted to three applicants during the day.

Thursday was Washington's Birthday and business was suspended at the three banks and the public and parochial schools were closed. The town building offices were also closed. But very few flags were visible during the day. The schools reopen this (Friday) morning.

Word has been received from Mr. and Mrs. W. Hillhouse and daughter, Marion, of their arrival in Los Angeles, California.

Elmer Norton who is wintering in Florida writes that he finds it cool but that the flowers in the park look better to him than snow.

Mrs. William E. Webber recently entertained a thimble club of the sorority of the Methodist church at her home on Turner street.

Among those from this city who have been attending the automobile show in Hartford, were: Mr. and Mrs. William A. Arnold, Dr. and Mrs. D. E. Taylor, E. O. Sumner, Dr. and Mrs. Fred M. Smith and Fred Little.

Miss Alice Bugbee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Bugbee of Jackson street and a teacher in New Haven, is spending the week-end at her home.

Miss Dorothy Gorton, a teacher at the Lyman Hall high school in Wallingford is spending a few days with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. E. E. Gorton of Pearl street.

Others who have been attending the automobile show in Hartford, are Lester H. Blish, G. Raymond Young, Wilfred Robert and Hawley Foote.

Miss Marion Alford, a member of the faculty of a New Haven school is the guest of her sister, Miss Alice Alford of Prospect street.

Mrs. Daniel Sullivan of Valley street recently entertained at a Washington's birthday party given by the home nursing class conducted this winter by Mrs. Sullivan under the auspices of the Catholic Women's Welfare council.

At the civic meeting of the chamber of commerce Thursday night, held for the purpose of receiving suggestions on the matter of revising the city charter or the consolidation of the city and town government, it was voted that a public meeting be held in the town hall, at the call of the public works committee, at which a definite plan for the consolidation of the town and city government shall be presented in order to sound the sentiment of the citizens.

THE TREES BY THE ROADSIDE.

(Written Specially For The Bulletin.)

When one starts out to talk a little about roadside trees, his subject naturally divides itself, as the preachers say, into several distinct subdivisions or heads. Such as:

The possible uses or advantages of having trees by the roadside.

The roads.des which have plenty of trees, already, and what to do with them.

The roadsides which haven't any trees at all, now, and—this divides itself again into two heads, viz: Those which, being without trees, would be better to have some, and: Those which are without trees for the excellent reason that they ought to be.

How to get the sorts found desirable?

Now, I don't doubt that an expert and facile sermonizer would be able to tabulate a whole lot more of heads under which to discuss this roadside tree question. But I'm satisfied that we've already got out enough to occupy all the time you'll be disposed to give to this subject, today.

It seems that a Worcester, Mass., man has just given an order to the Vermont State Forestry department for a bunch of 20,000 sugar-maple seedlings. They are to be started this spring and, when three years old, the seedlings are to be handed over to him to transplant. He has the place already picked out—a hillside sloping in such a way that, when the trees reach sap-producing age, the sap can be delivered from them all to the sugar-house by gravity—allowed to run down hill through conveniently arranged pipe-lines. The trees are to be set very thickly, with the deliberate intention of cutting out the poorest, as they develope. These ill-shaped or stunted specimens will be sold for cord-wood, winter by winter, as their deformities become more and more apparent. In this way, the maple-orchard planter hopes to get some income towards paying taxes, while the better trees are growing into their full stature.

Such a job as this must necessarily cost money. It costs money to start with, costs money to continue; will keep costing money till the trees get big enough to tap, which may be twenty or thirty years after setting. The sugar maple is a tree of rather close grain, quite hard, and of comparatively slow growth. Very few if any practical farmers have either the money, the land or the time to put into an imitation of this stunt.

Bupt those who can't afford a full loaf of bread often have to be satisfied with half a loaf. The question is whether we want trees and, if so, what kinds and where? Let's go back, now, and begin with our half-dozen sub-divisions of the road-side proposition.

Most farms in Connecticut border on some road. We've talked a little, once before, on this general line. Let's get down a little closer to the ground, if we can, this time. There are some farmers to whom the beauty of a winding country road, shaded and brooded over by rows of more or less stately trees, will appeal. Travellers tell me that one of the most compelling beauties of rural England is found in the meandering lanes, corkscrewing their way between ancient elms and oaks and beeches, frequently drifting through real groves of those characteristically English trees. It would be too much to assume that the love of beauty for its own sake, which has led a dozen generations of English farmers and peasants to cherish these lane side trees is wholly lacking in their second or seventh cousins on this side of the big pond. Who was it that said almost any man can write a poem or paint a picture, "but only God can make a tree?" There must be some, even among the "hard-headed" farmers of practical-minded Connecticut, who can see and appreciate the beauty and almost glory that resides in trees.

But that isn't the only argument for them along the roadsides. If beauty doesn't appeal, profit may. And there is profit in roadside trees, in the right conditions and under the right treatment. A practical farmer of New London county once wrote me, apropos to this subject: "A farm having a frontage on the road bearing a cherished growth of volunteer native trees will not only make a forceful appeal to passers, but the prospective buyer will give more dollars to the seller, if his roadside has a charming border of trees that have been trimmed and thinned into a sort of park-like appearance." You know, as well as I do, that this is true. Not only do such trees give promise of fruitage or lumber at maturity, according to their nature, but they give, almost from the outset, an added money value to the farm they adorn. Especially would this be true in the case of a city buyer, looking for country quiet and comfort and beauty. You'll agree with me, I think, that those are the kinds of buyers likely to have money to spend for what they want.

Now let's take up, briefly, our second head concerning the roadsides which already have plenty of trees and what to do with them. At one time or another, I have walked or driven or automobiled over a good many miles of Eastern Connecticut road. As my memory reraws for me, this morning, the pictures I have seen most of them are of narrow, winding, hilly, rocky roads, closely bordered and often overhung with tangled thickets of shrubs, saplings and vines. There is, to be sure, a certain attractiveness in their wild and uncombed riot of greenery. But this attractiveness has its counterfoils. The thickets cut off the view around sharp curves; they creep so close to the tracks as sometimes to brush against passing vehicle; they gather dust on their leaves in a dry time and, in wet weather, are apt to whip spatters of dirty cold water into the faces of drivers. When this sort of thing gets too frequent and annoying, complaints will be made and the selectmen will come out with an order to trim up the offending roadside. This trimming will invariably be a clean slash of everything, good, bad and indifferent. The saplings which, if left alone, would in due time have grown into big trees, gracious in their beauty, grateful in their shade, full of salable lumber, actually elements of increased value to the farm, are remorselessly chewed down, as well as the worthless shrubs and vines.

Now, my point in regard to such roadsides is just this: Wouldn't it be better all 'round for the farmer to trim them himself, cutting out all the worthless and ground-cumbering stuff, and preserving the occasional worthwhile saplings for future service and usefulness?

There are miles on miles of roads in New London county alone, with strips from one to two rods wide each side the beaten track but within the road fences, which are worthless for any other purpose but growing trees. The land is poor, rocky, not even fit for pasture. But it is exactly the sort of soil which will grow trees, if given the chance. It doesn't ask to have trees brought to it and set out. It starts them of itself, by a sort of generous spontaneity. All that is asked to transform these miles of tangled and disorderly roadside into lanes of rural beauty and potential profit is a little trimming out of the weeds and shrubs and bushes and vines, to give the springing trees a fair chance for their lives. Almost invariably, too, the farm-lands lying adjacent to these hedge-row tangles are rocky pastures, forbidden by nature to the plow and the raising of crops. They would be damaged no whit by the trees left along the roadside, no matter how tall and sturdy these should eventually become.

My! I'm getting towards the end of my weekly space, and several heads of the discourse are still to be attended to. We'll have to cut down our talkee-talkee.

There are other roadsides throughout Eastern Connecticut which have no trees or even bushes along their borders. In some cases, this is exactly as it should be. When the roadway passes through good, arable land, the fields beside it being suitable for cropping, there is no doubt that trees, whether in the fields themselves or along the bordering roadsides, are simply big weeds. They take the water and the soil nourishment which would otherwise go to farm-crops. They take it, too, by the ton. They are greedy and voracious feeders. No good farmer would want or should permit his good meadows or corn and potato fields to be kept from the sunlight by thick-shaded trees, or robbed of their fertility by any form of weeds, big or little, annual or perennial. But, as one correspondent writes me: "There are hundreds of miles of cross and back roads in New London county bearing with unending impulse throngs and throngs of walnut and ash, maple saplings." The land either side of these roads would not be injured a penny's worth by all the shade a double row of big trees would make. Instead, it would be really put to some practical service in feeding a tree growth — the only form of growth of which it is profitably capable.

One friend who possesses gumption and uses it on his farm and in treating farm problems writes me, anent this general subject: "The acute danger today, this week, this winter, is in the cutters of young black birches for the birch mill. Black birch is the mahogany of New England. It springs up in veritable jungles where blight-stricken chestnuts have been harvested, and these rapacious birch cutters, greedy for the first penny they can wring from the land, now, rush to such areas and sweep them clean. Why can't you ask 'em to please cut out only the less promising saplings, and let the healthy, straight ones stand for forty years or so? There'll be somebody here then to profit by them—no need to worry about that!

The point seems to be something like this: Here are hundreds of acres of waste land, along these hundreds of miles of back and cross roads. They are worse than waste, they are recurring nuisances. They make constant trouble for the abutting owner or for the traveller or for the town. They are sources of annoyance and discomfort and expense. Yet a little pains taken to trim them up and keep them in fairly decent shape, thinning out the worthless trash and having the promising trees, would result in transforming the waste into something of orderliness and beauty and usefulness and even profit.

Very few of us New England farmers have the money to imitate the Worcester man, and plan a sugar-maple orchard of 20,000 trees. But a good many of us have strips of tousled and tangled and untidy hedge rows along our abutting roadsides. Most of the stuff is trash, to be sure. But, here and there in the jungle, may almost always be found some saplings of really worth-while trees. We don't have to order them from any nursery; we don't have to pay a single red cent for them; we don't have to go to the station after them; we don't have to dig holes and transplant them. That work Nature has done for us. All we have to do is to take the good things she has provided, give them a fair chance to develop in their own time and way, and reap the benefits.

Of course, all this involves some trouble. Is there anything in this world of sin and sorrow worth having which doesn't require some trouble to get? If there is, I'd like somebody to steer me towards it. I haven't met anything of the sort yet, in seventy years of going up and down on the earth.

Think it over, Mr. Farmer. Whether you have a concealed love of beauty hidden down in your sub-consciousness, or are actuated solely by a desire for potential profit-taking, see if this doesn't have at least the germ of an idea which you can use.

THE FARMER.

COMB SAGE TEA IN FADED OR GRAY HAIR

Look young! Common garden Sage and Sulphur darkens so naturally nobody can tell.

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, at very little cost. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied — it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and beautiful.

Mrs. Miles Poindexter Stirs Washington

When Mrs. Miles Poindexter, wife of the Washington Senator, who lost out in the last election, wrote her candid views of the capital's official society for publication in the relatively obscure columns of a small newspaper in her State she did not intend to cause a sensation, but copies of the commentary arrived in Washington, D. C., and the turmoil they produced in the social ranks is still growing. Mrs. Poindexter wrote about how generous Uncle Sam is to his Secretaries, furnishing them with automobiles, drivers and some even yachts, and various other things not to mention supplying flowers and music for social functions.

MONTVILLE

The funeral of Mrs. Lucy Allen Comstock of Uncasville, whose death occurred at St. Andrews, Fla., on Feb. 14th, was held at the Uncasville Methodist church at 2.30 o'clock Sunday afternoon. Mrs. Lucy Allen Comstock was the oldest living member of the church and had she lived until next November would have been a member of the church for 60 continuous years, during which time she has held several church offices and also been for a long period the superintendent of the Sunday school. She was also a teacher in the Uncasville public school for a great many years, and the high esteem in which she was held and her sterling character were shown by the friends, neighbors and pupils who gathered to pay their last tribute of respect to one who has been so much a part of their lives. The floral tributes were many and very beautiful. Burial was in Union cemetery at Hill Top.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Montville Union Baptist church cleared about $33 at their food sale on Friday afternoon. The society met with Mrs. Arthur Blaisdel Wednesday.

There was a large attendance at the entertainment at the Palmer Memorial schoolhouse on Friday evening and the affair netted a profit of about $45 to the school.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Uncasville Methodist church met at the church on Thursday afternoon and was entertained by Mrs. Gessner, Mrs. Hurlbutt and Mrs. Miller. Fruit salad, whipped cream, cake and cocoa were served. On account of the stormy weather but 13 were present.

The Ladies' Missionary society of the Montville Union Baptist church will meet at the home of Miss Susie Wood on Friday afternon.

Miss Mary Daniels entertained a number of her young friends at her home in Pequot on Saturday evening. The evening was spent in playing games and music and dancing. Refreshments of fruit, candy, cake and punch were served. Those present were Viola Baxter, Dunn Whitman and Fred Baxter of Clinton, George Almalt, Francis Almalt, George Keenan, Evelyn Keenan, George Mosher and Grace Kluss of New London, Eleanor Langevin, Jessie Garrett, Josephine Titisky, Herbert and Harland Hammond, Frank, John and Joseph Titisky, Mary, Jennie and Gladys Daniels.

Twenty-two young people, including many from the village and Norwich, enjoyed a sliding party on Mohegan Hill Friday evening. After the coasting, the young people were invited to the home of Miss Winifred Quidgeon, where they enjoyed a fine supper.

Dorothy Church entertained Miss Eleanor Gadbois of East Great Plain over the week end.

Miss Rose Haley was a visitor in Westerly on Sunday.

RHEUMATISM PAINS ARE NOW IN SEASON

Says glass of Salts helps to overcome Rheumatism acid.

Rheumatism is easier to avoid than to cure, states a well-known authority. We are advised to dress warmly, keep the feet dry, avoid exposure, and above all drink plenty of good water and avoid eating sweets of all kind.

Rheumatism is caused by body waste and acids resulting from food fermentation. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this poison from the blood and pass it out in the urine; the pores of the skin are also a means of freeing it. Most of this impurity, in damp or cold weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do double work; they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this waste and acids, which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles, causing stiffness, soreness and pain, called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is helpful to neutralize acidity, remove waste matter, also to stimulate the kidneys, thus often ridding the blood of rheumatic poison.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism.

WITTER BROS. ..... Auctioneers
Office and Salesroms, No. 42 Main St., Danielson, Conn.

AUCTION
ON MONDAY, FEB. 26, 1923,

by order of the owner, we will sell at public sale at the farm known as the Leonard P. Morrison place, about 2 miles east from Danielson, Conn., and about 1 1-2 miles north from South Killingly, the following described property:

The entire equipment used in conducting this mammoth farm, such as cattle, horses, 50 head of fancy poultry, a complete and up-to-date line of valuable farming tools, purchased by Mr. Morrison about two years ago, representing an investment of several thousand dollars, wagons, harnesses, small tools, and household goods.

Articles of Special Interest.

One 7 horsepower Abenaque gasoline engine and circular saw, mounted on small wheel gear, one ensilage cutter and one steel axle two-horse tip cart, just like new, one 1918 Republic truck.

The farm of 135 acres, with all buildings thereon, will be offered for sale at 1.30 o'clock p. m. Terms cash. If stormy, next fair day. A caterer in attendance.

URGENT NEED IN TWO CASES FOR BEDCLOTHING

The family welfare department of the United Workers has discovered an urgent need of bedclothing in two cases. In one case there is an old lady who has tuberculosis and rheumatism and not enough bedding to make her comfortable. In the other case there is a young widow with three children, all sleeping in one bed because there is only sufficient bedding to make up the one bed. As the nights at this time of year are very sharp, one can realize what a miserable feeling it must be not to be warm enough in bed. If one added to the discomfort of not being warm, the pains of rheumatism aggravated by being chilled through, it would not be hard to imagine the relief and pleasure which an extra comfortable or two or some warm blankets might give. Any donations of quilts, blankets or pillows would be greatly appreciated if sent to the United Workers House, No. 9 Washington street.

PUTS 5 PER CENT LIMIT ON MUNICIPAL BONDS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Hartford, Feb. 22.—The bill that had been favorably reported by the finance committee on Friday last and was tabled at the time was called up Tuesday, passed, and under a suspension of the rules was transmitted to the senate where it also was adopted as of more than passing interest as it very materially affects the bonding limits of every town or municipality in the state. The bill reads: No municipality or subdivision thereof shall incur any indebtedness, through the issue of bonds, in excess of five per centum of the grand list, unless otherwise provided by special act. For the purposes of this act, the grand list of every municipality shall be construed to include the fair market value of the tax exempt real estate therein, except such tax exempt real estate as may be owned by the United States, the state of Connecticut or the county wherein such town is situated. In computing the net bonded indebtedness subject to the limit prescribed by this act, bonds issued for the supply of water, gas or electricity, or [illegible] of the same, shall not be included or considered.

THE WEATHER.

Conditions.

Pressure was low Thursday over the Canadian maritime provinces and it was relatively low and falling rapidly over the far northwest, while high pressure prevailed almost generally east of the Rocky mountains since Wednesday night. There have been light local snows in the lake region, the upper Ohio valley and in the Atlantic states north of Virginia, and local rains in Texas, New Mexico and along the north Pacific coast. Elsewhere throughout the country the weather has remained fair.

The temperature was somewhat lower Thursday in the lake region and the great central valleys and it was higher in the south Atlantic states, Colorado and in the far northwest.

The outlook is for generally fair weather Friday and Saturday in the Atlantic states.

The temperature will be lower in the Atlantic states Friday, and it will not change materially in the eastern and southern states Saturday.

Winds.

North of Sandy Hook and Sandy Hook to Hatteras: Fresh, possibly strong northwest, and weather fair Friday.

Forecast.

For Southern New England: Fair and colder Friday; Saturday fair, continued cold.

TAFTVILLE

George N. Beardow of Providence street, George J. Meyer, of Lisbon, Christopher Hoefer, of Mazenaobor avenue and William C. Kendall, of Norwich avenue, were in Hartford, Thursday attending the automobile show at the State Armory, making the trip in Mr. Kendall's automobile.

The Dramatic Club met Wednesday evening in the parlors of the Taftville Congregational church.

The Thursday evening Basketry Class met Thursday evening in the Red Cross rooms in the Ponemah building.

Court Uncasonoc, No. 85, Foresters of America met Thursday evening in their rooms in St. Louis Hall. Chief Ranger William Smith presided, and routine business was transacted.

Miss Sophie Ulrick is confined to her home in Lisbon by illness.

Professor Edwin Tinkham, of Hanover, was a caller in town Thursday.

Now that the ice is breaking up on the lower Quinebaug river, great flocks of seagulls can be seen swimming on the open water. At different points along the river, this stream is entirely free from ice. At the Tunnel Power Plant the dam is completely frozen over, making a very picturesque sight. An otter was sighted about a quarter of a mile above the dam one day this week.

Miss Elizabeth Dutton, of Merchants avenue has resigned her position with the Ponemah Company.

Rudolph Olsen has resigned his position in the machine shop of the Ponemah Mills and has accepted employment at the J. B. Martin Co.

The S. S. S. Society, which is a branch of a national missionary organization, was entertained Wednesday evening by Mrs. Edwin G. Crowell at her home on North Third avenue. Following a short missionary program, refreshments were served and games were played.

Alfred Sagecal who was confined to his home by a minor injury, has returned to his work.

Rev. Edwin G. Crowell has received an invitation to a luncheon at the Hotel McAlpin on Monday, March 5th commemorating the 25th anniversary of the coming of Rev. Charles E. Jefferson to the pastorate of the Broadway Tabernacle Church, New York. Rev. Dr. Jefferson is this week preaching in Norwich.

NO FIRE HAZARD AT STATE HOSPITAL BUILDINGS

Connecticut hospitals for the insane stand in little danger of another disaster as the recent one at the Utica, New York, asylum, in which 37 patients were burned to death, Charles P. Kellogg, secretary of the state department of charities and correction, declared in a statement issued at the Norwich State Hospital after a visit there. Mr. Kellogg said that the Norwich institution, the newest state one, and the only two others built with the view to take care of the present need, are fireproof buildings which are being asked for to increase the hospital's capacity in the east.

PREACHER SAYS CHRIST BROUGHT TRUE KNIGHTHOOD INTO THE WORLD

"The Chivalry of Christ" was the topic of the sermon preached on Thursday evening at the Central Baptist church by Rev. Dr. C. E. Jefferson of New York, in the fifth of a series of six sermons being preached under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. The text was Luke 4th chapter, 18th verse, "The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because he anointed me to preach good tidings to the poor."

By chivalry I mean, gentleness, the spirit of knighthood, said Rev. Dr. Jefferson. Chivalry has gone through three stages of evolution. In the 7th to 9th centuries chivalry was of the military type. Knights gave themselves for the service of their feudal lord. From the 10th to 12th centuries chivalry became religious, and it was during these centuries that knights fought the battles of the Crusades. In the 14th and 15th centuries chivalry became social, the protection of the weak and oppressed.

In every place there is always someone on the bottom, someone who is looked down upon, despised and kicked. In some countries it is the Jew, in others the Oriental, and so on down to the negro—always someone at the bottom.

In Palestine in the days of Christ, the Samaritan was despised by the Jew. So greatly did the Jew hate the Samaritan that he would go miles out of the way rather than to pass through the cities of the Samaritans. Thus you see when Jesus was called a Samaritan what a low down name this was. The Jew after uttering all known vile epithets had nothing worse than "you are a Samaritan," to hurl at Christ. Even Christ may have inherited some of the dislike of the Samaritan for this name was seldom on His lips. In Matthew and Mark it is mentioned only a few times, but in Luke here it is seen often, because St. Luke was a Gentile, a foreigner and had not the hatred for the Samaritan.

When Christ healed the 10 Samaritan lepers, remember one came back and Christ said to Him, Go your way, your faith has made you whole." Look at Christ the Knight, the Gentleman, who healed even the despised Samaritan.

Again when the disciples and Christ were entering a Samaritan city, how the followers of Christ wanted to bring the fires of heaven on the accursed people who refused night lodgings for Christ and his party. Ah, see the Knight, Christ the Gentleman, who stood between the city and his followers, and said, I came not to bring destruction, but peace, let us pass on and do no harm.

But the greatest thing of all was the story of the Good Samaritan. Think of the audacity of Christ to hold up this despised creature before the Jews and tell them to follow his example. You know the story of how after the priest and levite, great men among the Jews had passed by the Samaritan rendered assistance. This mongrel was gracious. Ah, Christ did the greatest thing then that the world had ever seen. He told the Jews to be merciful, follow the example of the despised Samaritan. Behold the Knight, Jesus the Gentleman, who holds up a despised Samaritan who has done a good deed. Remember, the goodness, the chivalry of Jesus when he supped with the tax collectors. Ah, how these men were hated by the Jews, who must pay taxes to a Jew who sends them back to Rome, accursed Rome. Jesus knew them for sons of God, saw that they were lonely, and one man was so affected by Jesus' kindness that he gave half of what he had to the poor.

Now, let us see how Christ treated the women. In those days women were the toys of men as long as their were beautiful. When beauty passed, they became a drudge. It is still the case in pagan cities of the Orient, where we see painted dolls played with by men until the paint wears off, then they are cast aside, become drudges.

In Palestine women were higher, but still were held down, they could not sit on the same side of the church as the men, could not get so near to the altar, and a man would not be seen in the street talking with a woman, even his wife. Then see the divorce law the Jew had simply to write on parchment, "Get out," and he was free of his wife. Yet, women in Palestine were also playthings.

But look at the Knight, the Gentleman, Christ. In his following were both men and women. Wasn't that wonderful in a country where men would not talk to women on the street. See this Knight who surrounded himself with men and women.

Let's see how our Knight treats the poor. I believe that poverty never becomes so bitter in life, until benevolences enter. A woman will never hide her head for buying little, but to give a pittance when she wants to give much, brings poverty back to her with all its bitterness. The poor widow who dropped her mite into the church box, oh, how bitter she felt for not having more. Christ heard the rumble of the falling coppers and knew that is God the music was sweeter than the sound of gold falling from the hands of the rich. Speaking to his followers, Christ said, that woman has given more than any of them. Behold the Knight, the Gentleman. Christ started a joyful song in the heart of that poor, miserable woman.

See how he treats the rich. When the rich woman poured priceless ointment on his head and feet his followers said, "It is a waste of money, the ointment should be sold and the money given to the poor." "Be quiet," said Jesus, "this woman has done all she could. She has put something into the world that would ever be missed had she failed to do as she did." See the Knight. He took her aside and made her feel happy in her act.

Remember how Christ deals with the street walker who came into the home of the Pharisee and heard Christ. She became repentant, tears flowed down her cheeks. When people criticised, Christ defended her, held her up. Ah, see the Knight taking the part of the repenting street walker.

Remember the woman at the well, coarse-grained, and a Samaritan. Christ asked for a drink of water and then talked with her. Ah, see the kind act, in that land where talking to a woman was not done, moreover with a low down Samaritan. Jesus brought her nearer to God.

Remember the story of the woman caught in the doing of an evil act. The Pharisees bring her to Christ, but not the man, for they are cowards. Seeking to trap Christ, they say, "Her crime is out law," demands that she be stoned. What should we do with her? Here Christ for the first time hesitates. The question is deep. Pressed for an answer he replies, "That is the law. Let any man among you who has not committed this sin cast the first stone." Then came silence; oh, how deep a silence. Finally there was a footfall and one man sneaked away. Silence then another, then another, and finally the woman stood alone with Christ. Behold, the Knight, see the chivalry! Christ says, "Go and sin no more."

Jesus sees but one standard for man and women. Some people think there are two, but I tell you that there are no double standards in the court room of Almighty God. God is a Knight. He is the Gentleman of the universe. You and I are in the hands of a God of the kindly heart.

Why has woman come to the front since the time of Christ, from a plaything she came up, up, until today she is in her place in the home, church, state? She is no longer a toy. She is a companion, an equal of man.

Nations are coming to the front. You can't hold them back. God is a Knight. They are his nations and he will stand by the weak. The Anglo-Saxon race cannot hold back the brown race. India will come out, Egypt will, and so will all other nations. God will bring them out and up. There is no yellow peril unless the white race causes it. Don't despise the Oriental. He is one of God's people. If you despise him God will stand by him. The negro is coming up. God is with him, he is one of God's children.

The minute you neglect any nation, race, people, or individuals you make a problem. We neglected the miners for years; cared not for their hours, hovels to live in, or wages. Neglect has made them a problem. We find they can cause untold suffering in our land. A mother neglects her baby. He becomes a problem, the neglect is great, he becomes a community problem, and maybe a state problem.

God will stand by His people. That's what gives us comfort. God will never forsake those who stand with him. He takes us all just as we are if we come to him.

The service was in charge of Erwin Hill, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A. The Scripture reading and prayer was by Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, pastor of the United Congregational church.

SPENT $21,438,182 IN PAST YEAR FOR SCHOOLS

Expenditures for public schools in Connecticut aggregated $21,438,182.09 in the past fiscal year, it was shown by a financial statement completed at the state board of education. This figure was an increase of $438,843.90 over the total spent on education in the state in the previous year, and $5,763,616.99 over the expenditures for the same purpose in the year ended June 30, 1920.

The expenditures of the school authorities in all towns and cities for education exceeded their receipts by $2,071,172.93 during the past year, and loans aggregating $2,291,376.13 were made. Of $19,367,009.18, received by local educational authorities for public schools, $17,295,646.18 was from town and district moneys, $1,536,555.03 from the state in the form of grants to towns and $283,814.66 from tuition fees $21,593.69 from voluntary contributions and $338,889.59 from other sources. Loans aggregating $2,291,376.14 were made by towns.

For current expenses of public schools in all municipalities $18,017,463.18 was reported during the past year, as against $16,727,884.60 in the year ended June 30, 1921 and $13,648,025.47 in the previous year.

Although administration expenses increased, about $92,000 less was paid in salaries during the past year than in 1921, the aggregate of administration expenses being $15,927,117.59, as compared to $15,718,922.68 in the previous year.

For new grounds and buildings $2,-579,028.24 was spent, which was over $300,000 less than such expenditures in 1921. New equipment cost $306,146.54 last year.

The total indebtedness of Connecticut towns on account of schools at the present date, is $15,248,126. A year ago it was $14,717,277.36, and two years ago, $12,465,218.46.

$79.26 Cost Per Pupil

According to the statement, $41.33 was paid last year for each child enumerated and $79.26 for each child in average attendance. In the fiscal year ended in 1922 $76.83 was paid for each child in average attendance, and in 1921, $64.53.

There was an increase of about $240,000 in three years in the expenditures for text books and supplies used in the public schools of Connecticut. The cost of this item was $15,586.55 last year. In wages of janitors and engineers $984,578 was paid.

In the past three years, the money spent for the promotion of health in the schools has been early doubled, jumping from $65,497.75 spent by all the towns in 1920 to $125,64[illegible].56 last year.

The cost of tuition has gone up correspondingly. Towns which were obliged to send pupils to other towns for education paid $286,055.51 in tuition fees last year. They paid $260,-958.63 in tuition two years ago.

WANT LARGER APPROPRIATION FOR ANTI-MOSQUITO WORK

The claim that Connecticut has neglected its anti-mosquito work while other states have expanded it and the demand that Connecticut slightly revise its existing statutes and slightly increase its appropriation for mosquito extermination, were made this week at a hearing before the committee on public health and safety of the general assembly.

The bills presented by Senator John Brooks of Torrington, senate bills 21 and 222, were discussed. These provide that the State Agricultural Experiment station shall have state-wide authority to treat any mosquito infected area in the state. Another bill providing for a moderate appropriation to renew the anti-mosquito work which was begun some fifteen years ago, is before the appropriations committee.

Dr. Elnas Pratt of Torrington, president of the Connecticut Public Health association presented resolutions signed by 35 Connecticut health and civic organizations, representing 20,000 persons who urge the passage of the proposed legislation.

Dr. Edward H. Jenkins, director of the state agricultural experiment station, said that about one-third of the coastal marshes has been drained, affording relief from mosquitoes, but that the undrained areas vitiate the work already done. He quoted the example of New Jersey to show that a state can become rid of mosquitoes, increase the health and comfort of its residents, and at the same time add hundreds of thousands of dollars available for state and local taxation. He added mosquitoes from the salt marshes emigrate at least 20 miles inland.

Dr. W. E. Britton, state entomologist, said that mosquitoes from the salt marshes had been found as far inland as Middletown. He stated that the present anti-mosquito of the state is spasmodic and scattered and that there is much need for more.

Dr. Stanley Osborn, state commissioner of health, disclosed the spread of malaria, due solely to mosquitoes the past four years. In 1919 only eighty cases and four deaths from malaria. He advocated the anti-mosquito expansion as a health measure.

Mrs. George H. Stoughton of Hartford, president of the State Federation of Women's clubs, told of the intense feeling of the organization at the existing mosquito conditions and the demand which was made by local clubs and by the state executive committee that the wish for expanded anti-mosquito activity be presented to the general assembly during the present session. She told of her own sufferings from the attacks of malarial mosquitoes and said that she believed that there were many cases of the disease which were never reported.

Representing the Connecticut League of Women Voters Mrs. Aaron Burnett of Greenwich said that eight years ago that community was visited with a plague of mosquitoes which, it was feared, would ruin town land values because of the effect of the epidemic upon the health of Greenwich. She said that about $20,000 was raised and that mosquitoes were practically exterminated. This has proved a very economical measure for the town, she said because malaria has been wiped out, but from surrounding towns swarms of the insects still threaten the community which has cleaned itself up at great expense. She felt that the problem was state-wide in extent and needed state-wide rules and appropriations.

MONTREAL CLUE FOR MISSING PLAINFIELD GIRL

White police immigration officers and federal agents of Canada and the United States combed the North American continent for 15-year-old Ethel Mildred Borden, of Plainfield, Conn., abducted in September 1921, from a convent by a railroad man named Ernest Benjamin Saunders, of Norwich, Conn., the child her abductor, who said he was her brother, and the abductor's wife, were under care of the Salvation Army in Montreal in January, 1922, and police missed them by two days only.

Recollections of the man and the girl on Thursday to Montreal Salvation Army workers to whom the abductor appealed for aid in getting his stained clothes from an alleged disorderly house, to Recorder Sample before whom the pair were taken by the Salvation Army workers, and to Constable Higginbotham, who was ordered by the court to go to the alleged resort. He did so, found the girl had nothing but an old coat and sweater there. Inmates of the house, said it was entirely respectable maid they had found the girl in the street hungry and crying.

Insistence by the man that the girl stay with him and his wife in Notre Dame street, resulted in Salvation Army officers visiting there. They found 'Barbara Saunders' sleeping in an alcove under unsatisfactory conditions. Groceries were given the family which scattered, it being said the man and woman had quarrelled, and he kept the "maid" and went away together.

Two days later a juvenile court detective showed Adjutant Manson a photograph of a little girl he was seeking. It was identified Ethel Mildred Borden, Plainfield, Conn., and a warrant for the arrest of Barbara Saunders.

COMFORT CIRCLE CELEBRATES ITS SILVER ANNIVERSARY

Comfort Circle of the Kings' Daughters celebrated their twenty-fifth birthday Thursday afternoon with a party at the home of Mrs. D. W. Brown of 3 Wightman avenue. There were present twenty-three members and eight visitors. After the business meeting, games, music and readings were enjoyed. Over $35 was realized from the shabby and birthday boxes, and the circle voted from this amount $20 to the Salvation Army, $5 to the Traveler's Aid, $5 to the Boy Scouts and $5 to the Manassas Botome Home.

A supper of cold meats, salads, rolls, ice cream, cake and coffee was served by the hostess. A large birthday cake decorated with twenty-five candles graced the table. At the close of the supper a rising vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. Brown for her generous hospitality.

FIRST PRIZE ESSAY IN COMMERCE CHAMBER CONTEST

In the essay prize contest carried out by the chamber of commerce for pupils of the eight grades in the Norwich schools, the first prize of $10 has been unanimously awarded to Grace Marshall Cory of Broadway school, with second and third prizes amounting to $7.50, divided equally between Gertrude Weinstein of Elizabeth street school and Loretta Higgins of St. Mary's parochial school. Each will receive $4.75.

The essays were all written upon the subject, Why Is Norwich An Industrial City? Each pupil was given a number by the secretary of the chamber of commerce and the judges awarded their decision on the numbered papers, having no knowledge whatever as to the identity of the writers of the essay. Paper No. 3 was given first prize and the other prizes divided between No. 2 and No. 6.

The judges were the teachers of the English department of the Norwich Academy. The following pupils entered the contest: Mary Stearns, Greeneville Grammar school; Gertrude Weinstein, Elizabeth street school; Grace Marshall Cory, Broadway school; Louise Avery, West Town Street school; Loretta T. Higgins, St. Mary's school; Andrea Legarde, Wequonnoc school; Ruth Linehan, St. Patrick's school.

First Prize Essay.

The following was the essay winning first prize:

I. Introduction. (a) Early Settlement and Size. (b) Reason for Settling. (c) Southward Movement. II. Situation and Transportation Facilities. III. Industries. (a) Important or Chief. (b) Minor Ores. IV. Some Reasons for Settling in Business in Norwich. V. Work of the Chamber of Commerce. VI. Living Facilities Offered. VII. Boost Norwich.

Early in the year 1659, the Reverent James Fitch and Major John Mason with thirty-five men from the Saybrook colony took steps to purchase a tract of land containing 81 square acres from Uncas, chief of the Mohegans. On June 6, 1659, they made this purchase, paying only seventy pounds. As this land was purchased for the purpose of agriculture, those early settlers little know what an ideal location they had chosen.

In the first place they settled around the Norwich Town Green, but finding it too far away from the "landing," they made a southern movement towards the Thames. Mills and factories soon sprang up, increasing the population greatly.

Norwich is situated at the head of the Thames river and at the junction of the Yantic and Shetucket rivers which afford the city fine water power and transportation facilities. It is also situated on the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad which has nine miles of yard and twenty-seven private and nine public delivery yards; and the Central Vermont railroad which has two miles of yard and fifteen sidings. Norwich also has a Thames river passenger and freight line, besides a large line bringing coal into the city. We also have fine trolley transportation and excellent macadam roads which connect us with many large cities giving us an extra fine chance to export and import manufactured products.

Cotton, woolen, worsted and silk goods take the lead in these products. In the cotton manufacture we employ over three thousand people, in the woolen over two thousand and in the silk and velvet over two thousand. We also have the largest branch of the United States Finishing Company in our boundaries.

There are over one hundred industries established here. A few of the products of these are Thermos bottles, fire extinguishers, paper for the manufacture of Ivory PyraMn, firearms, cutlery, boilers and stoves, cordage, shoes, machinery, motors, paper boxes, box board, and many others including most anything from food to smokes to weapons.

The prominent business men were once asked why he located in Norwich and he said (1) that within twelve hours ride he could distribute his goods in parts of sixteen different states among thirty-eight million people, (2) it had the cheapest hydro-electric power service in all New England, and it had raw and water owned by the city, therefore making it a cheap place to live in, and (3) it had plenty of available labor, few labor troubles and favorable freight rates both by rail and water.

The chamber of commerce also has a good deal to do with bringing industries to this comunity. Through the generosity of the citizens and with the help of this organization the erection of the new Elizabeth street school, and the Young Men's Christian Association building have been possible. It is now contemplating the building of an addition to the Norwich Free Academy.

Norwich has recreation in the shape of playgrounds, parks, theatres, and others, the best of schools and all kinds of churches.

Surely Norwich is the coming city of the east, and we must say that every day, in every way, Norwich is growing larger and larger, greater and greater and better and better." Boost Norwich all you can for we certainly want to be the finest city of our size.

PROF. ESTEN TO SPEAK BEFORE ILLINOIS FARMERS

Professor W. M. Esten at the head of the department of bacteriology at the Connecticut Agricultural college, is one of the speakers this week at the twenty-eighth annual convention of the Farmers' Institute of Illinois at Belleville, Ill. It will be remembered by many Norwich people that Professor Esten lectured before New London County Pomona grange in Norwich about one year ago. His lecture this week at Belleville is entitled, "Seven Years' Farming With Bacteria." In addition to his classroom and laboratory work at the college Professor Esten has spent seven years of research proving that bacteria are the indispensible agents in successful crop growing, also that so-called worn-out land cannot be restored except the beneficient labors of bacteria of known lineage be invoked. Professor Esten not only knows the names of the bacteria that have restored an abandoned and useless three-acre field to what is now called Independent Fertility Field at the college at Storrs, but he also knows the number of millions of bacteria swarming in every teaspoonful of soil in the top seven inches of Independent Fertility Field. With Professor Esten bacteria made happy in the land spells successful farming. He makes his bacteria happy by the free use of plain ground limestone and raw rock phosphate as the chief mineral agents.

On the programme with Professor Esten is Professor Lester Card, late of the poultry department at Storrs, now of the faculty if the University of Illinois. Another notable speaker is Frank I. Mann, a long time extensive practical farmer in Illinois who has become almost renowned for his successful farming with bacteria. It is possible that Professor Esten will visit the University of Illinois at Urbana before returning to his post at Storrs.

SPARKS STARTED FIRE ON COUNTY HOME ROOF

Fire on the roof of the New London County Home on Smith avenue Thursday morning caused a damage of about $50 but had it not been for the coolness of Miss Gibson, matron of the home, in using the sprinkler to stop the flames, the damage would have been greater.

Chief Stanton received a call about 11.45 o'clock from Miss Gibson that the home was on fire, and he immediately left for there with the deputy chief, and Squad A, sending Engine No. 3 of Greeneville on ahead.

The fire was discovered by a passerby and the telephone call sent in. Seeking an extinguisher the passerby played it on the flames on the roof, and Miss Gibson taking a second extinguisher fought the fire from the inside of the building. They were doing valiant work to check the fire when the firemen arrived and went to work. The firemen had to chop away a section of the roof to end the fire.

Chief Stanton after investigating found that some of the older boys in the home were cleaning the cellar and had emptied some light materials into the heater. Sparks landing on the roof started the shingles and the fire resulted. The roof was badly in need of repair, the shingles being old and bone-dry, this aiding in the start of the blaze. The roof is to be repaired to prevent further chance of a fire. Chief Stanton spoke in praise of the work of Miss Gibson in checking the fire, for without her work and that of the passerby the fire would without doubt been of much larger proportions.

Delegate to Convention.

Joseph E. Burns of the clerical force of the Norwich post office was the delegate from this city to the state convention of the Connecticut branch, United National Association of Post Office Clerks at New Haven Thursday.

SEE YOU THE WOMAN YOU WERE MEANT TO BE?

Every woman was meant to be healthy, happy and fill her sphere in life to the best of her ability. But alas, how few have the health or physical endurance to live up to their ideals! Over-ambitious, many of them develop nervousness, irritability, headaches, backaches, irregularities, and other more serious ailments, which retard their progress in life. Women in this condition should turn to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. A root and herb medicine which has been proven to benefit 98 out of every 100 women who try it. Let Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound make you well and strong, and the woman you were meant to be.

When you meet anybody the first thing they see is your hat. No man can afford not to wear a STYLISH NEW HAT and we have just the hat you need.

SETTLEMENT IS REACHED IN ARCHITECTS SUIT

The suit of George E. Pitcher, civil engineer and architect of this city, against the National Polish Catholic Church of the Divine Providence, trial which was started here Wednesday afternoon before Judge Allyn L. Brown in the superior court, was settled for $350 about noon Thursday.

Mr. Pitcher sued the church for a fee of $1,100 for services in preparing two sets of plans for the church edifice which was built on Golden street, although other plans than this were used.

In the court on Thursday morning, testimony as to the value of work that had been done by Mr. Pitcher was given by M. B. Payne of New London, E. A. Cudworth and L. P. Palmer of this city, after which the attorneys and principals discussed terms of settlement and an agreement was reached to settle for $350.

Police Court Cases.

A Providence man was before the police court Thursday morning, and as it was Washington's birthday, he told the truth, and was put on probation for six months and will try to stay sober during that time. J. Rembiski paid $5 for carrying a concealed weapon which was a small automatic pistol. A breach of the peace case was nolled and the accused found free of guilt.

With five knights of the road lodged at the station Wednesday night the total is 96 for the month. Twenty people are guests of Jailer Muth for long or short periods.

Scouts Distributed Smokes.

Rev. Rocco J. Guerriero and John Corcoran with a detail of scouts from Troops Nos. 5 and 10, went to the Norwich State Hospital Thursday afternoon and distributed smokes among the 94 ex-service men in that institution. The gifts were greatly appreciated by the men, who praised the scouts for their good turn.

[illegible] Wolf [illegible] recently on [illegible] on party of three ta[illegible] name at No. 245 Lewis[illegible] Avenue.

The second burglary in the business section of this city since New Years, occurred early Friday morning when for the second time the Murray Boston Store dry goods store was entered. Apparently the intruders were the same who made the break on the previous occasion and as before they took none of the contents of the seven or more cash registers on the three floors of the store. They did not trouble themselves with the pennies.

None of the firm would say little or how much money was taken or if any merchandise was missing. The police refused to state what their opinion on the matter was and if they had any clues.

Later on during the day one of the firm members ventured to say that an investigation had brought out the fact that two or probably more persons were connected with the robbery.

When the janitor arrived at the building at 7 o'clock Friday morning he found a window in the rear of the store of the street floor broken and the two iron bars which were set in the window casing on the inside were pushed to one side.

Strips of window casing on both sides of the window were broken off which disclosed that considerable force had been exerted to pry away the bars. The iron bars above and below those removed were bent to allow room for the burglar to enter. The window in question is situated in the rear of the building next to the alleyway between the Murray and Alling blocks and the men had to stand on a box while breaking in the window.

From the window the burglar dropped nine feet to the floor and made his exit by unlatching one of the side doors of the store.

The e were eleven marriages in the town of Windham during the month of January according to the returns filed at the office of Town Clerk Frank P. Epsten. Three were performed by Rev. John E. WESTERLY

Mr. and Mrs. Frank O. Barber of New London were callers in Westerly Friday.

Mrs. Ladora Keator of Watch Hill, who is spending the winter in Florida, and who has been reported quite ill, is slowly recovering.

Foster Jagger, for many years a resident of Westerly, and a foreman in the plant of the C. B. Cottrell Co. on Mechanic street, died Friday morning at his home on Beach street. Mr. Jagger was born in England and came to this country when a child. He was employed at the Cottrell plant for 56 years. He is survived by his wife and one son, Carroll C. Jagger, of Cape Charles, Va., and two daughters, Mrs. Linden S. Coppins and Mrs. Grover C. King, both of Westerly.

Rev. D. A. Sullivan, curate of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, High street, who has been at Narragansett Pier, taking charge of the church there in the absence of Father Bartley of the Pier, has returned to his duties in Westerly.

At the Broad Street Christian church next Monday evening Harvey C. Perry will talk on his experiences in relief work in Europe.

Dr. A. H. Spicer, Sr., for 60 years actively engaged in his profession as a dentist in Westerly, when not engaged in world travels, has just celebrated his 85th birthday aboard the S. S. Orca. Dr. Spicer has made 50 transatlantic passages to distant lands and in 1910 went around the world. In 1901 he sailed to the West Indies and Panama and witnessed the aftermath of the volcanic eruption at Martinique. In 1904 he repeated this trip. In 1908 he went to Egypt, visited Jerusalem and Palestine, through the Aegean to the isles of Greece, the Dardanelles and Constantinople. In 1910 he witnessed the Passion Play at Bavaria. Dr. Spicer has taken a long sea voyage nearly every year since 1901. He is the youngest of a family of 11, being the son of Joseph and Content Potter Spicer. Dr. Spicer was the youngest of 28 grandchildren, all the children being born during his grandmother's lifetime. Dr. Spicer says he was seasick only once, and then on the Old Bermudian.

Mrs. J. H. Davies and daughter Margaret of Watch Hill road have returned from Burdett, N. Y.

COLCHESTER

There was a large attendance at the entertainment in Grange hall Wednesday evening under the auspices of Bacon Academy. How To Use Vicks VapoRub For Deep Grippy Colds

First, It Is Very Important That a Thorough Rubefacient Or Counter-Irritant Effect Be Produced on the Surface of the Skin Around the Lungs.

THEN TREAT WITH VICKS

Deep, grippy colds, frequently leading to pneumonia, have been unusually prevalent this winter. In some sections they are called influenza but no so much milder than the influenza cases during the first epidemic that health authorities have not agreed as to whether these cases are all due to the same infection, or even whether there has been any real influenza.

"Flu" Germ Discovered.

New light has been thrown upon these matters by the announcement by Dr. Simon Flexner director of the Rockefeller Institute of Medical Research, that the germ of influenza has been identified. The Institute staff, then experiments on rabbits, has found that a germ no larger than is in health a common inhabitant of the nose and throat that causes bronchitis and pneumonia.

Dr. Flexner also says "Recent reports received from abroad and from points in the United States indicate that a secondary wave of epidemic influenza is relatively mild in character, is passing over parts of Europe and America."

The Danger Is From Pneumonia.

It then [illegible] advises anybody who develops [illegible] cough, cold in the head or sore throat to take to bed and work out if at all possible with [illegible] to forestall pneumonia. While [illegible] something the [illegible] of the germs, for this purpose there is nothing like a rubefacient or counter-irritant, as witness the use of hot mustard poultices and plasters in grandmother's days. This counter-irritant reduces the congestion deep down from the congested portion the nearer the irritant is applied the greater the chance of warding off the more serious of pneumonia is greatly lessened.

Quick Counter-Irritant Needed.

The value of the counter-irritant [illegible] is [illegible] and if it is produced in the [illegible] way [illegible] has its [illegible] mustard onion poultices, turpentine stupes, mustard plasters and [illegible] of various kinds all are good.

A very simple method is to apply [illegible] wring out in hot water, as hot as the patient can stand. This not only reddens the skin quickly, but also opens the pores so that more Vicks can be absorbed. Some, however, prefer to use a [illegible] mustard plaster, as the [illegible] lasts longer.

Parts To Be Treated.

Whatever method is used, the application should be made over the throat and chest until the skin is thoroughly reddened. In very deep cold, the sides and especially the back from the middle of the shoulder blades [illegible] above the waist, should also be treated.

The patient should be given a good vaporizing and, if convenient, a hot mustard footbath for ten minutes—one tablespoon of mustard to a gallon of water.

Rub Vicks In. Then Spread On.

After the skin is thoroughly reddened, it should be dried lightly and immediately the patient should be given a quick massage with Vicks all over the parts. Continue this for five minutes. This increases the counter-irritant effect. Then apply Vicks thickly over all the parts that is spread it on as you would a poultice—about one-sixteenth of an inch thick or more—and cover with two thickness of hot flannel cloths.

Vicks Acts In Two Ways.

Thus applied Vicks has a double action. First, Vicks is so made that the body heat gradually releases the ingredients in the form of vapors. The more Vicks applied, the stronger will be the vapors and the longer these vapors will last. The night clothing should always be loose around the neck and the bed clothes arranged in the form of a funnel. These vapors being lighter than air, rise up from the chest and, if the bed clothing is properly arranged, pass by the nose and mouth and are thus inhaled with each breath, carrying the medication directly thru the air passages to the lungs.

Repeat From the Beginning.

When the vapors begin to lose their strength, fresh Vicks should be applied over the throat and chest. This to keep up the continuous stream of vapor. When the redness of the skin dies out, all the Vicks remaining should be wiped off and the entire treatment repeated. That is, the hot wet towels or mustard plasters should be used until the skin is again thoroughly reddened, then massage with Vicks, spread on thickly and cover with hot flannels, just as previously done.

When the Patient Chokes Up.

Sometimes when the patient is badly choked up, the vapors from the application on the chest are not sufficient to make the breathing easier. In these cases drop a tablespoonful of Vicks into a kettle of boiling water and allow the patient to inhale the warm steam and vapors combined for about 10 minutes. Do this several times a day if needed. Keep the vapors boiling and put in additional Vicks whenever the vapors decrease. Put a sheet over the patient and the tea-kettle, making a kind of a tent.

Must Be Used Freely.

This is vigorous treatment, but to check congestion requires vigorous measures. Vicks must be used freely to be effective. The cost of the treatment is insignificant compared with the results which are frequently obtained.

Does Not Take the Place of the Physician.

In all cases a physician should be called. These deep colds are too serious and have too many complications to rely entirely on any home medication. Vicks, however, does not interfere with any treatment that the doctor may prescribe. In addition the formula of Vicks is given on every circular, so there is no reason why any doctor should object to its use, except the fact that a few physicians do not care to use anything which is advertised directly to the public.

A Pharmacist's Discovery.

Vicks VapoRub is the discovery of a North Carolina pharmacist. From the back room of a little drug store its use has grown until today literally tens of millions of families are never without the familiar blue jar. It is their standby for all forms of cold troubles and, in addition, is useful for the many minor ailments of the home. It is particularly a boon to mothers with small children, because it is externally applied.

Over 17 million jars are used yearly in the United States alone.

MYSTIC

The North End Junior basketball team was defeated Wednesday evening by the Bulldogs by a score of 26 to 23. Last week the North End Juniors won out over the All Stars who were then in the lead of the league. The Bulldogs were credited with 100 points for sportsmanship reliability and winning the game, and the North End Juniors were awarded 70 points for sportsmanship and reliability.

Fine Adventure in Kindred of the Dust —Coming to the Strand.

Peter B. Kyne, the famous novelist, is the author of Kindred of the Dust, an Associated First National attraction, produced by R. A. Walsh, which is scheduled to begin a three-day engagement at the Strand theatre.

The story appeared originally in the Saturday Evening Post and then was issued in book form, many editions of which have been sold. Its popularity and universality for filming caused Producer Walsh to purchase the motion picture rights to it.

One of the strongest casts ever assembled for a single picture appears the screen including Miss Miriam Cooper, the talented actress whose work in The Gulf and Serenade, other recent First National productions, will be well remembered; Ralph Graves, Lionel Belmore, Dwegia Bosseron, Maryland Morse, Percy Waters, W. J. Ferguson, Caroline Barklin, Pat Rooney, John Hendrican and Peggy Guerin.

The story of Pegeen Mike, part of Nan O'Sawdust Pile, a little maid to whom the future [illegible] spelled but who, through many vicissitudes, manages to find the happiness for which her starving soul was hourly craving.

As Donald McKaye son of the owner of the largest sawmill in the northwest Conniss gives a particularly effective characterization to the role, and because of his work in this picture stardom is predicted for him.

Breed Theatre.

When the news was first published that Peg o' My Heart, J. Hartley Manners' famous stage success, would be picturized by Metro with Laurette Taylor making her screen debut in the role which has endeared her to hundreds of thousands of theatregoers, delight was expressed everywhere. Drama lovers everywhere were pleased that the famous role should receive additional circulation beyond the limitation of the stage.

Under the direction of King Vidor, with a supporting cast of high abilities, and with Mildred the canine actress with the [illegible] name, playing [illegible] featured part, Laurette Taylor has finished her work before the camera. The result, advance reports indicate, is a photoplay even more [illegible] than the stage play. Residents of Norwich will be enabled to enjoy this radiant, heart-stirring, whimsical performance Sunday, when it comes to the Breed theatre for four days.

This story of Peg and Jerry, of England and Ireland, and the O'Connells and Chichesters and Kingsworths has had 5,000 stage performances in the United States. Nor has its popularity been limited to this country. England, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, India, Hawaii, Italy, Czecho-Slovakia and Paris have also seen and enjoyed it. The production of the photoplay by Metro enables all these Peg fans to see the original Peg portray the role in addition to introducing this pictured bit of loveliness and charm to those to whom it has been only a name.

The players supporting Miss Taylor in the immortalizing of Peg on the screen were selected with a view of making each characterization a living portrayal, authentic and interesting. The cast includes Mahlon Hamilton, Russell Simpson, Ethel Grey Terry, Nigel Barrie, Lionel Belmore, Vera Lewis, Sylvia Ashley, Irving B. R. Graves, Aileen O'Malley and Fred Huntley.

Other features on the bill include Topics of the Day and an Educational comedy.

TUNNEY GIVEN JUDGES DECISION OVER GREB; DECISION A SURPRISE

New York, Feb. 23.—Gene Tunney, idol of Greenwich Village, regained the American light heavyweight championship tonight when he gained the judge's decision over Harry Greb, of Pittsburgh, the titleholder, in a 15-round contest at Madison Square Garden tonight.

The decision, despite Tunney's popularity among the great majority of fans, came as a surprise to those at the ringside who had given Greb a wide margin on points in most of the rounds.

Tunney was baffled by Greb's whirlwind style of attack throughout the early part of the bout. He finished the last two rounds, however, with the only effective aggressiveness he had shown during the champion once with a hard right smash to the jaw. The closing rally of the challenger, plus consideration probably given to alleged foul holding tactics employed by Greb in several rounds, was believed to have swayed the judges' verdict, however unsatisfactory it was to a larger portion of the crowd.

Greb's Frequent Blows Not Tellings

While Greb landed at least three blows to one for his rival, few of them did serious damage. Tunney's body attack, especially in the 14th round at times stopped Greb's rushes, but the Pittsburgher blocked most of the New Yorker's blows. Tactics used by Greb, which his opponent's handlers claimed were unfair, were the subject of a lengthy protest at the end of the bout. Referee Patsy Haley, was vigorous in warning Greb for holding in several rounds, going to the Pittsburgher's corner at the end of the 12th round to emphasize his warning.

The only round which Tunney earned decisively, in the opinion of ringside critics, was the 14th. He showed aggressiveness in the fourth, twelfth, fifteenth, but even in these and two or three rounds in the early part of the bout which were classed as even, Greb's forcing tactics gave him a substantial margin on points in the remaining rounds.

Tunney's dynamic restored to him the crown he lost to Greb in a 15-round bout at the Garden last May.

Haley's Explanation

Referee Patsy Haley declared that Greb's foul tactics including holding and butting influenced his verdict which he said gave to Tunney, despite the Pittsburgher's apparent margin on points.

"I warned Greb repeatedly after the first round," declared Haley, "and threatened to disqualify him in the 13th round after he had ignored my repeated admonitions."

"Greb's blows did not hurt me at any time and I think I proved my ability to stop his style of attack," the new champion said in his dressing room. "Greb's holding handicapped me some but he didn't gain much by his tactics. I was forced to complain to Referee Haley frequently but his warnings seemed to have little effect."

Greb Downcast

Downcast by his defeat, Greb was vehement in his criticism of the decision and declared that he did not feel that he had been given fair treatment. He denied that he fouled his opponent and asserted that Tunney appeared more anxious to hold and clinch than he did.

The Detail of Fight

Round one—The opening round was preceded by a prolonged conference over Greb's ring tactics, of which Tunney's supporters complained. The champion took the aggressive at the tap of the gong and cut loose with a flurry of rights and lefts to Tunney's head. They both mixed willingly but landed few telling blows.

Round two—Greb bewildered the challenger with his whirlwind attack. He rocked Tunney's head from side to side with a succession of rights and lefts. The challenger missed most of his attempts to land on his opponent.

Round three—Greb was cautioned by the referee for holding. He shot over several left jabs to the jaw and cuffed Tunney about the head as he danced in and out of the challenger's reach.

Round four—They mixed at a furious pace. Greb landing three blows to one, but Tunney twice shot in stinging lefts to the face. The challenger forced the fighting for the first time and drove Greb to a corner with a body attack. Greb's mouth was slightly cut and blood trickled from a scratch over Tunney's left eye. As a result of a mix up.

Round five—The champion bounded about in the opening rounds swinging both fists like flails, but Tunney seized an opening to shoot home a stiff right to the ribs. They were mixing at a fast pace as the bell closed the round.

Round six—Greb forced Tunney to ropes repeatedly and landed a hard right to the jaw without drawing a reply. Tunney jabbed lightly with his left and was absorbed a stiff punch to the ribs.

Round seven—Greb set the pace with a rushing attack to Tunney's head and body. He opened a slight cut over the challenger's eye and shook him with a series of rights and lefts to the jaw. Tunney seemed baffled by his rival's shifting tactics.

Round eight—Greb snapped the challenger's head back with several right swings. He cut loose with an all-like attack that drove Tunney to the ropes but was beset by the [illegible] that he was holding.

Round nine—Greb shot in a terrific blow to the body sending Tunney back on his heels, but was again cautioned for holding. Tunney ran into a flurry of blows as he tried to fight back and was severly punished by the champion as they mixed at close quarters. A fresh cut was opened under Tunney's eye during the melee.

Tenth round—Tunney upset the champion for a moment with one of the few successful attacks he has shown. The Pittsburgher came right back, however, and traded stiff blows to the body. Greb pummeled his opponent about the head and body, occasionally shooting in damaging rights to the chin and ribs.

Round eleven—[illegible]

Round twelve—Greb was admonished in emphatic terms for failure to break from a clinch by Referee Haley. Tunney's efforts met and only succeeded in angering the challenger still more. Greb [illegible] that landed with damaging effect. Tunney's attempts to retaliate were futile and in exchanges at close quarters the champion landed twice as often as the challenger.

Round fourteen—Tunney sent the champion to the ropes with a right that landed flush on the jaw. He followed this with a succession of [illegible] that drove Greb to the floor. Greb was up at the count of nine and [illegible] Tunney's punches.

Round fifteen—[illegible] strong as the final round opened and rocked Tunney with a succession of right uppercuts as they raised a speedy pace. Tunney punished the champion about the body, but was jolted by several smashes to the head in return.

SCHENECTADY MARKSMEN BEAT NORWICH CLUB

The Norwich Rifle club was defeated by the Schenectady Rifle and Revolver association of Schenectady, N. Y., in their match Wednesday night by the narrow margin of two points. This makes the second defeat that the local club has received from other clubs and shows that they are badly in need of practice. One night a week is not sufficient as practice for all of the clubs that Norwich has on its schedule are crack organizations and are shooting every day. That Norwich has several good shots is without question and with the proper amount of practice they could do good shooting. Dr. Frank Gobes was high man on the Norwich Rifle club while Wm. F. Jackowsky, a new member of the club made a good score also.

Following are the scores:

WAGNER SCORES KNOCKOUT OVER NEW BEDFORD LAD

(Special to The Bulletin)

Danielson, Conn., Feb. 23.—Three knockouts in a series of five hurricane battles featured the boxing exhibition at the town hall here, Friday night. More than 400 fans from all this section of eastern Connecticut, saw the mitting and were highly enthusiastic.

The star bout of the evening, scheduled to go ten rounds ended abruptly when Honey Gil Wagner of Hartford knocked out Jack Coffey of New Bedford in the first round. This was Wagner's second decisive victory here within a few weeks.

The semi-final also ended in a first round knockout, when Young Stanley Keeshel of New Bedford knocked out Terrible Terry of Danielson.

Willie Dowd of Central Village turned in the third knockout of the evening, putting [illegible] Young Chandler in the four rounds, while Tommy Woods of Plainfield and Young Ablor of Danielson went four fast rounds to a draw.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

On reading the Table Talk of Luther, J. A. Froude, the English historian, says: "One ceases to wonder how this single man could change the face of Europe." Great as the Germanic reformer was, many of his interpretations of scripture show the limitation of his judgment. It shows further that the literal translation of the Bible oftentimes leads to absurdity. Now Luther's adherence to the literal translation of scripture was a source of grief to many of his co-workers. For instance, Luther claimed that these words, "this is my body," meant that the sacramental elements were somehow the actual body and blood of our Lord. Zwingle, the Swiss reformer, much the greater scholar, tried to argue him out of that literalism, but here Luther was as immovable as he generally was when his mind was made up. "But, brother Martin," said Zwingle on one occasion, "when our Lord said 'I am the door,' and on another occasion 'I am the true vine,' can we take this literally?" And for once the great Martin was dazed.

Charles Lamb, the most touching of all modern essayists, has a chapter on A Complaint of the Decay of Beggars in the Metropolis. He says: "They were the oldest and most honorable form of pauperism * * * there was a dignity springing up from the very depth of their desolation; as to be naked is to be so much nearer to being a man, than to go in livery." He then goes on to cite the case of Dionysius, who fell from the kingship to the schoolmaster's desk. The fall was so great that it would require more than the skill of a Vandyke to lift him out of contempt, but Belisarius, once the invincible general, now old, blind, begging his bread from door to door, is a matter of compassionate admiration. It may be that this view of beggary is sentimental a[nd] poetic. We may be less sentimental but we are more practical: less poetic but certainly more humane in putting greater real value on thrift than beggary. The modern standpoint is to be preferred.

As a pure business proposition, is not farming in the United States in a serious condition? With farmers actually losing money on many of their crops, is it strange that there are so many abandoned farms in the country? In a current periodical, Senator Capper of Kansas has a striking article beginning with this sentence: "Seven cents for a carload of apples! Thousands of bushels of fine fruit rotting in the orchards! Highly productive fruit land idle because owners or renters cannot make a living on them!" We are told that these conditions prevailed in Michigan last fall. Not long ago the writer paid 25 cents for two quarts of good apples. At that rate, how much would he have paid for a carload? A quarter of a carload would have taken the whole of his year's salary. But the point is here: Who makes the money? Isn't it possible to protect both producer and consumer from the intermediary robbers?

The statement has been made, presumably by those who know, that an automobile deteriorates more from lying still than if it had been in use. Very likely the owners of automobiles find this to be a fact. The writer cannot vouch for the fact now of the most expensive vehicle he has thus far been able to run is a wheelbarrow given to him by a sympathetic neighbor. However, he can easily see the principle underlying the statement. It may be that disuse is not the most savage agent of destruction, but it is the most persistent. The wear and tear on icy roads worn deep with ruts may turn the trick just a little quicker but disuse will do the work just the same. The car that is used gets banged in spots but the one that is disused suffers from general paralysis. This is only going in new language the old story of "wearing out and rusting out." Here is a principle that applies to everything usable. You get some fun out of a machine that wears out; but not a bit from one that rusts out.

The recent destruction of the big Armour plant in Omaha simply emphasizes the fact that losses in this country from fires every year are simply staggering. The destruction of property by fire is always a dead loss. If the destroyed property is uninsured then the loss falls upon the owner; if it is insured then it is the insurance company or companies that have to foot the loss. In reporting a fire the statement that the burned property was "fully covered by insurance" sometimes sounds as though no loss had been involved. But this is never the case, particularly when such property is covered by every dollar of it. Strangely enough, in this country, where there is more applied science than in any other civilized nation, the percentage of fire is much the largest. In France and Germany the fire losses are comparatively very small, largely due to the fact that combustible material is not allowed to accumulate.

Do we fully realize the inherent strength of natural forces or molecular power as the scientists call it? It escapes our notice because it works noiselessly, we being so apt to rate the potency of forces by the noise they make. Prof. Tyndall once said: "I have seen the mighty avalanche sliding down the steep sides of the Alps, crushing to atoms everything lying in its pathway; but the natural force to convert one drop of water into steam is sufficient to gather up the broken fragments of the largest stone avalanche I ever saw and pitch it to twice the heights from which it fell." Thus speaks a great scientist both from observation and experiment. The burst water pipe, the dislodged boulder, the uplifted sidewalk and the bulging wall tell the power of the ice king. But a mightier war lord is gathering his forces to fight him. Before Lent is over, Crown Prince Sunshine will come and conquer.

Among the most talented and consecrated bodies the idea persists that we are facing a world crisis. At a recent meeting of the Hartford Ministers' association this statement was put forth with no uncertain sound: "Another world war is possible. Some say it is being prepared. If it should come it would be destructive on a scale hitherto unknown. It might compass the utter collapse of modern civilization." That the present outlook in Europe is exceedingly dark is indisputable. Even a blind man can see that. To the writer, however, it seems that one extremely important fact is being overlooked, and that is, Europe at present is extremely poor. Sections of it, as in Austria, are in abject squalor. In these days it takes money, and a good deal of it, to fight. Where will Europe get the money to carry on another war? With credit gone, loans will not be forthcoming.

Ere these words are read "The Father of His Country" will again have been uppermost in our minds and hearts. There are some things in this world too big to be forgotten. Once seen, they are seen forever. If one has ever gazed on the Great Stone Face in Franconia Notch, the impression will be lasting. Washington is as much a part of the United States as Niagara falls or the Rocky mountains. The plain, nightly shaft that adorns the bank of the Potomac is a logical expression of his endurance. We can hardly conceive of the day when history will forget him. As long as legislation shall function in the capitol, and the executive in the White House; as long as the United States of America shall be by the grace of God and the consent of the governed a republic; as long as free schools, free churches and free men shall exist on this continent will the great name of Washington be honored.

INCOME TAX FACTS

Charitable Taxation

Charitable contributions, an allowable deduction, constitute a considerable item in the income-tax returns of many taxpayers. In computing net income a taxpayer may deduct from gross income contributions or gifts made during the taxable year for exclusively public purposes to the United States any State or Territory, any political subdivision thereof (city, town, county, or hamlet, or the District of Columbia. Other allowable contributions are those made to any corporation or community chest, fund or foundation operated and organized exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, literary, or educational purposes, including post of the American Legion or women's auxiliary units of such posts, or for the prevention of cruelty to children or animals, no part of the net earnings of which insures to the benefit of any private stockholder or individual; and also to the special fund for vocational rehabilitation. Such contributions are not allowed to an extent nor in excess of 15 per cent. of the taxpayer's net income, computed without the benefit of this deduction.

Gifts made directly to an individual are not deductible, but if made to an organization of the ind described may be deducted even though the organization distributes its funds among individual beneficiaries.

Deductions for contributions for political campaign purposes are expressly prohibited by Treasury regulations. In order to be allowable, contributions must be deducted for the year in which actually made. Promises to make future contributions should not be considered by the taxpayer.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

The throne of Monaco is now claimed by a meat salesman. He is George Frederick Grimaldi, proprietor of a meat stall in the famous Smithfield Market, in London, whose real title is the Marquis Grimaldi. Since the death of the late Prince of Monaco he has paid several visits to Monte Carlo, which is practically the whole of the tiny principality of Monaco, in an endeavor to establish his right to the throne. Grimaldi contends that the late ruler, Prince Albert, was not the legal heir and the College of Heralds, which has examined his claim agrees with this. The Grimaldi family has a history extending back for hundreds of years, and has had many ups and downs. One member of it, for instance, was a Duke of Spain, while another was a poor cabinetmaker in London.

LAST OFFICIAL LINCOLN LETTER FOUND

Rare old documents, long hidden in the midst of many bundles of ancient papers in the possession of the department of justice in Washington, have just been brought to light, in some instances for the first time in 100 years, through their accidental discovery during a search by Attorney General Daugherty of the department archives for some documents of a later date Mr. Daugherty, who is something of an antiquarian and historian as well as the nation's present chief law officer, at once began systematic investigation to determine what other papers of historic value might be found in unsuspected packages with a view to having them restored, collated and placed in some safe depository for all time.

The result of Mr. Daugherty's delving has been the discovery of a veritable treasure trove of old letters written by the early presidents, several opinions by the first attorney general and other documents on oddly shaped, torn and yellow bits of paper. All of them have an interesting bearing on the establishment of the young republic. These are now being carefully prepared by direction of the Attorney general for filing in the library of congress in the hands of experts under the general direction of the committee on the fine arts.

Four opinions written by the first attorney general of the United States—Edmund Randolph, 1789-1794, bear the earliest dates of the documents discovered, but many others of later date exceed these in historic interest. Among them are:

Last Official Lincoln Letter

An autograph letter by Abraham Lincoln dated April 13, 1865, and believed to be the last formal document written by him; a letter from Grant suggesting the dismissal as "an unfit person for the position" of an assistant attorney general who had written the President direct regarding a minor civil war claim; "memoranda" prepared by Thomas Jefferson, private citizen(after he had served two terms as president) advising President Madison to be cautious in employing soldiers to eject intruders from Indian lands in Georgia; letters seeking legal advice of the attorney general in the handwriting of Henry Clay, John Calhoun, Daniel Webster, as secretary of state; autograph letters and documents by James Monroe, both as secretary of state and later as president; a letter, among others, in the bold, firm hand of Andrew Jackson, disagreeing with an opinion by Attorney General Berrien; a letter from the United States attorney in Ohio asking what he should do about the indictments for Treason still pending (1815) against Aaron Burr; an opinion refusing John Jacob Astor permission to sail to a British North Pacific post after furs, and a score or more of other similar documents of intense historical interest and bearing on the early problems of the government in the process of formation.

Divorce Case Figured In Earliest Paper

The earliest known document in the possession of the department of justice, the attorney general discovered, is one bearing date of Sep. 20, 1788, or one year before the office of attorney general was created by an act of congress, Sept. 24, 1789. It is a fragment of a paper written in French and appears to be an affidavit affirming the marriage of one Joseph Beauchamp to Marie Corrine Deschamps, in 1782, and was offered in support of a claim to certain lands in what is now the state of Louisiana. The department of justice does not ordinarily concern itself with divorce cases, but curiously enough this oldest of all its records relates to a divorce proceeding as far as the hard claim goes, the names who were the parties to the suit is not revealed in the document.

The earliest records of the attorney general's office Mr. Daugherty said, include four opinions by Edmund Randolph, of Virginia, the first attorney general, who was around Sept. 26, 1789, by President Washington and served until January 2, 1794. The Great of the four documents dated Philadelphia 1794, the second and third are superiors and relate to questions of interest to states while in reply to questions asked by the secretary of the treasury. The others, dated respectively, Feb. 2, 1791, Oct. 1, 1791 and Nov. 7, 1791 are on the same general subject of outstanding loan certificates of the Federal government issued on account of the Revolutionary war. All are in a fair state of preservation. So far as known, Mr. Daugherty added, these are the only papers relating to the office of the first attorney general in existence and they will be given special care in being restored for deposit in the library of congress.

Wirt First to Attempt System in Filing

Few documents originated during the administration of William Bradford, second attorney general or of Charles Lee, third, have been found, and only fragmentary records occur until the time of William Wirt—1817-29 when the semblance of system in filing seems to have been attempted.

Not until " the attorney general's office," as it was called, was organized into the department of justice, in 1870, attorney general Daugherty explained, does there apear to have been any serious effort to keep indexed files of all transactions. Today the most modern filing methods are employed in the mails and file division, in charge of Arthur Robb since 1907.

Mr. Daugherty pointed out that old English spelling, such as "honour" and "favour" is adhered to in most of the earlier documents and the letters of this period generally concluded with the extravagant etiquette of the time. "Yr. mo. obdt. & humble srvt." is a favorite superscription, indicating that the writers, while particular to observe the amenites, were not unmindful of the time and labor to be spared by the use of abbreviations.

"Memoranda" by Thomas Jefferson

Among the documents bearing date of 1810, is a "memoranda for the president," written and signed by Thomas Jefferson. Jefferson had just completed two terms as president, Mr. Daugherty said, and appears in this document to be offering his successor, president Madison, some advice relating to the expulsion of intruders on the Cherokee and Chickasaw Indian lands in Georgia. Jefferson says that military force should be employed if necessary, but suggests that "a very discreet officer should be selected."

One of the earliest "admiralty" cases handled by an attorney general Mr. Daugherty found apears to have been the matter of a petition of one Francis C. Sarmiento, who, in 1811, asked to be discharged of liability for a surety bond of his son, James Sarmiento, who had assisted in fitting out "the schooner Brutus for an adventure at sea which proved disastrous." The petition recites that the father had made a voluntary assignment of all his property to help liquidate the loss, and now asked the president to exonerate him from further liability because, the petition states "he was involved in the bond under the influences of motives which may be appreciated by every parent," and naively adds that the petitioner is in any event, immune because he "now has the honour to hold from the King of Spain, the commission of secretary of legation to the Spanish embassy near the United States of America." The incomplete papers fail to reveal what recommendation was made by the attorney general.

Wives of Famous Men

Princess Hanska, Wife of Balzac

A love affair which began with a literary flirtation reached its climax 15 years later in a most extraordinary marriage was that between Honore Balzac, French master of the novel, and the Princess Hanska, beautiful young wife of an irate old man. The entire affair progressed under the most unusual circumstances and was a romance such as might be expected to occur in the life of a weaver of romances, but which so seldom does.

While travelling in Switzerland the young writer reached a little inn at precisely the moment that the young princess and her disagreeable old spouse were leaving. Struck by her beauty, though not knowing who she was, Balzac was leaning out of the window watching preparations for their departure.

Suddenly he was startled, pleasantly so, to be sure, by a sweet voice behind him. He turned to find the princess standing at his elbow. She had just vacated that room, she said, and had left a book on the window seat. It was her favorite book, she told him, and what was his delight when he picked it up and discovered to to be a pocket edition of one of his own volumes. He was further edified to hear that she never traveled without it, in fact, could not live without it. Before further conversation could be held she flew in response to her husband's call, but they had been together long enough to effect an exchange of addresses, and soon an interesting literary correspondence was under way.

For 15 years the author and the princess" wrote faithfully to each other, touching upon literary matters only. No open admission of a more personal interest was ever made by either, but both must have sensed it in the other. Finally, one day when the regular letter arrived at the Balzac menage instead of its usual contents, full of literary comment and possibly some shrewd criticism of his work, it contained a far more interesting bit of information.

The old prince had died, the fair lady told him, and had left his extensive estate and large fortune to her. In consequence, she observed naively, she felt she must repay him for such liberality, and the best way to express her gratitude, she thought, was to give him a successor. Would M. Balzac care to assume the responsibility? Nothing would please him more, it seemed, and shortly after they were married.

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

The One Commandment.

Thou shalt have no other Gods before me. Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven image, or any likeness of anything that is in heaven above, or that is in the earth beneath, or that is in the water under the earth. Exodus 20:3-4.

If men were true to this commandment, obedience to the remaining nine would follow naturally. It is because they are unsound in this that they break the others.

Philosophers are agreed that even the most primitive races of mankind reach out beyond the world of matter to a superior Being. It is natural for man to feel after God as it is for the ivy to feel after a support. Hunger and thirst drive him to seek after food, and there is a hunger of the soul that needs satisfying, too, man does not need to be commanded to worship, as there is not a race so high or so low in the scale of civilization but has some kind of a God. What he needs is to be directed aright. That is what the first commandment is for. Before we can worship intelligently, we must know what or whom to worship. God does not leave us in ignorance, you don't have to go to heathen lands today to find false Gods. America is full of them. Whatever you make most of is your God. Whatever you love more than God is your idol. Many a man's heart is like some Kirtland, so full of idols that there is hardly room to turn around. Rich and poor, learned and unlearned, all classes of men and women are guilty of this sin. A man may make a god of himself, of a child, of a mother, of some precious gift that God has bestowed upon him. He may forget the giver, and let his heart go out in adoration toward the gift.

Many make a god of pleasure; that is what their hearts are set on. If some old Greek or Roman came to life again and saw the senselessness of the world would they think that the worship of me had ceased.

Others take fashion as their god. They give their time and thought to dress. They fear what others will think of them. Do not let us flatter ourselves that all idolatry are in heathen countries.

With many it is the god of money. We haven't got through worshipping the golden calf yet. If a man will sell his principles for gold isn't he making it a god? If he trusts in his wealth to keep him from want and to supply his needs, are not riches his god? Many a man says, "Give me money and I will give you heaven. What care I for all the glories and treasures of heaven? Give me treasures here! I want to be a successful business man." How true are the words of Job: "If I have made gold my hope, or said to the fine gold, Thou art my confidence, if I rejoiced because my wealth was great, and because mine hand had begotten much, If I beheld the sun when it shined, or the moon walking in brightness; and my heart hath been secretly enticed, or my mouth hath kissed my hand: this were an iniquity to be punished by the judge: for I have denied the God above."

A certain woman came in contact with made gold her god. She seemingly lived for that purpose and she succeeded. She certainly died a very rich woman. But at what cost. Devoting herself almost the necessities of life, in her worship of the god of gold. And when at last called to leave it all it was no more to her than so much waste paper. When in the presence of death she mourned bitterly over her lost and wasted life, "Say not up for yourselves, treasures upon earth where moth and rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through and steal." If she had lived true to the words, "Thou shalt have no other Gods before me," she might have gone from this life with joy instead of with grief.

What the human heart ever been satisfied with these false gods? Can pleasure or riches fill the soul that is empty of God? What is there to look forward to? Nothing! Man's life is full of trouble; but when the billows of affliction and disappointment are rising and rolling over them, the have no God to call upon. "They shall cry unto the gods unto whom they offer incense: but they shall not save them at all in time of their trouble." Therefore I contend, "their rock is not as our rock. The road to heaven and the road to hell lead in different directions. Which master will you choose to follow? Be an out-and-out Christian, "Him only shalt thou serve."

Hasn't the church to contend with the same difficulty today? There are very few who in their hearts do not believe in God, but they will not give Him exclusive right of way. They are not ready to promise full allegiance to God alone. Many a professing Christian is a stumbling block because his worship is divided. On Sunday he worships God; on week days God has little or no place in his thoughts.

Our much revered Washington was, he led the armies of America he overcame the pestilent prejudice of "colony rights" by the nobility of his character and welded the discordant host into an army that sang as their stirring refrain, "No King but God."

I believe that when Christ has first place in our hearts (when the kingdom of God is first in everything—we shall have power, and we shall not have power until we give Him His rightful place. If we let something false god come in and steal our love away from the God of heaven, we shall have no peace or power. He died to save you. Trust Him with your whole heart. God will not accept a divided heart. He must be absolute monarch. There is no room in your heart for two masters. Christ said: No man can serve two masters: for either he will hate the one and love the other. Is all centered on Christ? Are we trusting Him alone? Are we ready to weigh in the scales and be weighed against the first commandment?

Stories That Recall Others

It Grew.

Miss X. has been working away from home for more than a year. Her uncle has written repeatedly, asking her to come home on a visit, telling her in every letter that her home coming would be the occasion for the killing of the fatted calf.

But still she hasn't gone. So in the last appeal he changed the tone of his letter. "If you don't come pretty soon," he wrote, "you won't get to eat veal, for that calf is growing up. And if you wait another year, you'll have to eat it as corned beef."

How to Find Him.

The other evening a husband of about six months standing went to "lodge." He promised his young wife he would be home at 11 o'clock. The hour arrived, but no husband. Twelve and still he did no arrive.

Then the young wife began to hunt for him. She took the lodge directory and began to call the houses of other lodge members to see if anyone knew where her husband was. The result was that several other wives began to wait up for or seek husbands.

While she was calling her husband slipped into the house. He stood a minute and listened to her calls. Then he said in an acid voice, "Call up police headquarters and the morgue. If you don't find me there decide I'm gone for good."

MRS. LINDQUIST TELLS WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Did for Her

Kansas City, Mo. — "I was left in a very serious condition after childbirth and no one thought I could ever be any better. Then came the 'Change of Life' and I was not prepared for what I had to suffer. I had to go to bed at times to be perfectly quiet as I could not even stoop down to pick anything from the floor. I did not suffer any pain, but I was decidedly nervous and could not sleep. For nearly two years I was this way, and the doctor was frank enough to tell me that he could do no more for me. Shortly after this I happened to see in a newspaper an advertisement of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. In a few days the medicine was in the house and I had begun its use and I took it regularly until I was well. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to others when I have the opportunity." — Mrs. MAY LINDQUIST, 2814 Independence Ave., Kansas City, Mo.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Social activities and weather conditions kept the people of Norwich busy in 1873. Taken as a whole the week was a quiet one for the residents of the city.

The incidents of the week as told in The Bulletin of that year were as follows:

Monday, February 17, 1873.—Saturday afternoon as the employes of C. B. Rogers' foundry were pouring the flasks, Thomas J. Comstock removed the weight from a flask that had just been poured and the moulten metal overflowed, a part of it running onto his boots. A wound of most painful nature was inflicted, the flesh being terribly burned from the knee to the foot. Mr. Comstock bore up bravely and was carried home smiling. He will be laid up for several months.

The old subject of the weather which had been held down for some time again popped up yesterday. Snow began to fall at early morning and continued until 2 o'clock in the afternoon when it turned to rain and sleet. Church services were poorly attended owing to the conditions, and streets become icy, extremely dangerous for people to walk upon.

Sedgwick Post, G. A. R. is to canvass the city to sell the Soldiers' Memorial volume. The post will receive the usual canvassers profits from the sale of the volumes.

Profits from the recent ball of the G. A. R. total over $120, and if there is a ready response by the people and many volumes are sold, the treasury of the post will receive another big boost.

Tuesday, February 18, 1873. — The meeting of the court of common council held Monday evening, considerable business was transacted. It was voted to purchase necessary furniture for the city government rooms in the new court house, and assessments and permits for new buildings were issued.

At last! The horse railroad has been opened and people in all parts of the city can sit back and be assured of service from this time forward.

The Norwich Water Power company has passed resolutions in relation to the death of Humphrey Almy, late one of the directors of the company.

The Rev. A. T. Rhea, recently of Taftville, has received a call to the pastorate of the Congregational church in Brighton, Me., at a salary of $1,500.

An eagle was caught Sunday on the premises of W. R. Austin.

The shoddy mill connected with the Thames Woolen mill at Montville owned by R. G. Hooper was destroyed by fire Monday evening. The loss was $15,000, no insurance. It was thought that the fire originated from a picker.

The Air line railroad bridge in Willimantic was given a test of 118 tons yesterday when a train passed over it.

Wednesday, February 19, 1873 — A local man who recently came from Gardner, Me., tells of a horrible experience of a man employed in a paper mill in that place. The man was examining machinery when his coat tails became caught in the rollers. He endeavored to draw off the coat, but in the attempt his hand was drawn into the roll. "I'll let it pull my arm off," he said to himself, but as the merciless machinery pulled at the stout muscles and tendons, he found that his arm would not pull out without breaking his neck. Coolly submitting to his fate, he turned his head to one side to save his nose, and through the space of about four inches he was drawn to his hips. He says that as the rolls passed over his head it made a noise like grinding coffee in a mill, and that's the last he remembered. The blood spurted from his eyes, ears, and mouth so as to go to the dryer, twelve feet distant. He was taken up for dead, but, strange to say, is now able to walk about.

A Hebron man who failed to pay his bill at a local place of business was before the police court Tuesday morning. He lacked money and went to jail for a time.

The Brennan's gave a unique entertainment last evening at Breed Hall. The entertainment drew many who were interested in laughing at Irish comedy, and wanted to view Irish scenery.

Company C of the City Guard gave a successful masquerade last evening at Franklin hall, many people attending and enjoying the dancing of the evening.

Thursday, February 20, 1873. — The house committee on appropriations agreed to the following yesterday, for fog signal at New London $4500; for completing lighthouse at Race Rock, Long Island Sound, in addition to former appropriations, $75,000; for a day Beacon at Blade ledge entrance to New London $5500.

A young man was up before the police court yesterday for disturbing the service at the Central Methodist Episcopal church, and was fined $1 and costs amount to $10.66.

The physician and friends of Miss Carrie Avery of Poquetanock who was so badly burned recently, have given up all hopes for her recovery.

In the worsted mill and the pistol shop at the Falls, steam engines have been placed as a resource in case the dam is carried away.

The prospect is favorable for the opening of the river within a few days. The warmer weather having softened the ice most great extent.

Capt. Comstock planning to build another boat to the place of the Hattie. The new pleasure boat will be about to carry forty persons and [illegible] built "for speed."

Women in Norwich in favor of suffrage for the fair sex, are rejoicing at the victory won in Maine, the first of the New England states, to heed their cry. The legislature of that state by a vote of 64 to 59 voted to submit the question of female suffrage to the voters.

Friday February 21, 1873 —The ecclesiastical council called by the first Congregational church convened at 10 o'clock yesterday morning, and examined the pastor elect, Rev. William C. Schofield. In the afternoon the installation services were held at the church. There were prominent speakers present from other cities, and all the ministers of the city extended a hand of fellowship to Rev. Schofield.

The tug Burnside reached the city yesterday and it is hoped that other boats would soon be able to get up the river.

The down train on the New London Northern road yesterday struck a hand car at Franklin station knocking the several laborers who were on it down a ten foot embankment. None of the men were hurt but the handcar was smashed considerably.

Mayor Greene, Capt Whaley, Elisha Slocum and others went fishing on Turner's pond at Turnerville, Wednesday and brought back a string of fish that weighed over sixty pounds. The heaviest pickerel weighed over four pounds.

Saturday February 22, 1873—The tug Burnside which made the trip up the river Thursday bringing the barge H. B. Miller with 250 tons of chestnut coal, consigned to E. Chappel & Co. They had some trouble in getting the barge to the dock, but they finally did so and then started down the river towing an empty barge. Suddenly it was seen that the Miller was sinking, and the tug whistled a warning to the men in the cabin of the barge. The crew barely escaped to the dock when the barge went down. Efforts are to be made to salvage the cargo of the barge. Insurance covers all the damage.

Dr. Levi Warren one of the foremost physicians of Norwich passed away last evening after an illness of many months. He had a wide practice and the news of his death brought sorrow to a wide circle of friends.

Norwich thought she had them, but here comes Willimantic boasting of a man who recently drank a quart of ale without stopping to take a breath.

The concluding social of the Waurgan S. F. E. Co. at Breed Hall last evening was poorly attended because of the storm. Those who did venture out enjoyed themselves.

LEFFINGWELL

In honor of his 76th birthday on Friday, February 17th a few friends gathered at the home of John Rathbone at Leffingwell to celebrate the event. Besides the host and his wife, those present were, Charles and John Howard Rathbone, Rev. P. S. Collins and wife of Leffingwell, and Earle L. Sparks of Norwich. An old fashioned country dinner was served which was heartily enjoyed by all. During the afternoon, Mr. Sparks, a talented student of Prof. Frank L. Farrell, rendered a number of piano solos in a most commendable manner. His playing was marked with much warmth and expression. The selections were:

Lullaby	Mozart
Oberon—Transcription	Dorn
Sing Me to Sleep	Greene
On Wings of Song	Mendelssohn-Lizst
Anitra's Dance, Pee Gynt-Suite 1, Op. 46, No. 3	Grieg
Crossing the Bar	Cowles
Serenade	Schubert-Liszt
Barcarolle—Tales of Hoffman	Offenbach-Englemann

At 4 o'clock the birthday cake was served, after which the guests departed for their homes, having enjoyed an afternoon long to be remembered. Mr. Rathbone was the recipient of a number of gifts and rememberances.

COLUMBIA

Mr. and Mrs. W. Clifford Robinson left town Monday for a trip to Florida.

Chester Lyman has returned from a visit with relatives at Lynn, Mass.

There is considerable sickness in town, many persons being afflicted with colds and minor complaints.

H. W. Porter attended the postal convention in Hartford on Wednesday and was very enthusiastic in speaking of the addresses made by Postmaster General Work and others.

Charles K. Hitchcock had his ice-house filled this week with fourteen inch ice. The ice at present is the finest of the season it being very clear and covered with very little, if any, snow. The work was done by Raymond E. Clark and his assistants, it being the second time that the pond was frozen over.

The grange held its regular meeting on Wednesday evening. Mrs. Ruth Jacobs, the lecturer this month, presented a very interesting program, it beting between Lincoln's and Washington's birthdays, a debate was held as to which of the two illustrious men was the greater, Mrs. Rowland Cobb and Mrs. J. A. Isham read papers advocating that George Washington was the greater, and Mrs. Ethel Blakely and Charles K. Hitchcock spoke in favor of Abraham Lincoln. It was conceded that the arguments on both sides were very conclusive and no decision was rendered.

George H. Champlin read a very interesting paper on roads as at present constructed in comparison with those of the past, and each granger told a short anecdote, some of which were very amusing, occasioning considerable merriment.

The lecturers' hour closed with refreshments of coffee and cake. During the business session of the grange, a resolution was passed requesting the legislature to pass the bill to construct the John Trumbull highway on the New London and Hartford turnpike. Resolutions on the death of Frank E. Blakeman, formerly master of the state grange were passed.

Every Roman Catholic church in Greater New York will have special police protection at all services during Lent. Chief Inspector Lahey has issued orders to all district police heads to detail men to the work.

CANTERBURY GREEN

The Christian Endeavor meeting will be held on Sunday evening with Mrs. Clinton Frink.

Miss Palmer, the supervisor, visited the school here this week.

Following the usual grange meeting an entertaining social hour was enjoyed in the form of a valentine party. Lunches were brought by the ladies and the supper partners were chosen in a unique way.

A poultry meeting was held at Grange hall Thursday.

Mrs. James Towne has been visiting her sister, Miss Marian Dodge at Falmouth, Mass.

Mrs. Milo Apply recently spent several days with her parents at Jewett City.

Thirteen members of Canterbury Grange were in Norwich Thursday to attend the funeral of Mrs. Caroline Tonnesson, a member of the order. For several years Mrs. Tonnesson lived in the western part of the town, later moving to Yantic.

The bearers were Clinton Frink, Milo Appley, Lem Carpenter and Hart Goff. Three hymns were sung by Mr. Goff, Mrs. Sager and Mrs. Appley. Burial was in Maplewood cemetery. Mrs. Tonnesson leaves a husband and one son to mourn her loss.

Mrs. Ralph Lovell and little daughter have returned from an extended visit with her parents in East Orange, N. J. The child who has been under treatment is now much improved in health.

The International Film Corporation, of which William Randolph Hearst is head, and which controls the Cosmopolitan productions, has merged with the Goldwyn Pictures Corporation.

HOUSE FAVORS TRUNK LINE ROADS IN FOUR WINDHAM COUNTY TOWNS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Hartford, Feb. 23.—The house today had a normal attendance for a Friday session.

Favorable report was received on H. B. 43, forbidding the solicitation of contributions from occupants of moving vehicles, and it was placed on the calendar for printing.

House bills validating election of justices of the peace in West Haven and validating the personal tax list of Hartford were passed under suspension of the rules.

Favorable report was made on H. B. 190 establishing a trunk line highway to the towns of Windham, Scotland, Canterbury and Plainfield, and bill giving the borough of Danielson jurisdiction on the sidewalks in the borough was placed on the calendar.

H. B. 122 amending the charter of West Hartford, H. B. 398 authorizing the town of Sharon to issue bonds, H. B. 312 authorizing the central fire district of Newington to supply water to the inhabitants of the district and to issue bonds not to exceed $10,000, H. B. 282 giving town of Somers authority to issue bonds to be known as Somers school bonds, H. B. 57 that the town of Wethersfield may issue bonds not to exceed $260,000 were all placed on the calendar.

Bills Rejected.

Unfavorable reports were received on H. B. 178 that provided that deposits for the perpetual care and maintenance of any cemetery or lot therein shall be made with the state treasurer, H. B. 284 that certain commodities shall be sold by weight or count, H. B. 285 that the governor shall appoint an architect to prepare and supervise plans for building and improving state buildings.

H. B. 85 providing payment to the state treasurer of taxes on choses in action and adding stock certificates to those choses upon which taxes may be paid as recommended by the committees, all were rejected.

Sunday Fox Hunting.

The fish and game committee made its first reports and unfavorably reported on Sunday fox hunting bills and the bill repealing the clearing of crow law. H. B. 497 amending section 3148 of the General Statutes concerning penalties for hunting on Sunday was rejected after a statement by the committee that a substitute bill will be reported later. This will be to correct a possible interpretation of the present law, by which a person who has been out coon hunting and has been detained in searching home till after 12 midnight.

H. B. 553, 556, 575, 580 and 27 concerning highway matters were rejected as substitute bills will be offered later. Conference was voted with the senate on sending senate bills concerning appropriations to Putnam Pratt & Co. of Hartford for summer schools, concerning maintenance of Norwich schools to the appropriation committee.

Town Clerks' Hours.

Unfavorable reports were received and bills were rejected in concurrence as recommended on bills that required all town clerks in towns of over 5,000 in population to keep offices open for business from 9 a. m. till 5 p. m. each day, concerning vaccination, concerning repairs by street railway companies, concerning repairs in the highways in the city of Meriden and including in the trunk line system the road from Berlin to Wallingford.

Mr. Buckley, chairman of the judiciary committee, gave notice that the cost of printing bills for private acts must be paid before any action can be taken.

Groton Bonds

Bills starred for action and passed were H. B. 700, authorizing the town of Groton to issue bridge bonds.

These bonds are for the purpose of paying Groton's share in the expense of building the new bridge at Mystic.

They may be issued to the amount of $60,000 in demoniations of one thousand dollars each, bearing interest at no reater rate than four and one-half per cent. They are to be issued in serial form, payable as consecutively numbered, beginning six years after their date and all to be paid within a time not exceeding 20 years from their date. A town meeting is to determine the form whether coupon or registered. Substitute for H. B. 505, concerns the jurisdiction of city and police courts and reads:

Section 6523 of the general statutes is amended to read as follows: When any complaint shall be brought before any town, city, borough or police court for the commission of any offense prohibited in section 816 or section 6517 of the general statutes in which the value of the goods, moneys, choses in action or property taken, purloined, secreted, appropriated or converted shall not exceed two hundred dollars, such court may take local jurisdiction thereof whenever upon conviction the court shall determine that no greater punishment ought to be imposed than that which it may lawfully inflict, subject to the right of the accused to appeal as provided by law in other cases; but if in the opinion of the court a greater punishment should be imposed, the accused shall be bound over to the next term of the superior court having criminal jurisdiction to be held in the county in which the offense was committed there to answer and complaint.

Adjournment was made at 11:25 Tuesday.

LIBERTY HILL

Winthrop P. Davoll, Charles D. Goodrich and Virgil Harper attended the automobile show in Hartford Tuesday evening.

The C. E. society held a very entertaining social at the church rooms Thursday evening. There were plays representing Washington with hatchet and cherry tree, also valentine. The weather and sickness prevented the holding of the valentine social Feb. 14th, so it was postponed until the evening of Washington's birthday. A large number was present and all had a very enjoyable time. Refreshments were served.

Up to Tuesday morning there had been six consecutive mornings when the mercy stood at zero or below. Wednesday and Thursday were more spring like.

Although Sunday was the coldest day of the season there were 36 at church to hear Rev. W. U. English of Hartford, who delivered a very interesting sermon.

Rev. W. S. Woolworth and family who have been visiting relatives in New York and Providence the past ten days have returned and Mr. Woolworth will occupy the pulpit here Sunday morning.

Miss Harriet M. Fuller who went to St. Petersburg, Fla. last October, has returned and is with her sister, Mrs. E. O. Lyman in Columbia.

LEDYARD

Owing to the cold weather the regular meeting of Ledyard grange which was to be held on Friday evening, Feb. 16, had to be omitted as there were only six members present.

Horace H. Main, Jr., has taken a position with a southern nursery.

In place of the regular sermon in the Congregational church on Sunday morning Dr. Usher, a missionary from Turkey, Armenia and Russia, gave a very interesting and instructive talk. He told of the hardships that were endured by the people, of his personal interviews, of the present day conditions and of many atrocities that were committed which were appalling. He was in three wars and predicted another war. His interesting talk was closely listened to by those who were fortunate enough to hear him.

Selectman Calvin R. Main has been serving on the jury in New London.

The supreme court at Moscow has sentenced to death Colonel Svejevski for complicity in a recent attempt on Nikolai Lenine's life

Fruit Juices a Source of Vitamines

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" the Wonderful Fruit Medicine Is Rich In Health-Giving Vitamins

Thousands of men and women are failing off in health and vigor because the food they eat is lacking in one element, without which they cannot keep fit. This element is Vitamine. Ordinary meats and fish do not contain it. Milk is not rich in it. Manufactured foods have the Vitamines destroyed in the process of manufacture. Some fruit juices are rich in Vitamines. A careful examination of experiments conducted by both British and American authorities shows that Oranges contain an abundance of both "B" and "C" Vitamines and Apples contain a relatively large amount of these vital substances.

Why is it that "Fruit-a-tives" takes such marvellous results in overcoming Constipation, Impure Blood Stomach Nerves and a rundown system?

Because "Fruit-a-tives" is the only medicine in the world made from intensified fruit juices. "Fruit-a-tives" is rich in the "B" and "C" Vitamine derived from the juices of oranges and apples.

To take "Fruit-a-tives" regularly is to supply the system with the Vitamines which are needed and which are absolutely necessary to health.

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY.

My Father's Hymn Book.

This old-time tome of sacred song,
From Inspiration's mighty sea—
He sang its truths into our souls
A life-long legacy.

Pell-oft he racked our childish brains,
And sang the words so glad ap-
Free:
"O happy day that fixed my choice"
A precious, lasting memory!

"Thus far the Lord hath led me on,
Thus far His power shelters me."
O glory-psalm of Gospel grace,
Surcharged with ecstacy.

Another anthem Father sang—
Triumphing notes so joyfully:
"All hail the power of Jesus' name, Crown Him, all glory be!"

"Rock of Ages, cleft for me,
Let me hide myself in Thee."
How it firm assurance gives,
As he sings in Memory.

His voice from yonder far-off shore
Comes drifting sweetly back to me:
"O God, our help in ages past;"
None of self and all of Thee."

He knows a hymn for every woe;
For each doubt a Galilee.
While "Jesus, Lover of my soul,"
Softly comes to pilot me.

Let Europe's bells of ancient peal,
Let Trinity's chimes ring free:
My father's voice and happy hymns
Are charms enough for me.

Quaint old volume! Doubly dear,
Thy spirit-riches more I see
Of Heaven's immortal hope and joy,
Through father's ministrelsy.

Mary France-Rice.

Home.

A heap o' sun an' shadder, an' ye sometimes have t' roam
Afore ye really 'preciate the things ye lef' behind.
An' hunger for 'em somehow with 'em allus on yer mind.
It don't make differunce how rich ye get to be,
How much yer chairs an' tables cost, how great yer luxury;
It ain't home t' ye though it be the palace of a king,
Until somehow yer soul is sort o' wrapped 'round everything.

Home ain't a place that gold can buy or get up in a minute;
Afore it's home there's got t' be a heap o' livin' in it;
Within the walls there's got to be some babies born, and then
There's got to bring 'em up in women good an' men;
And gradjerly as time goes on ye find ye wouldn't part
With anything they ever used—
They've grown into yer heart.
The old high chairs, the playthings, too, the little shoes they wore
Ye hoard; an' if ye could ye'd keep the thumb marks on the door.

An' watch beside a loved one's bed, an' know that death is nigh;
An' in the stillness o' the night t' see death's angel come,
An' close the eyes o' her that smiled, an' leave her sweet voice dumb.

For these are scenes that grip the heart, an' when yer tears are dried,
Ye find the home is dearer than it was an' sanctified;
An' forgin' at ye always are the pleasant memories
O' her that was an' is no more—ye can't escape from these.

There's got t' sing an' dance for years, ye've got t' romp an' play,
An' learn t' love the thievin ye have by twin' them each day;
Then the roses 'round the porch must blossom year by year.
Afore they come a part o' ye augmentin' someone dear
Who peered t' love 'em long ago, an' watched 'em bud t' run
The way they do, else they would get the early mornin' sun;

ANSWERS AND INQUIRIES.

COUNTRY SISTER: Your name has been added to the Social Corner list. The pen name has been slightly changed so as not to conflict with another.

ROSY POSY: Your name will be added to the Corner list just as soon as you forward your correct name for the records.

CHANCE TO SHOWER BIDDY.

Dear Sisters: A long time has passed since I wrote you—but I am still among the living. I wonder if the sisters would want to remember Biddy with a card for she is ill at her home. She is just recovering from the flu and now is unfortunate enough to have the erysipelas on her face. Of course it will be nearly a week when you sisters read this, and Biddy may be up around again, but even so the cards will cheer her up.

Your kindness will be much appreciated by

POPOVER.

FIVE STRANDS IN BRAIDING RUGS.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Just a few lines. Isn't it nice to see so many letters on the Social Corner page? Hope some of those who have not written will write and do their duty.

I wonder if the sisters who have been braiding rugs have ever tried braiding with five strands. If not I wish they would try it. And in sewing the rug together you can sew it so it will form a pattern, which adds to the beauty of it, especially if you have one bright color. I think it is much prettier than braided with three strands. Then when you sew the rug together use twine that used to be called "macrame" and you will have a rug that will last a long time and that won't need to be sewed up every once in a while.

To the lady who called up on the telephone last month, I send best wishes and hope the wounds is still healing.

Best wishes for the Corner.

RED ROSE.

APPROVES MOOSUP CLUB.

To the Sisters and Editor of the Social Corner: You are not the only one, Rural Aunty, who wishes for a new club in Moosup.

It's too bad we couldn't make the one Etta Barber started go on as before in Plainfield.

Sisterian and Kechie: Your letters of Feb. 27 [illegible] from [illegible] though snow is piled high in this vicinity there must be a spring fever coming on soon. I and the men of the house were looking at our tackles lately to see that they were in working order.

To all the sisters of The Corner: I think that our resolutions of the New Year are all in good working order, for the writers are plentiful. I have friends in Washington, D. C., who just enjoy The Corner page I send on to them. The page isn't very big but hey, it travels further than one of the sisters did in last week's page.

I could enjoy such a trip with such a wonderful partner. It wouldn't cost very much to travel so,

Black Eyed Susie: It's a long time since you wrote, and such a nice long letter this time, too.

Hinckley: Glad to know you are in town. Will try to call on you as well as Grand Juror soon.

Those who enjoy an old-fashioned winter must have enjoyed this winter to their hearts' content. But I prefer one not so old-fashioned—one with a little more variety would suit my taste.

Can anyone tell me what kind of a bird it was that came to my feeding grounds today? Small size like a robin but all black with tiny white dots at the end of some of its feathers and a long black beak. It was the first I ever saw so near. It was full of suspicion also, and was very near two minutes looking around before pecking away at the food.

Also saw a young deer Sunday with two dogs chasing it on Daggett's street. It stopped in the middle of the road for a second, then kicked up its hind legs and jumped a four-foot wire fence just as pretty and graceful, while the dogs were left behind.

Having had a three weeks' seige with double pneumonia, the man of the house is now better, so I am trying to do my bit of writing.

GREETINGS FROM CANTERBURY BELL.

Dear Editor and Cornerites: I am very much in sympathy with Jerusby Spice as to the bare ground. How good it will be to see it again! I wish to thank The Corner for the sunshine box and especially old fashioned Mother. It is pleasant to be remembered.

Marigold and Red Rose: I appreciate your kind thought of me.

Betsy Bobbet: Many thanks for your kind letter and am glad you found relief in the same treatment that I am taking. I have improved wonderfully. Shall be able to see you all again at the anniversary and hope to see all, old and new writers, March 7.

Wild Flower: Am glad you are at liberty once more and hope you are well.

Aunt Sarah: Have you a saucer under the eyelems? If so, keep it full of water and set it in a sunny window. Sprinkle a little chacco dust over the surface and it will bloom till warm weather. Then save the bulb for another year, as they are very choice and quite expensive; also beautiful.

Beatrix: How are you? You have my heartfelt sympathy, as also all others who are sick or afflicted, especially Grandma H's daughters. How they miss her sweet, cheery presence. She was always happy. I think her last picnic with The Cornerites was with me. She was not well then, but she was merry just the same, I think of her often.

Molly Make Believe: Come with us; we will do you good. Als Blossom, we want to see you and cheer you up.

Deliah Deal: Hope you are better now.

I. J. B.: Glad to hear from you once more.

Old Glory: Where are you?

Ducky, Bumble Bee, Bob White, Lucy Acorn and Honey Bee: Speak up and let us know you are here. I have enjoyed the letters very much and hope they will keep coming.

Would like to send greetings to each one but fear my chat is taking too much room now, and will hang up for this time.

CANTERBURY BELL.

EXPRESSIONS OF APPRECIATION FROM BEATRIX.

Dear Social Corner Sisters and Editor: It is a long time since I sent a line to help fill The Corner page but nevertheless I have enjoyed reading the interesting letters from the sisters who do their mite. It surely seems good to see the page full each week of late. I want to add a few lines if there is space this week to thank the sisters who have remembered me with cards and words of sympathy on the passing away of my mother, and during my own illness; also for the sunshine box sent from the Feb. 7th meeting. Peahontas kindly delivered it with kind words of sympathy.

In reading the page of last Saturday the article on the beautiful old bare ground from the pen of Jerusby Spice expresses the feeling of more than one person. I think the bare ground and a few blades of green grass will be very welcome.

Will extend my sympathy to all who have had illness and death in family of late.

Hoping I may be able to meet with you all soon.

BEATRIX.

HOW TO MAKE SAND SOAP.

Dear Sisters: Take a fine grade of white sand and run through a fine screen and stir into a quantity of soft soap made in the usual way—about one pint of sand to two quarts of soap. The soap should then be placed in old jars and stored on the pantry shelf. One jar can be felt where it is handy and it certainly is worth the trouble of making. It cuts into the grease and grime that the ordinary soap only slides over. It seems to be as effective as kerosene, with none of its disagreeableness. It is good to use for oily hands.

PAULA.

GIVE THE DATE, NEVER MIND THE YEAR

Dear Social Sisters: I want to thank those who have added month and day of birthday and hope it will be added beside the name in every letter, then those who didn't see it the first time and new members also will know. In keeping mine in a large leather covered diary of 1914, never used by myself. It was his first year out of school. I find it very handy. If I was born in 1890 I wouldn't mind that date in print but it's lots of fun keeping people guessing who are over anxious how old one is. Not that I care though for I tell any one not inquisitive, but there are lots older and lots younger. I'm not old, I'm not young, so why worry. In my heart, I'm not more than 15, for I'm in for sport and dancing. At an evening out with my son, my husband's niece said to her husband, Look at Aunt L— on the floor, she is as young as any of them. Don't know whether it was waltz or fox trot, but I am not asleep except from 12 midnight to 6 a. m.. So as the saying goes, How old is Ann? Never mind the year, it is only for a card now to those who wish to send on date and month of birth.

What a lovely meeting Club No. 2 had Feb. 7. I'm looking forward to the March meeting on the ice in Norwich and will try to make Willimantic March 14. With those who go from Norwich. But remember at Club No. 1 in Willimantic, we of Club No. 2 must carry plate, cup, spoon, knife and fork and our portion of food for the table. I write this so that any new writer of Club No. 2 who want to go will know what they must carry as there are no dishes. I understand in Franklin hall. I'm sure you will be well paid by a good time by going. I hope Club No. 1 will not think I'm putting in but not having to bring dishes at the Norwich club gathering they might thing it was the same up there and it would be awful to see so many nice things and nothing in the plate line to put them on. Think it over girls and plan to go. We will get the trolley time later. We look for Club No. 2 in Norwich March 7.

Priscilla and Jennie: Try and visit one of the March anniversary meetings. I know Hartford is a long trip, but it's worth while if weather is good.

Red Clover: I like your letters. Hope hubby is feeling better.

Dearie: I mean to call you up but I'm a very busy-body. Days are too short for me.

Remember Me: What a lot of Social Corner sisters were out looking, if they didn't buy, Dollar day! I never had the bargains but enjoy the sport that day.

Lonesome Pine: You didn't get by my house without being seen. I am looking for the time to come when we take the car out and I can see you all together when we go your way.

Ready: If you are down by Dswitch why not try to come to Club No. 2. You will be welcome to all meetings.

Theoda: Did you find time to copy that list of departed sisters for me? How is my husband's cousin, your neighbor? We talked about how to find the house and road.

Great Grandma: How are you this winter? Did you receive a card I sent you during holidays and later our building where we meet Corner days? Best wishes to all.

CALLA LILY (Nov. 25.)

CREAMED CARAMEL CANDY

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: If you have any more room in your Corner left I would like to join. I see the Social Corner is growing every week, and I am glad. It makes a very nice page to read on Sundays when we are all snowed in and cannot get out. It looks as though we were going to have another snowstorm. I have been braiding and crocheting rugs this winter. I have made five already. I think it is a good way to use up your rags.

Dorinda: I have tried your pork cake and we found it very good. It stuck to the pan and broke all up. But we ate every crumb of it just the same.

Grandma Gray: I would like to have a chat with you and see some of your bedquilts. I hope you have had your sleighridge.

Kechie: I would like to meet you at Beach pond next summer for I expect to go, too. I am going to send the sisters a very good recipe of cream caramel candy:

To table spoons of water, two cups sugar, one-half can karo syrup, one-quarter pound butter; boil ten minutes, then add one-half can condensed milk, boil about fifteen minutes more and try in water when you see it becomes thick. Keep stirring all the time after adding the milk. This candy is very good. I hope some of the sister will try it and let me know how they like it. I will not write too much for the first time, so I will close with good wishes to all the sisters and editor.

ROSY POSY (Jan. 12.)

BRINGING UP CHILDREN

Dear Cornerites: Have not written for so long am afraid I shall be expelled for neglecting my duty. I am so glad we are having such a lot of lovely letters in the Social Corner page now. We shall soon have to have two pages. I am thinking. I enjoy all the letters very much but especially those which have anything pertaining to bringing up of children, as I think that is a problem which all mothers find hard to solve. I was calling on two Social Corner members the other day and the different ways that mothers had of training their children to do right happened to come up in the conversation. One particular subject was how to keep them amused on Sunday and still not make the day as though it were no different from any of the other days, or make it a day to be dreaded because it is Sunday. I live where there has been fine sliding and on Sunday it is just as all the other days from 10 to 30 boys and girls having a fine time in their way. But lots of times as I sit at my window I hear language that is not fit for any one to hear much less young children to use. I have a boy that is nearly 15 and when he sees the others doing those things it takes some thinking on my part to try and teach him that we should try and make a little difference and give up a little pleasure for Him who has done so much for us. I think innocent games can be played and in some way keep them amused so they will note that it is Sunday but still not dread the day. One of the sisters said she thought if we did our best we would that usually it had a good effect, and our good training was reflected when they grow up. I think myself it does as there are very few in whom you can't find some good if you recall their mother and their childhood days. I can remember my dear mother used to get all of us around her on Sunday, five boys and two girls, and how we loved to have her talk and sing to us. So many things I remember that she taught in one way to always take care of ourselves and never to talk about others if they were less fortunate than we were. I will quote one of the little prayers she taught me when I was young and even now I try to fulfill it:

"Set a watch before my mouth, and keep the door of my lips that I offend not with my tongue."

Guess I have more than made up for lost time if this gets printed. Success to the Social Corner.

CHOCOLATE

LIFE AND SLIDING ALIKE

Social Corner Sisters: I was told today over the phone I was not doing my duty as a social Corner member because I have not written for the Social Corner page.

But really I should add cosy to Social Corner for how many of us read the paper this beautiful snowy weather unless we sent ourselves near a fire to open grate to be cosy as well as social as we read the different thoughts expressed by the writers.

Just to think in North Dakota our page is read with just as much interest as here in the old New England states. Long may our corner continue to bring happiness to one and all of us.

Today in looking out the window and seeing boys and girls sliding down the hill, all enjoying themselves I thought how much like life was their sliding.

We start off of life and joy to climb the hill. Some get to the top.

Others half way up begin to slip and away they go clear to the bottom.

There they stand for a while and then begin to climb again and sometimes they reach the top. Others climb and slide all through their lives.

This winter is like the old winters of long ago, when I as a child used to take a board and seating myself on it would slide clear through the orchard, down over stonewalls to the old pasture. Then I would take my board under my arm and climb the hill again walking on the crust. I think it would take more than a board to hold me now.

They say that the older you grow the more your mind wanders in the past; I would rather wander through those days of childhood than to look into the future of some of those that go by and wonder how their lives and health will be in a few years from now with thin silk stockings, low shoes, some without rubbers, low neck dresses, short skirts and not enough clothes on to keep warm. You say anything to them and they are "Warm enough." Yet how many of the present generation you will find go to the sanitoriums and insane hospitals for treatments, which if they would look out for their general health would be strong healthy women and men.

I believe that all should wear flannels next to them and woolen stockings on their feet and keep them well protected and the next generation would be stronger and better.

Now when the Social Corner sisters read this she will say I guess Mandy is getting crazy, and I just think I shall be if I go on thinking what people should do and the way I think they ought to.

MANDY.

WHERE SPIRIT OF GOOD WILL IS FOUND.

Dear Social Corner Folk: Greetings one and all, and may this find you all, day by day, gaining in health, and with renewed strength and courage to bear the sorrows and burdens that come to each and all.

I am enclosing a poem that will, I am sure, be appreciated by many, for many there are whose hearts are saddened.

Let us forget, let us remember none escape the loss of dear ones, and many realize our loss. You are not alone in sorrow, having been called on to part with my beloved husband and mother. I feel as another sister recently wrote, there is still work left for us to do, to bless their memory and examples of service.

I find it so continually, and each day, I am busy, and glad and thankful for all the years of pleasant memories. Thankful for the joy of serving, and for health, one of the greatest of blessings.

As our Social Corner meeting was last week Wednesday, I started early despite the elements, and put in a full day in town.

The morning I spent at the hospital, trying to cheer and visit those who had few callers.

When on the street, the ladies one chanced to meet were headed Franklin hall way, for a very good reason—that's our special meetin' place.

I returned home, just glad and feeling happy all over, so if it snows for another month I can stand it providing I can get out to the March meeting.

There is a spirit of good pervading the atmosphere there that would do some communities good to pattern after.

I am glad I know who Lavender, Roxana Wince and Willywork are.

It's a good thing that the older ones wrote this week, for I had a whole list of names I'd never seen in paper. But when I got last week's Corner page I found some at once that I listed last week Wednesday.

Neighbor Everready's sister: Welcome to The Corner, and even you as a sister true blue, for I haven't any in the earthly plane, and as my only sister passed on before my existence, why, I'll adopt you.

You weren't at Franklin hall last week, and don't know now if it's Norwich you want me to go to. Give me a clue, however, and we'll show up in time. Which one?

Dorinda and Willywork: I agree it is a wonderful winter. I have the horse without the sleigh, but I have had fine walks. As my road has been in such a traveling condition most of the time, I have usually walked a mile every day.

Gladys: Guess above partly answers your question. No snowbanks here, but plenty on the level. Received your mail every day, so on the few bad days I couldn't get to the office the neighbor across the way went after it.

Father has been poll all winter, not even a cold. Will welcome spring, for me, been O. K., but have barometer now. Call again. How's everybody on Scotland road? A. L. owes me a letter. Is she sick? When you cellphone her, [illegible]

As ever and always,

NEIGHBOR EVERADAY (Jan. 5).

A CHILD'S AMUSEMENTS.

Dear Social Corner Friends: Many thanks to A Social Corner Member for the dainty calendar and the wish for happiness and prosperity.

When Billy was a small boy we made our first visit with Cousin Sallie then a bride in her beautiful new home. Before we had removed our wraps I noticed that Sallie was gathering up the books and pictures from the low shelf of her living room table. "What are you doing that for?" I said. "O, I am rather choice of them so I always put them away when children come." "Put them right back, Billy won't touch them." Reluctantly, she replaced them, and of course Billy started for them the first thing, but a quiet "the lady's things," stopped him and he did not have to be reminded.

I always took a few playthings with us and Sallie gave him some of her kitchen things to play with. Billy had a busy happy day. He stayed in the kitchen and watched her prepare the lunch and exclaimed in delight at her attractive table with its fruit and flowers and pretty dishes. She said, "Billy is the most appreciative gentleman I have ever entertained."

When we were ready to go home, she said, "I never saw a child like Billy. He is a delightful companion and just like a person."

"There is one mother with a small son who visits me, and she spends the day saying, 'Charles, don't do that,' 'Do keep still,' 'Get down from there, didn't I tell you not to touch that,' and so they keep a fuss going all day.

"Hasn't Billy ever been any trouble?"

No, Billy has never known any way except to be a real person. He has always been comfortable and busy and interested and happy. He has always been used like a person and had his share in the home and a part in the home life and work.

A child usually begins to form the habit of being cross and disagreeable because he is uncomfortable in some way or because no one interests him while he is waiting for his feeding time.

It is natural for a child to feel very hungry a short time before his mealtime and this is the time for amusement and exercise, any change that will take up his mind and interest him while waiting.

The second period when we strike trouble is when the child begins to get around. Then he wants to do everything he sees done and get into everything around the rooms, and it is natural and right that he should.

Billy worked as busy and happily as any person shoveling the coal from one hod to the other in the kitchen. We arranged his big box of sand on the veranda and another box of the same size and he spent many happy hours filling the other box or his cars with the sand. He enjoyed more a large can of water placed on a box the right height for him to reach the faucet. He sometimes drew it all off into the big pail, but usually filled his cup and measure and poured that into the pail. As soon as he could count, he would tell how many measures he had gotten, or fill bottles and play sell milk. He had an age when he wanted to help set and clear off the table. He carried the dishes from a low serving table in the dining room and put them on a low table in the kitchen, the silver on a tray, the cups and glasses in a pan and piled the plates as nicely as anyone could. One of his treasures was a sawhorse with a strap to bind the stick in place and he sawed soft strips for kindlings and for building blocks. He enjoyed work more than playthings. He had boxes and bookcases for his toys and liked to keep each one in its place. "Go home" he called it. As a child needs a playmate of the same age. We used to invite Fred in for an hour or two each day, and arranged a duplicate case of all the cheaper toys especially for Fred, so each had his own small toys. The larger ones they took turns in using.

Of course someone had to supervise their play when Fred was there, as a boy from another family brings in the spirit of adventure and things would be broken and mischief done that neither alone would ever do.

HOW SWEET WILLIAM BUSIED HERSELF.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I, too, have heard the call for old members, and will now pause in my busy day and have my little say. My interest in the Corner is so great I do not wish to be considered a slacker.

I have been much interested in the ways some of the sisters have spent their Christmas, and also the letters of travels.

We have had plenty of snow out here. I have been so closely confined to the house that maybe you would be interested to know what I have been engaged in.

I have made thirteen dresses for my four girls, and also pieced a bedquilt from the scraps of the dresses, braided two rugs, made four slips and two camisoles, and if you think that I have much time to play, just come and spend the day.

As today has proved much pleasanter than usual we have busied ourselves by taking snapshots.

I extend my sympathy to those who have lost dear ones throughout the year.

With best wishes,

SWEET WILLIAM (June 8.)

FLOWERS, INSIDE HELP TO CHEER.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Well, how are you all this morning? Here I am again for another of my little chats. I have changed my penname so I suppose I will keep some guessing who I am again.

I agree with Jerusby Spice about the "beautiful old bare ground." I think we all will be ready to welcome it with "hello on," although we have had flowers inside to cheer us a little bit and it seemed a blessing to have it brighter inside because there are plenty of cheerless objects outside. We have a Christmas cactus with about 200 blossoms on it, an oleander is in bloom and a winter iris is about to open. I wish they could cheer the other sisters also.

We of Greene Gables: Unome and I have also been working on patchwork this winter. We have pieced two quilts and have blocks for another cut out. If some say they aren't up-to-date, we have found them very useful in the past few weeks. I would surely like to step in and hear your orchestra. If it comes to this town to give a concert I will be sure to attend. I played a mandolin in an orchestra for about two years.

Mrs. U. E.: Unome tried your muskmelon cake and it surely tasted like nutmeg. It was fine and hope more of the sisters will try their luck at it.

Golden Glow: Unome knows you so no doubt you know me.

Black-Eyed Susie: Wish I knew you so we could get [illegible] together.

Agatha: I wish I could see your sample book. I am much interested in crocheting and do quite a bit of it. Well, I hope this won't crowd out other letters of more interest. I see the Corner page was well filled last week, which must have been pleasure to all.

Best wishes to all from

AN INTELLIGENT CAT.

Dear Social Corner sisters: I wonder now you all are this cold weather? We are having some winter this time, with the mercury only a below this morning. I found it pretty cold going to church facing the northwest wind. New London has not had so much snow for a good many years. There is much sickness, colds and grip, caused they claim by the coal situation. People cannot keep warm enough in their homes.

I want to thank the Social Corner sister who sent me the pretty calendar. I wish she would send me her address, for I have a present for her and would like to send it to her.

Balsam Fir: That was a fine poem you sent in. Why Johnnie Loft the horn. I think it might be true in a good many cases. I wonder if the boy himself was the author? No one but an intelligent treated could have expressed it so well.

Cedar Lady: I think your suggestion a very good one in regard to the birthday dates being sent in to The Corner and will head the list by sending in mine, which comes again altogether too soon.

Roxanna: I was very much interested in your letter about your caring for the poor birds, for I should imagine they have had a pretty hard time this winter trying to keep from starving, with so much snow and ice. I was also interested in the cat story, and want to tell you about one that was given to me when I was quite young. It was a little kitten, a three-colored tabby. As soon as it was old enough I commenced to train her and taught her to bring everything she caught to me. I used to take her out in the woods hunting. She would catch young rabbits and squirrels and bring them to me. Many a good meal of game she furnished me. She was always on hand when the game was dressed and always got her share. Then I would put her down under the stove in the kitchen, put a chicken or turkey (baby ones, of course, when they were sick or chilled) under her paw, and she would lay there and go to sleep and brood them as good as a hen. When I had canaries I used to let them out in the room with her asleep on the floor and they would fly over her and pick her ears, but she would not pay any attention to them. But one day I had one of my best singers hanging outside the door and [illegible] the bottom of the cage dropped off and the bird came down with it. I was standing under the tree at the time, but before I could speak she had it in her mouth, for she was there and saw it before I did. I spoke her name. I said "Rose, drop it!" She brought it to me all laid it down and looked up at me as though she knew she had done wrong. I think she thought it came down from the tree. She lived to be 14 years old—the most intelligent cat I ever saw.

Hoping the new year may be a prosperous one for all who are interested in The Corner.

DOM PEDRO (March 2).

THE WHY AGE.

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: We do not often think of the great wisdom of God. We often say "God the all wise," but it does not make much impression on our mind. Someone will say to a mother: "Isn't your child beautiful!" and she will reply: "Oh, yes, but I will be so glad when she outgrows the 'why' age." It seems like a thousand times a day she has to answer a question. Why didn't God put a nose on the back of my head to match the nose on my face, if I have ears on two sides of my head? Why doesn't a cat talk? and so on through the weary hours of the day, but that child will never outgrow the why age as long as his life shall last. A human being never outgrows the why age until the body is worn out and he leaves the world.

We hear so many times the questions Why do such dreadful things happen? Why does God allow such hunger? Why so much suffering? Why such a dreadful thing as war?

A few years ago I heard a splendid sermon by the late Mr. Bloaum. In it he compared life to a preparatory school and he said that what we called death was only going up to a great college, where our knowledge would go on increasing and God would be the great professor. It is written "the very hairs of your head are all numbered." Do we realize what that means? Do you know how many napkins you have or how many handkerchiefs you have? God knows how many, and how many threads and stitches there are in each. Do you know how many books you have? He knows, and He knows how many letters in each. He is the one who keeps the great inventory. He knows these things, not only about your possessions, but of all people who live in the world, and not only these, but of those on all the planets. We cannot comprehend this great wisdom because of our littleness. If we consider how small that is, and if God allows suffering, and we question, aren't we trying to handle a big undertaking?

Nema: Many thanks for my New Year's card.

MAINTAINING WORK STARTED BY TIDY ADDLY.

Social Corner Sisters and Editor: The meeting at Franklin hall was well attended February 14 despite the cold and stormy weather. Fifty or more sat down at noon and enjoyed a fine dinner served by Altara and her assistants.

Te dinner consisted of baked beans, salads, fish balls, pies, cakes and hot coffee, with fruit and candy to top off with. The work that was started by Tidy Addly is still carried on by Club No. 1.

The groceries that were brought were valued at $6.89. The amount of money given was $1.40, making a total of $8.29. One dollar of this money will be sent as usual to our shut-in sister, Diana, with love and best wishes from every member of Club No. 1. The balance of this money and groceries will be given to the Welfare Bureau of Willimantic and I am sure every bit will be used where it is most needed. Miss Anderson, assistant secretary of the bureau gave a very interesting talk about her work, holding the close attention of all.

Following her, Neighbor Everready read several selections by Edgar A. Guest. Dancing was then enjoyed for the rest of the afternoon and I really can't say who was the best dancer, but I think we all did splendid. One sister told me she had been a member of the Corner for ten years and this was the first time she had ever attended a gathering. Hope she will come again.

With the best of wishes for the editor and Corner.

WILTWICK.

INEXPENSIVE AND HANDY WORK TABLE.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Have just finished reading the Corner and enjoyed all of the letters. I also enjoyed the Social Corner meeting very much. It was my first.

I am going to tell the sisters about an inexpensive but attractive and handy work table.

Purchase a medium size cheese box from the grocer. One can generally get them for ten cents.

Remove the hoop from the bottom and sand paper the box until smooths, being sure to rub off all letters or black spots. Don't put the hoop back on at all. Use brass handles for legs. Three are enough. Sand paper these, also. Place them at even distances by using cheese cover for the top of the box and the box for the bottom. Nail the legs and file off the ends of nails if they happen to come through. One can either varnish it two coats or paint in any desired color. Mine is varnished mahogany while Double Fuchsia has one painted. Fit a card board to both the top and bottom and cover with a pretty cretonne.

Cut a piece the width of the sides of the cover and tack on with small tacks or brass headed ones by filing off the ends on the outside. Do the same with the lower part. One will find it handy to move from place to place or on the porch in summer. The top of mine I use for the button box and pin cushion. The lower part I use for stockings that are waiting to be darned and clothes to be mended. One will see it is inexpensive. Cheese box ten cents, varnish or paint ten cents, cretonne price according to quality. Every one has broom handles.

Black Eyed Susie: Inquired for you at meeting but didn't find you. Will bring sample book next time.

Hope the sisters try my workbox and like it.

Crimson Rambler: Hope you receive my suggestions O. K.

Hope all the sisters will try and write to the Corner soon.

Dew Kist: Wish you could attend one of the meetings as I know you would enjoy it.

CREATE A TASTE FOR GOOD MUSIC.

Dear Social: As our anniversary is so near I will do my bit by answering the roll call.

I was much interested in Roxanna's letter on music. Now, why not provide an antidote for jazz?

Music helps to mold the character as do literature and religion. It is a potent force in our lives. If inferior music becomes popular it must be because the majority are musically illiterate. If they knew good music they would not accept poor any more than they would buy gaudy clothes in preference to those in good taste. To help to do away with such illiteracy we must create a taste for good music.

A competitive "musical memory [illegible] held in Hebron, Wisconsin proved that children who are familiar with a few standard selections of good music will develop a liking for other music of the same high quality. Although the children it was carried to, the homes and who can estimate the cultural and refining influence that resulted from the contest?

But we need not stop with the children. This is the national week of song. It may be celebrated in many ways, the simplest of which is the party of neighbors and friends invited to spend an evening around the home piano singing the songs that have stood the test of time—those songs that stir the heart and linger in the memory. This programme can be varied with vocal solos and duets and with occasional instrumental selections. Choice selections from popular operas may be rendered on the phonograph, where one is available.

Besides the home party, clubs, lodges and other social organizations can, with great advantage and success, give a song party or concert, either formal or informal.

Can we not in one way or another create a taste for good music that it may not be supplanted by jazz?

"Give to the world the best you have and the best will come back to you."

INTERESTED IN THE SOCIAL CORNER.

Dear Social Corner: I have been interested in the letters written by the Social Corner members for a long time and would like to become a member.

I was interested in the letter written by Ma of Greene Gables, as I have been piecing quilts, too. I have a "ramble round the green," and a "friendship" finished and a "basket," "double X" another "friendship," and a crazy one partly finished, also I have one the pieces of which are so small you have to use a microscope to see them. It got my friends to give me the pieces they threw away, so that helps me a great deal. Also I was very much interested in the letter signed Stranger in the City as I was born and brought up a short distance from Yawbox Valley and know every nook and corner, for miles around.

Would like to meet this sister, also all of the Cornerites if I could, as I like to read their letters very much.

I don't agree with "Just Me," as I "Schooldays," the first verse of which is: to school, and wished myself back there many times.

It reminds me of the poem, "In Schooldays," the 1st verse of which is:

Still sits the schoolhouse by the road,
A ragged beggar sunning.
Round it still the summachs grow,
And blackberry vines are running.

There was nothing gloomy about it to me. It might have been cold in the morning, but we didn't mind it. We used to sit around the old red stove and have a grand old time, and at recess and noon play games of all kinds. Those were the good old times I shall never forget.

Hoping my first letter will not reach the waste basket I will close.

With best wishes to all.

COUNTRY SISTER. (June 2.)

REPLIES TO INQUIRIES.

I have been asked so many questions by readers of the Bulletin that it will take a little time to answer them.

Ill-shaped eyebrows can be disciplined into the way they should grow by running a mucilage brush across them at night. (Be sure the mucilage is fresh and sweet). Let it dry on and wash off in the morning with warm water. A month or two of this kind of treatment will reduce unruly eyebrows to subjection.

About enlarged pores I know they are often caused by blackheads, brought about by poor circulation. First remove the blackheads by scrubbing the face with soap and hot water—not hot enough to irritate the skin, though—and use a camel's hair complexion brush. Rinse with luke warm water and then cold; wipe with a soft linen towel, after which apply a good soft skin food or cold cream. When rubbing with the brush, use only a gentle motion around the eyes.

Mustard stain does not usually remain on the skin. Try to remove it with the following lotion, applied several times daily with a soft linen cloth. Lactic acid, 2 ounces; glycerine, 1 ounce; rose water, one-half ounce.

I have taken warts off of the hands by rubbing them well with soda. Dampen the soda, and keep rubbing every day. It will eventually remove them for I have applied it to the hands of several children. This will drive them away and will not leave a scar. I should judge those other blemishes you speak of are moles and electricity, of skillfully applied is the safest and most effectual remedy when they are of a serious or chronic nature.

I have never manicured nails myself for I always detested the job. I could do my own but I dislike working on others' nails. I think I can help you out. You want a pair of slender, sharp-curved scissors, a nail file and a chamois covered polisher. These will answer all purposes, but an orange wood stick may be added to keep the cuticle back from the nails. The fingers should be held a few minutes in a bowl of warm soapy water, in which a few drops of tincture of benzoin have been added. This softens the nails so they can be cut or filed without breaking. File just the length of the fingers and trim in graceful oval curve. After trimming the nails, push the cuticle (some call it scarf skin) down closely about the roots with the orange wood stick. A little polishing powder may be used once a week. Never clean your nails with a sharp pointed instrument.

To purify your complexion mix 36 grains of bicarbonate of soda, one dram of glycerine and one ounce of spermaceti ointment. Rub on the affected parts of your face and let it stay about fifteen minutes. Then wipe off all but a slight film. You will be surprised at the results.

I have written several letters concerning oily scalp and the hair. I think The Bulletin can be gotten with it in. A pretty girl must expect flattery but try to discourage it if she can. Cultivate a pleasant, happy disposition and help to make others happy, thereby not giving yourself time to become conceited.

I will try to write personal letters to the other parties who have written me.

HOW TO HAVE BLOOMING ROSES IN WINTER

Dear Editor and Social Cornerites: I will tell you how I have roses in bloom in the window when snow banks are piled high outside.

First procure your plant. I raised mine from a cutting taen from a pink Hermosa. Plant it out in the summer in a well fertilized spot in the garden and let it grow and bloom until late in November or until the frost has been severe enough to fill the leaves. Mine was frozen in so hard last fall, that I had to chop the ground with a hatchet in order to get the spade under the roots. Set it in the pot so that it will be a little deeper in the earth than it was before. Press the soil around it as hard as you can. Water it well. Prune off the ends of all the shoots. Set it in a cool room in a sunny window, watering sparingly, until you see the new leaf buds swell and have a whitish green color and the stalks begin to look [illegible] ed that children who are familiar with a few standard selections of good music will develop a liking for other music of the same high quality. Although the children it was carried to, the homes and who can estimate the cultural and refining influence that resulted from the contest?

But we need not stop with the children. This is the national week of song. BOSTON LEADERS AND BAND HERE TO OPEN SALVATION ARMY DRIVE

Addresses in the Norwich churches by Salvation Army leaders and a [illegible] concert in Broadway theater by the Boston headquarters staff band on Sunday will be the opening features of the campaign in this city, for [illegible] of which $[illegible] is [illegible] Norwich [illegible] Headquarters [illegible] the town budget.

Brigadier William C. Arthur, who is in charge of Salvation Army forces in New England, with headquarters at Boston, will be the speaker at the Uncas-on-Thames church [illegible] the morning service.

Brigadier William C. Crawford, general secretary for the New England [illegible] will be the speaker at Greeneville congregational church, where the staff band will play.

LIEUT. ADJUTANT WILLIAM CRAWFORD

At Park Congregational church the speaker at the morning service will be Adjutant Thomas Malpass, young people secretary for Massachusetts and Vermont, while at the morning service at the First Baptist church the speaker will be Adjutant James Archer, officer responsible for special efforts in New England.

At the evening service in the Central Baptist church Col. McIntyre will be the speaker, and the staff band will give a sacred concert.

The sacred concert by the staff band is to be given at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon at the Broadway Theater through the courtesy of Abraham Jacobson, the proprietor. General Chairman Harry M. Clark will preside. Mayor Milo Waters will extend the official welcome to the city, and the concert by the staff band of 24 pieces will be a fine opportunity for the people of Norwich to hear this famous band.

These musicians are officers of the Salvation Army attached to the provincial headquarters at Boston, and a number of soldiers who follow [illegible] various trades and professions while their spare time and talents are given to the Salvation Army cause without compensation.

The leader is Staff-Captain Robert Young. Staff-Captain Young has given his life to the Salvation Army cause and is head of the finance department of the Salvation Army in New England. He is regarded as one of the best band leaders in this country, having served several years as Deputy-Bandmaster of the National Staff Band at New York City.

Two-thirds of the musicians in this band are veterans of the World war and served overseas with the A. E. F.

In addition to the instrumental ability this band has been trained to sing as a chorus.

Lieutenant Chester Mathewson, attached to Headquarters Staff, is considered to be one of the best cornet soloists in this country, having played in several nationally famous bands before joining the Salvation Army.

ROCKEFELLER REFUTES CONSPIRACY CHARGE MADE BY WILLIAM H. ANDERSON

John D., Jr., Expresses Belief That a Full Public Accounting Should be Made of All Money Received by the Anti-Saloon League—Declares That an Organization Whose Purpose is to Influence Public Opinion Can Hardly Afford to Have Financial Secrets—Statement Made in Reply to Charge by Anderson That Raymond B. Fosdick, Legal Representative of the Rockefellers, Was a Party to the "Wet" Conspiracy to "Get" Anderson.

[illegible] of the New York Anti Saloon League, again declared he was the victim of a "wet" conspiracy and renew[ed] his attack on Raymond B. Fosdick, [legal] representative of the Rockefellers, in an address at the Trinity Methodist Episcopal church today.

[illegible]mating that Mr. Fosdick and [illegible] the Rockefellers against [illegible], Mr. Anderson charged that [illegible]Germany and "wet republican "machine politicians" with "criminal [illegible] [illegible] interests" had conspired to "get him" and to disrupt the league. He also intimated that Mr. Fosdick had revealed confidential information he had imparted to the latter.

"In addition to these [illegible] charges arrayed against [illegible] Mr. Fosdick are involved the wet financial interests who have used as a de facto stool pigeon a wet talking personally hostile employe of [illegible] John D. Rockefeller themselves staunch friends of prohibition. The power and scope of the influences interested in 'getting' me are the best proof of the effectiveness of my work and the [illegible] ordinary methods to eliminate me.

"I do not intend to [illegible] silence to being crushed by the power of Rockefeller [illegible] wielded through the machinations of [illegible] hostile Rockefeller employe," Mr. Anderson said. "Whatever may be put over on me, I shall not take it lying down. Mr. John D. Rockefeller Jr. is a fair man. I believe they are consistent Christians. I know they are sincere friends of prohibition and of the Anti-Saloon League as the agency of the churches. I do not believe they will stand for a man who has given practically his entire adult life to representing these churches in a desperately difficult [illegible] conflict, and who even poured in his own money to save a great cause in the darkest hour of the entire battle and then requested the confidence that made possible the accomplishment of the [illegible] impossible being [illegible]. The basis of an employe of theirs in an effort to rob such man in the mind of the public of the ordinary presumption of innocence that would be freely accorded even to the most depraved member of society."

ANDERSON CLAIMS TO BE VICTIM OF CONSPIRACY

Heavy Earthquake Shock.

Hamburg, Feb. 25.—A heavy earthquake shock lasting nearly three hours, the center believed to be some 8,000 kilometers distant, was registered Saturday morning by the main seismograph station in Hamburg.

Forged Bank Notes in Milan.

Milan, Feb. 25.—(By The A. P.)—The police here are in possession of 800,000 lire in forged bank notes of the denomination of fifty-lire each, which they believe are connected with the widespread forgeries in the United States.

SEIZURE OF HUGE STORE OF AMMUNITION IN NEW YORK

New York, Feb. 25.—While police and federal agents today were continuing their investigation into the discovery of a huge cache of hand grenades, cartridges, rifles and machine guns found last night in the basement of a West 24th street lodging house, Joseph O'Brynne, the proprietor, and Edward Hoey were held in $2,500 bond each for examination March 1 charged with unlawful possession of firearms.

Further search of the district failed to reveal additional ammunition.

Hoey, who was arrested while unloading crates of cartridges and grenades from a truck into a basement told the police that he had been hired by two men to bring the explosives from Hoboken, N. J. He denied that he knew that the boxes contained explosives.

O'Byrne admitted that he had rented the basement for a month to the men who told him they were ammunition dealers and had permits to store the materials. He was unable, he said, to furnish the names of the men.

Officers of the bomb squad opened a number of the cases and found charged hand grenades, steel jacketed machine gun ammunition, rifle and pistol cartridges. The ammunition corresponded with the calibre of the rifles and machine guns. The explosives, they said were in quantities sufficient to blow up a large section of the city.

The investigation is centered upon the possibility that the explosives were stored in preparation for shipment abroad. The cartridges did not bear the name of the maker and no important clues were obtained from the names on the packing cases.

THREE TRUSTIES ESCAPED FROM WELFARE ISLAND

New York, Feb. 25.—Braving the ice floes in the East river in a skiff without oars, three convicts, all trusties, were being hunted today by police after escaping from the penitentiary on Welfare Island last night. The skoff was found abandoned at a waterfront park in Long Island City tonight.

Believed to have been aided by confederates, the men, John "Spot" Leahy, John Clinton and Daniel St. John, eluded the guards and apparently made the passageway being cleared upstream by the tide. The escape was discovered early but the ice-filled stream hampered pursuit.

St. John, according to prison officials, had only three months more to serve and had been a trusty for a year. Clinton had been convicted for attempting to shoot a policeman and had a year to serve, while Leahy, who had served 18 months, faced a term of seven years in sing Sing.

MASKED BANDITS GET SIXTY BARRELS WHISKEY

York, Pa., Feb. 25.—Five masked men held up two guards at the Foust Distillery, near Glen Rock, this county, at the point of pistols early today while other members of their band loaded more than sixty barrels of whiskey on motor trucks and drove away.

The raiders surprised the two guards, George A. Strine and Elmer Mitzl and disarmed them without a struggle. Entrance to the warehouse was made through a window. The doors were removed from the hinges and the barrels of whiskey rolled out and loaded on two trucks.

Today's raid was the second big robbery at the Foust plant, 181 barrels of whiskey having been removed July 15, last. Twenty-four persons are under indictment for that offense and are to appear for trial before the federal court at Scranton next month.

20 PERSONS BURIED IN RUINS OF BURNING HOUSE

Lisbon, Portugal, Feb. 25.—(By The A. P.)—More than seventy persons were buried in the debris of a burning apartment house in the university town of Coimbra Saturday night when the roof of the building caved in. Nine bodies thus far have been taken from the ruins. Sixty persons who were badly injured were removed to hospitals.

The proprietor of the apartement and his wife threw themselves from a window. The man was killed but the woman is still living. A babe the woman had in her arms when she jumped escaped injury.

All business ceased today as a sign of mourning.

RELIGIOUS DEMONSTRATIONS SUNDAY IN LIMERICK

Dublin, Feb. 25.—A great religious demonstration was held at Limerick today under the auspices of the Arch Confraternity of the Holy Trinity. There was an imposing procession through the streets and an address was presented to the Catholic bishop, assuring him of the loyalty of the people.

The bishop in replying justified in detail all the actions of the bishops reciting their pronouncements to prove that they had kept entirely aloof from political issues and only condemned the violation of the moral law.

TURKS HAVE REJECTED THE LAUSANNE PEACE TREATY

London, Feb. 25.—The Turkish papers in Constantinople today publish despatches from Angora announcing that a majority in the grand national assembly, supported by the military, demand the rejection of the Lausanne peace treaty, says a despatch to the Exchange Telegraph from Constantinople.

The despatch adds that the extremists are gaining ground.

BANKS TO AID FARMERS AND LIVESTOCK OWNERS

Washington, Feb. 25.—Two new banking systems devoted exclusively to furnishing financial aid to farmers and livestock owners would be established under the composite rural credits bill to which the house banking committee today gave the finishing touches. Moreover the federal reserve system would be made available for the rediscount of farm paper having a maturity up to nine months and the maximum of loans by federal land banks would be increased from $10,000,000 to $25,000,000.

One of the main features of the Capper bill omitted by the banking committee, was a proposal to extend the war finance corporation for one year, senate supporters of the Capper measure considered this a most important provision, but members of the house committee regarded it as unnecessary in view of the additional credit facilities which would be set up under the composite bill.

ICE CONDITIONS BETTER IN VINEYARD SOUND

Vineyard Haven, Mass., Feb. 25.—Ice conditions in Vineyard Sound and Nantucket Shoals improved greatly between Bullock's Hp and Clayhead. Barges containing 70,000 tons of coal, delayed here because of ice, proceeded northward over the shoals today in to wfor Boston and vicinity. The harbors at Nantucket and Edcartown are still closed to navication.

Serious coal shortage faces Vineyard Haven, Oak Bluffs, West Tisbury, Oakmark and Cuttyhunk as the yards here, on which the five communities depend, are without coal.

Inhabitants of Nantucket are facing a serious food shortage owing to the inability of the coast guard cutter Acushnet yesterday to break through the ice barrier that blocks that port.

"BIG TIM" MURPHY ON HIS WAY TO PENITENTIARY

Chicago, Feb. 25.—Timothy ("Big Tim") Murphy, one of the most spectacular figures in the turbulent history of Chicago union labor, was on his way to the Leavenworth penitentiary tonight to begin a four-year sentence for having taken part in the Dearborn station $500,000 mail robbery.

The jovial good nature that has marked his career from the time he sold newspapers "back-o'-the-yards" until he became a member of the state legislature and an almost dominant figure in local union labor circles, was absent as he boarded the train in the custody of two deputy marshals. He was pale, sour and caustic.

UNEMPLOYED IN PETROGRAD CREATING DISTURBANCES

London, Feb. 25.—Serious disturbances are reported among the unemployed in Petrograd, says a despatch to the Exchange Telegraph from Copenhagen. Red troops who were trying to quell disorders were received with shouts of "We had rather be shot down than starve to death."

The despatch adds that the officers had great difficulty in preventing the troops from joining the unemployed.

Senators Reticent on International Court

Position of Senator Brandegee and Other "Irreconcilables" May Become Known Tuesday.

Washington, Feb. 25.—The attitude of senators on the administration's sudden request yesterday for authority for the United States to join the international court of justice, organized under the league of nations, failed to develop much more clearly today except for increased indications that action would go over until the December session of congress.

The first senatorial line-up on the question will come on Tuesday at the meeting of the foreign relations committee, called by Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts, republican leader, for initial consideration of the plan, presented by President Harding in transmitting to the senate the detailed explanation of the administration program by Secretary Hughes.

The position of Senator Brandegee, of Connecticut, in the group of republican "irreconcilables" as a member of the foreign relations committee, is expected to be developed at this meeting.

Other senators in the "irreconcilable group" also in the committee, whose positions are expected to be clarified on Tuesday are Senators Borah, of Idaho, Johnson of California and Moses of New Hampshire.

Pending the committee meeting, leaders of the "irreconcilable" and "reservationist" groups of republicans generally withheld open expressions of judgment. Democratic leaders, however, especially of the so-called "Wilson group" were in harmony in according approval.

The attitude of the "irreconcilable" faction, which played a powerful part in preventing ratification of the treaty of Versailles, appeared to be one of suspicion and, in some instances, hostility augured for as bitter opposition to the new proposal as to entry of nations.

Significance was seen in the failure of administration leaders, largely belonging to the "reservationists" group in the league fight, to come forward with immediate expressions of approval such as are given customarily to administration moves.

League proponents on the democratic side are coming forward with general endorsement of the aim sought by the administration, but even they are making reservations as to details.

Although Senator Borah recently offered a resolution proposing an international court with a definite international code of laws and jurisdiction, he emphasized at that time that such a court should be distinct from any connection with the league of nations. This circumstance was regarded today as prophetic of Senator Borah's attitude toward the administration plan. Senator Johnson and Senator Reed, of Missouri, a democrat "irreconcilable" have been noted for their hostility to any dealings or connections, however remote, with the league.

Senator Moses said today that the administration plan appeared to involve "staying out and getting into the league at the same time."

With senatorial opinion in the formative stages and with general declaration that judgments would not be reached until after mature deliberation, predictions privately in all quarters were that it would be impossible, within the week remaining before adjournment, for the senate even to initiate action on the administration request.

14,000 RESOLUTIONS AND BILLS BEFORE CONGRESS

Washington, Feb. 25.—The sixty-seventy congress enters the home stretch tomorrow, with more than 14,000 bills and resolutions on its calendars and with prospects of enactment of about 100, including two of major importance, the farm credits legislation and the deficiency appropriation bill.

This year's pre-adjournment jam of legislation promises to be centered more in the house than in the senate. The deficiency bill is scheduled for house passage tomorrow, while the farm credits composite bill will come up in the house on Tuesday.

In the house also vigorous efforts will be made to complete action on the Norris constitutional amendment to change the dates of the presidential inaugural and the convening of congress and to get a vote on Mississippi flood control and other bills.

Prospective disposition tomorrow by the senate of the administration shipping bill is expected to facilitate senate action on a number of other measures. A pending motion to recommit the shiping bill, the draft of which is conceded, is expected to be lost but displacement of the bill by the "filled" milk bill or some other measure is expected, thus consolidating the shipping measure to the legislative boneyard.

The presentation yesterday of the administration's proposal for conditional American representation in The Hage international court of justice under the league of nations promises a sharp flurry in the seate this week, but the opinion is general that action must go over for lack of time, until next December whether any action this week on the proposal is possible.

The end of filibustering in both the senate and house is not yet in sight as there is a prospect of obstruction to several measures yet to be brought forth, including the "truth-in-fabric" bill in the senate.

BANDIT DROPPED MAIL POUCH WHEN PURSUED

New York, Feb. 25.—Believed to have secreted himself in a mail car of a transcontinental train, a bandit today attempted to escape with a pouch of registered mail when the train arrived in the Grand Central terminal. Pursued by postal clerks, track walkers, the man dropped the pouch and fled along the subterranean tracks and escaped. One package of registered mail is missing.

The train which came from San Francisco, by way of Chicago, had five cars of registered mail. The bandit is believed to have entered one of the cars at some stopping point. The value of the missing package has not been determined.

SAFE BLOWERS MADE PRISONERS OF WATCHMEN

Buffalo, N. Y., Feb. 25—Making prisoners of two watchmen, an engineer and a fireman, robbers last night blew open the safe at Ward and Ward's bakery headquarters on Fugeron street and escaped with $7,000.

Rev. Grant Continues Heretic Utterances

Denies the Immaculate Conception of Christ—Avows, to Congregation, His Belief in Evolution.

New York, Feb. 25.—The biblical version of the Garden of Eden, and the story of "Adam, the Apple and Poor Eve" is a fable, Dr. Percy Stickney Grant, rector of the Protestant Episcopal Church of the Ascension, told his congregation today. He made a plea for thorough house-cleaning by the churches.

"There is need of a need religion, if the church will not clean house of all its fetishes," he said. "The fundamentalists in religion believe that they will attain happiness in the world to come, through the belief in the miraculous conception of Christ, His death and ascension into heaven. This theory is as unworthy of modern intelligence as would be the belief today in theories of the Egyptian priests of the past.

"We cannot adhere to fables in religion any longer, for the young people of today are not going to believe what their grandparents did. The mind must contribut something to religion."

Dr. Grant, who recently was the center of a storm because of his expressions denying the deity of Christ, arrayed himself today on the side of evolution. He declared he had "rather be in the upgrade with the descendants of the ape than on the downgrade with Adam as representing the degenerate Son of God." He said that the Old Testament version of a "God of vengeance" was no Christianity, but "part of a pagan system."

CATHOLIC CHAPEL WAS BURNED AT MILFORD

Milford, Conn. Feb. 25.—St. Gabriel's R. C. Chapel was destroyed by fire early here today with a loss estimated at $18,000. An unoccupied cottage nearby also caught fire and was burned to the ground.

The chapel was the property of St. Mary's R. C. church which was threatened by fire yesterday when a blaze started in the roof. The damage to the church was slight.

Because of the recent epidemic of fires in Roman Catholic institutions, it was at first feared that both fires might have been of incendiary origin. Fire Chief Stowe, however, was convinced that the fire in St. Gabriel's chapel started in a furnace room, while the fire in St. Mary's church was believed to have been started by a spark.

The cottage destroyed was owned by M. C. Fitzgerald, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and was valued at $5,000.

TWO DEATHS CAUSED BY ILLUMINATING GAS

Boston, Feb. 25.—Two persons lost their lives and two more were overcome early today as a result of escaping illuminating gas in a lodging house in the South End.

William J. Kerwin, a lodger, noticed the escaping fumes, and breaking down the door of a fellow lodger, James A. McDonald, found him dead in bed with gas escaping from two jets.

In an adjoining room Mrs. Vera Ramcourt was found dead from the gas which had seeped under the door, while her husband, Sylva was unconscious.

Kerwin collapsed after breaking into the second room and was taken to a hospital with Ramcourt. The latter's condition was said to be critical.

SERVICES IN HOUSE FOR REPRESENTATIVE OSBORNE

Washington, Feb. 25.—The last Confederate veteran in the house paid tribute today to the memory of the last Union veteran to serve in that body.

Speaking at memorial services in the house chamber for the late Representative Henry Z. Osborne of California, Representative Stedman of North Carolina declared that Mr. Osborne, though devoted to the cause of the Union states, was entirely free from sectional bias and numbered among his warmest friends those who had fought under the banners of Lee and Jackson.

BROKE PASSAGE THROUGH THE CAPE COD CANAL

New Bedford, Mass., Feb. 25.—The navy tug Wandank, arrived here today, and reported she had succeeded in breaking a passage through the Cape Cod canal, which has been blocked since last Thursday. The navy tug released a number of tugs and colleries that had been tied up at the head of Buzzard's Bay by ice in the canal.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Emeline Burlingame-Cheney.

Providence, R. I., Feb. 25.—Mrs. Emeline Burlingame-Cheney, widow of Prof. Luther P. Burlingame of this city, and direct descendant of Thomas Angell, a cousin of Roger Williams, and one of the founders of Providence, died in this city today in her 87th year.

In her early days Mrs. Burlingame-Cheney was closely identified with the anti-slavery movement and with advocacy of a broader life for women. In 1851, as president of the Providence W. C. T. U., she was influential in having the prohibition amendment placed on Rhode Island statute books. The amendment later was repealed.

Among other posts she held were secretary of the National Council of Women, Washington, in 1893, and president in 1904.

FRENCH HAVE ESTABLISHED STATE OF SIEGE IN BOCHUM

Have Moved Ten Tanks and a Number of Machine Guns to the Center of the Town—Civilians Are Prohibited From Being on the Streets After 10 O'Clock at Night—22 Members of the City Council Were Arrested Saturday During the Sitting of the Council—The Allies Operating the Rhineland and the Ruhr Railroad Systems.

Essen, Feb. 25.—(By the A. P.)—The storm center of the Ruhr has shifted to Bochum. Because of the general hostile attitude of the population there a state of siege has been declared.

The French have moved ten tanks and numerous machine guns to the center of the town and civilians are prohibited from being on the streets after 9 o'clock at night.

Last night 50 persons were arrested for disregarding the orders of the French, but most of them were released today. Bochum from the beginning has stubbornly refused to comply quietly with many orders of the French command, and there has been more or less trouble. Owing to the fact that the oberburgomeister had disregarded certain requisitions by the French he and twenty-two members of the city council were arrested Friday during the sitting of the council.

The French have taken over the headquarters of the chamber of commerce and searched the building from garret to cellar for secret documents. It was this organization which was presumed to have inaugurated the boycott which began at Bochum against the French and Belgians and spread to other towns in the Ruhr. The chamber is supposed to have been aiding the Germans generally. The newspapers claim the building of the chamber and its furniture and paintings were unnecessarily damaged by the troops. The papers head their articles dealing with the situation with "new wild west scenes in Bochum" and similar captions.

GERMANS INTERESTED IN SCHWAB'S EUROPEAN TRIP

Berlin, Feb. 25.—(By The A. P.)—Official quarters are evincing more than an informal interest in Charles M. Schwab's European trip and, although no information has yet reached Berlin that the American steel magnate will include the Ruhr and Berlin in his itinerary, strong hopes, nevertheless, are cherished that he will decide to look the situation over in person, especially with reference to the future development of the Rhenish steel industry and its significance as concerns American competitive markets.

Mr. Schwab's suggestion, made in London, that a small international commission be appointed to determine Germany's capacity to pay reparations and establish a final sum as reparations is viewed here as in keeping with the recommendations advanced by Charles E. Hughes, the American secretary of state, in his New Haven speech.

Reiteration of German approval of Secretary Hughes' formula was voiced today by an official of the foreign office, who declared that Mr. Schwab's plan would meet with German endorsement, although this acquiescence apparently was based on the assumption that the investigating commission also would include German representatives in case deliberations were participated in by entente delegates.

"If, however, the commission was to be composed exclusively of neutral experts, Germany, it was stated, would abide by the verdict rendered by such an impartial tribunal.

ALLIES ARE OPERATING THE RAILROAD SYSTEMS

Duesseldorf, Feb. 25—(By the A. P.)—Rapid progress is being made by the French and Belgians in operating the Rhineland and Ruhr railroad systems. It was announced today that passenger trains are to be run from Essen and Duesseldorf direct to Paris beginning today.

In connection with the improved transportation situation it was stated that plans for taking over these railroad lines within a week had practically been completed by the occupation authorities. The lines will be operated by French and Belgian civilian workers. Some 12,000 to 15,000 of whom already are here awaiting to take up their tasks.

General Payot plans to bring [illegible] many more men, as [illegible] are needed. Before this step is taken, however, it was announced at French headquarters today that an opportunity would be given the striking German railroad men to join the transportation forces. It was said that 400 German railroad workers already had agreed to resumed work.

Under the plan all German railroad men will be given ample opportunity to return to their jobs. Those who refuse to do so will be expelled from occupied territory on the ground that they constitute a menace to the community. It is estimated that there are 60,000 German railroaders in the Ruhr district alone, of whom 40,000 are striking.

NO ACTS OF VIOLENCE OR VANDALISM AT BOCHUM

Paris, Feb. 25.—A Havas despatch from Duesseldor says that the reported acts of violence by the French in the Chamber of Commerce at Bochum are pure inventions. Bochum, it is added, is the chief center of anti-French agitation in the Ruhr and it has been necessary to take steps against the municipality and the chamber, which organized the construction and boycotting against the French and Belgians. The Chamber of Commerce was searched on Saturday and documents were seized, but no vandalism such as alleged was committed.

ALLIES TAKE STRIP OF ADDITIONAL TERRITORY

Duesseldorf, Feb. 25.—(By The A. P.)—As part of the plan for closing the customs ring around the Rhineland and the Ruhr, French troops today took over a small strip of additional territory on the right bank of the Rhine. The newly occupied area was the neutral zone separating the bridgeheads of Cologne and Coblenz and Coblenz and Mayence, and the border railroad running from Cologne on the right bank of the Rhine.

This occupation completely cuts off [illegible] occupied [illegible] Germany. On part of the strip is the [illegible] winter district, southeast of Bonn. The other is the zone between the southern edge of the former American [illegible] northern edge of the Mayence bridgehead and the Lorch. The French [illegible] today advance at six [illegible] and had completed [illegible] with a few [illegible] this afternoon.

The French military today closed the Duesseldorf office of the Wolff Bureau, the semi-official German news agency.

FRANCE TO ISSUE SIX AND TEN YEAR TREASURY BONDS

Paris, Feb. 25.—(By The A. P.)—A decree authorizing issue of [illegible] six and ten year treasury bonds at six per cent. interest, as printed in the official journal today. The issue price will be 5 [illegible] payments must be in cash, with the exception that the two-year treasury bonds issued in 1921 will be accepted in payment for the new bonds. The redemption price in two years will be 100; in six years 105, and in ten years 105.

The issue will be placed on the market March 5 and the books will close at the outset April 5th.

FRENCH TOOK 65,000,000 MARKS FROM RAILWAY OFFICIALS

Birlin, Feb. 25.—(By The A. P.)—French police in civilian clothes have taken 65,000,000 marks from German railway officials in a restaurant at Moselweis, near Coblenz, according to special despatches from Frankfort-on-Main. At the time of the seizure the railway officials were paying off the railway workers.

MARY MACSWINEY HAS APPEALED TO THE POPE

Dublin, Feb. 25 (By the A. P.)—Mary MacSwiney, sister of Annie MacSwiney, who recently was arrested by the Free State authorities and now is in Kilmainham prison on a hunger strike, has sent an appeal to Pope Pius to see that Miss MacSwiney receives religious consolation, which she charges is not being given her. The message to the pope says:

"Most Holy Father: The younger sister of Terence MacSwiney, who was honored with the blessing of your predecessor on his death bed in Brixton prison, is now eleven days on a hunger strike for the same cause. She is refused the consolation of the sacraments, which she had daily, because of unjust political partisanship of the bishops, who have refused to follow the example of your holiness.

"Grave offense is being caused to sincere Catholics by the grave injustice of the bishops. I appeal to your holiness to insure for my sister the consolations of religion, as she appealed for me last November in similar conditions. The unfair political action of the Irish hierarchy is not harming the fight for a republic, but it is fraught with grave consequences to the religion of the oppressed-and Catholics, who, in resenting injustice, do not distinguish between individual bishops and the church."

It is considered likely that if Annie MacSwiney is not released Mary MacSwiney will go on a hunger strike outside the Kilmainham prison gate.

FRENCH WOMEN PREFER AMERICANS AS HUSBANDS

Paris, Feb. 25 (By the A. P.).—The woman's weekly, Eve, recently in one of its issues asked its readers two questions. The first of these was what occupation they would prefer their husband to follow and the other, if they were [illegible] to [illegible] what nationality the [illegible] possess a husband.

Nearly [illegible] were received to the [illegible] and [illegible] to the [illegible] that they [illegible] for their [illegible] made a poor [illegible] to [illegible] co[illegible] and [illegible] other nation, aside from the United States, Italy and England passed the 400 mark. The list closed with Turkey, for whose subjects 18 women voted they had a preference.

On the question of the occupation of a husband, the manufacturer led the van with 5,000 votes. He was followed by the [illegible] with 2,000, and the [illegible] actor with 1,800. [illegible] or profession reached the 1000 figure mark. The aviator was ninth in the list with 360 ballots, and the engineer twelfth with 141. Lawyers were received from women who would have army or navy officers or state employes as their husbands.

GERMANY HEARD MUSIC "RADIOED" FROM THE U. S.

Lichterfelde, Feb. 25 (By the A. P.)—Germany for the first time on Saturday morning listened to a program of music transmitted by radio from the United States. The experimental wireless station at Nauen at 6 o'clock Saturday morning picked up the voice of Miss Edith Bennett singing in a department store in Newark, N. J.

Both the vocal and instrumental tones were perfectly audible. The transmission is regarded as remarkable since the broadcasting station operated on a 400 metre wave length, the same as is commonly used for nearby American listeners. Eight high vacuum amplifiers were used in receiving, but only ordinary antennae eight meters high.

Lichterfelde is a suburb of Berlin. Reports were received in New York Saturday that receiving stations in England and France and far inland cities of the United States heard Miss Bennett singing in Newark.

WILLIMANTIC

NORWICH BULLETIN
Willimantic Office
31 Church Street Telephone 1062

Indications point to the fact that Windham will be one of the few towns of the state that will not increase the tax rate on the grand list of 1922. The complication of the budget figures for 1922-23 Saturday, even with the extraordinary expenses for the year against the revenue from the grand list and other town revenue, tend to show that an eleven mill tax rate, which is the same as last year, will cover the current expenses of the present year.

Besides the budget made out by the board of selectmen and accepted by the electors at the annual town meeting last October, which was $260,650, there is an addition to be paid during the year, a balance of $13,000 on the new school building at Windham Center. Saturday morning, the board of selectmen received a bill of $16,490.29 which is its share of the Windham county tax levied by the Windham county member of the legislature a few weeks ago. The county tax of the 15 towns was set at $50,000 and it is up to Windham to pay one-third of the amount.

The town of Windham now has a total of $290,140.29 to pay out. According to the returns of the board of assessors to the state tax commissioner's office at Hartford, the taxable grand list of the town of Windham is $17,062,672. Deductions from those figures to be made by the board of relief is about $132,672, leaving $16,930,000 to be taxed. The deductions are mostly exemptions to veterans of the various wars.

A ten mill tax would raise $169,300, and an eleven mill tax would net $186,230. The other income of the town includes money in the treasury totalling, $47,493, personal taxes, $12,000, rents and miscellaneous, $5,000 cemeteries, $47,593, personal taxes, $12,000, rents and miscellaneous $5,000; cemeteries, $5,000; dog licenses, $800; support of schools, $32,000; a total of $99,893, plus income from direct taxation of property, $286,069, or $4,080 short of the apparent expenses for the year.

This year, as in former years, there are the usual agitators for a lower tax rate of ten mills and a number advocate a twelve mill tax rate for the present year, giving as a reason that the new addition to the Natchaug school will cost $80,000 and it would be wise to provide for that with an extra mill.

The tax rate is to be levied at a special meeting this (Monday) night at the town hall. At this meeting the electors will be asked to vote the sum of $18,000 for a new horseshoe bridge over the Natchaug river, and to vote approximately $12,000 for the erection of a new receiving vault at the New Willimantic cemetery. There is much talk against the voting in favor of these two projects and the building of both would mean the addition of two extra mills on the tax.

Mrs. Annie Terasek, pleaded not guilty to the charge of assault on Katherine Dzialak, in police court Saturday morning as the result of trouble caused by the bursting of a water pipe in the upstairs tenement at No. 980 Main street, occupied by Mrs. Terasek and which caused water to leak through the ceiling into the tenement below, occupied by Katherine Dzialak. Isidore Heller acted as interpreter for Mrs. Terezek. Mrs. Dzialak's story was that on Thursday she was engaged in cooking dinner when water came through the ceiling and she went to the bottom of the stairs and asked Mrs. Terezak to shut off the water upstairs. Not receiving any response she sent her eight year old daughter, Mary to see Mrs. Terazek and according to the witness Mrs. Terazek took hold of the child and kicked her. Witness then started up the stairs but was met by Mrs. Terazek who swung a stick and struck her several blows on the back and head and finally on the mouth, causing it to bleed. Mrs. Dziniak then came to the police station and entered the complaint. Officer Thomas Grady was sent to the house and warned the women to stop all hostilities. Mrs. Dziziak again came to the police station the following day and Mrs. Terazek was told to appear in court Saturday morning. Mary Dziziak testified to being kicked and to seeing her mother being struck by Mrs. Terazek.

Mrs. Terazek explained that the pipe had burst and she could do nothing to stop the flow of water. She denied striking either the girl or Mrs. Dziziak. Officer Grady testified that Mrs. Dziziak was bleeding at the mouth when she came to the police station.

Mrs. Terazek was found guilty by Judge Foss and fined $1 and costs totalling $7.15 which was paid by a friend.

Joe the Turk, from Constantinople, arrived in this city Saturday morning to conduct a three days campaign. He has been a member of the Salvation Army for forty years and an American citizen for 41 years. He is the son of an Armenian priest. He speaks on different subjects at each costume. His speeches are enlivened meeting and appears in a full Turkish by selections on a double jointed cornet, a clarinet and a saxophone.

Joe the Turk introduced the saxophone in this country, Canada, Great Britain, France, Greece and Turkey. He also plays a Turkish drum.

He conducted services Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon and evening and will again be heard this (Monday) evening. Joe the Turk is a remarkably influential speaker.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE-AWAKES

MITTENS.

I know that it is winter now.
I do not have to look
At frosted panes or snowy lanes
Like pictures in a book.
For there behind the kitchen stove
Is evidence of snow.
Their mittens gray each wintry day
Are hanging in a row.

Until the snow has cleared away
They're hanging there to dry;
A soft gray pair for sister fair
To match each clear gray eye.
And gauntlets warm to keep from harm
Big brother's sturdy fists;
Angora wool made long to pull
On baby brother's wrists.

Three pairs of mitts on knitted strings,
So soggy and so wet
As they come in with bustling din,
And dreams of food beset.
They're safely in the house at last,
I always know the sign,
When out they go and hang just so,
Their mittens on the line.
—Anne Campbell, in Detorit News.

THE MONKEY'S WEDDING.

The monkey married the baboon's sister,
Smacked his lips, and then he kissed her;
Kissed so hard he raised a blister,
She set up a yell.

The bridesmaid stuck on some court plaster,
It stuck so fast it couldn't stick faster;
Surely 'twas a sad disaster,
But it soon got well.

What do you think the bride was dressed in?
White gauze veil and green glass breastpin,
White kid shoes that were quite interestin',
She was quite a belle.

The groom, he sported a blue shirt collar,
Black silk stock that cost a dollar,
Large false whiskers, the fashion to foller;
He was quite a swell.

What do you think they had for supper
Black-eyed beans and bread and butter;
Ducks in the duck-house all in a flutter;
Pickled oysters, too!

Chestnuts raw and boiled and roasted,
Apples sliced and onions toasted;
Music in the corner posted,
Waiting for the cue.

What do you think was the tune they danced to
"The Drunken Sailor" and sometimes "Jim Crow."
Tails in the way—and some got pinched, too,
'Cause they were too long.

What do you think they had for a fiddle?
An old banjo with a hole in the middle,
A tambourine made out of a riddle,
And that's the end of my song!

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE-AWAKES.

Be thrifty and save is the subject of one of this week's prize winning letters. This letter brought to Uncle Jed's mind the story of a poor boy who wanted a bicycle and who earned and saved money enough to buy it. Several of his friends had bicycles, and he wanted one, too. As his parents were too poor to buy one for him, there was only one way to get it, and that was to earn it. So he shoveled snow in the winter, cleaned out furnaces, ran errands, and sold papers. Every cent he earned he saved until he had enough to buy the wheel.

Thrift is a good habit to cultivate in childhood. Many children do not realize the value of a penny. As soon as they have a penny given them, off they rush to the candy store and hand it over for a piece of candy. Now a penny isn't much when we have but one, but when we start to save them they soon mount up to the dollar mark.

Some boys and girls have a habit of spending a penny a day in the candy store. If these boys and girls would only stop and think, they would realize that in a year's time they spend 360 pennies, or, in terms of dollars, over three dollars and a half. To many boys and girls $3.59 would be something of a small fortune.

The bank book habit goes in hand in hand with the thrift habit. A bank book bought in childhood for ten pennies may mean hundreds of dollars in later years, provided the owner keeps adding his pennies, nickels and dimes to the credit side of the book. If a child gets the bank book habit and keeps adding to his account steadily for a number of years, he will find that when he needs money, perhaps for a college education or to enter some business, that he will receive back more money than he put in the bank.

In other words, money in the bank earns more money for its owner, even while he sleeps, in the form of interest. One of the easiest ways to earn money is to put it in the bank and leave it there. The longer it is left in the bank the more it will earn and in time it will double itself.

Pennies saved now will mean dollars to you when you grow up and these dollars may be the means of putting you through college or of establishing you in business.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE-AWAKES.

Snow But No Skating.

Dear Uncle Jed: Just a few lines to the Wide-Awakes to tell you that we have lots of snow but no skating. We had a storm this morning and I did not go to school. It was raining this morning. The snow is two inches thick down my way. We have good sliding in the country this year.

DANIEL MURTHA, Age 9.
Hallville.

Bird Life in Winter.

Dear Uncle Jed: One day my sister and I were playing games in the warm room. All of a sudden, we heard a noise, but we didn't know what it was. Then I saw a little bird picking at the window, as if it wanted to ask me to let it in.

It was an awful cold day, and the ground was covered with snow. I thought myself, that the little bird must be hungry, so I got a little grain and threw it on the snow. The bird could not eat it because the grain was too large. So my sister ground it fine and mixed it with hayseed. I then placed some boards on the top of a post and put the feed on it. The little bird soon found it and was busy eating it. It had also brought its mate. They were both enjoying their meal.

The next day we were surprised for all the birds from nearby were there to eat. There were snow birds, sparrows and bluejays.

By and by they became so tame that we could walk close to them. We hoped that they would sing us songs in summer for their thankfulness. Don't you think all the Wide-Awakes should do so?

WILLIAM KUHNE, Age 13.
Yantic.

About My Pet Dog.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my first letter to the Wide-Awakes and I am going to write about my pet dog.

Her name is Shep. She likes to sleep in the barn. She will shake hands with you. She likes to catch woodchucks. She is very handy driving cows. She follows us wherever we go.

ELLSWORTH BENNETT, Age 8.
Preston.

Was Just Like Snow Man.

Dear Uncle Jed: My big uncle gave me a Flexible Flyer and a pair of skiis. My friend and I go skiing down my bank. This noontime I fell down but I did not hurt myself. I then came to school and fell in the snowbank and was just like a snowman.

FRANCIS M'BRIDE, Age 9.
Danielson.

My Dog.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you all about my pet dog. It is black and white. Her name is Queenie, and we like her very much. We have some fun playing with her. And I hope that some of the Wide-Awakes will enjoy as much fun as a do playing with her.

WILLIAM J. MACOMBER, Age 9.
Voluntown.

In Fourth Grade.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am a girl in the fourth grade. We have a feeding station at school. It is twenty-three inches long and ten inches wide and three inches high. We hope to see bluebirds, sparrows, woodpeckers and snowbirds eating the suet and seeds.

PRISCILLA, Age 9.
Danielson.

Has Gray and White Kitty.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am a little girl and my name is Ruth. I have a gray and white kitty called Buddy. My mama tells me to always tell the truth.

Papa and I went on a visit to my Aunt Delia's home. I had a nice time playing with my little Cousin Edward. We had lots of fun sliding down hill. This is my first letter to the Wide-Awake Circle and I hope it will be a good one. I will write again some day.

RUTH G. MILLER, Age 7.
Norwich Town.

A Day at the Beach.

Dear Uncle Jed: Last summer I visited my cousin who lives near the sea, water. One day we decided to go to the beach and stay all day. In the forenoon we were in the water and on the beach. At noon we ate a lunch which we had taken with us, in a park nearby.

Along near the middle of the afternoon I decided to try to swim as I had never learned. After several unsuccessful attempts I thought I would try floating. My cousin said she would help me. I was rather frightened when my head went down in the water, as it has to when you float. She took hold of my shoulders and immediately I found myself being "ducked." After that I decided I could get along without her help. I ducked her several times but there wasn't much satisfaction in it as she was used to salt water and didn't mind it.

MARGERY E. GRAY, Age 13.
Willimantic.

About My School Room.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you something about my room. The school board just put a new electric light in our room. All of us enjoy it very much. We all follow Cho-Cho's health rules. Our teacher bought some new records and we all know their names. They are Ave Maria, by Schubert; Humoresque, by Dvorak; Baccarole, by Offenbach; Narcissus, by Nevin; Sextette from Lucia, by Donzette.

ROSE GOODMAN, Age 11.
Danielson.

About a Lumber Camp.

Dear Uncle Jed: I'm going to tell about the lumber camps. The lumber men have two large houses. One is called a messhouse where the men eat. Another is called the bunkhouse where the men sleep. It has shelves around the room. The men sleep on these shelves.

WARREN YOUNGBLOOD, Age 10.
DANIELSON.

The Story of Columbus.

Dear Uncle Jed: Christopher Columbus was born in Genoa, a seaport of Italy, more than four hundred and fifty years ago. His father was a woolcomber. But Columbus did not care to learn that trade. He wanted to become a sailor. So when he was fourteen he made his first voyage. He made three voyages across the Atlantic ocean. Early one Friday morning, August 3, 1492, Columbus started from Palos to attempt to cross that ocean which men then called the Sea of Darkness, a name which showed how little they knew of it and how much they dreaded it. Columbus discovered America, Cuba and Hayti. When he went back there was a loud noise all over the whole village. The church bells rang a merry peal of welcome because Columbus had returned safely.

MILDRED KENNEDY, Age 11.
Moosup.

My Pet.

Dear Uncle Jed: I have been reading the letters in the Wide-Awake Circle and enjoyed them very much. So I thought I would try to write a letter. I would like to tell you about my dog. My father went to Canada and I told him to bring me a dog. I did not think that he would.

When he came home I heard a dog barking. I opened the door of the car and a little white, curly dog jumped out. I said "Isn't he a beauty?" So we named him Beauty. He likes me very much.

ALLISON M'ARTHUR, Age 11.
Willimantic.

My Trip to Mason's Island.

Dear Uncle Jed: Last summer my father, brothers and sisters and myself, started about 6 o'clock for Mason's Island. What a lovely ride we had. We saw some lovely residences, a lot of nice cows and the new state road down to North Stonington. Then papa said you will know when we get to the salt water by the air. We could smell it in the air. We arrived there about 4 o'clock. I was tired. Before we settled our camp we had to run down to the shore. We went in bathing and when the tide went out we dug some clams. I never saw clams dug before. We saw the buoy in Mystic to tell when the tide comes in and when the tide goes out. You can bet, Uncle Jed, we enjoyed our trip very much but I was tired when we got home.

EMMA J. ROODE, Age 11.

Earned Money For Thrift Stamps.

Dear Uncle Jed: One day while all my schoolmates were studying their lessons a man came in. This man was from Norwich. He told us that there was a bank in Norwich where children can save money and be thrifty. After the man left the school I asked the teacher what thrifty meant. The teacher answered, "It means that all children should save money instead of spending it on candy or such unnecessary things." Then I said, "Teacher, do you have to save money in the bank when you have thrift stamps?" "Well," she said, "You are helping the government, so I think you don't have to."

Now I will tell you what I did to get money to buy thrift stamps. I helped my mother do work when I came home from school. When it snows I help shovel the snow. You may think it funny, but when you want to earn money you don't care what it is. I did all kinds of things to get money to buy thrift stamps. One day one of my friends was working with me. She earned a quarter while I earned thirty cents. Instead of doing work she went around complaining of her bad luck. After a while that same day at evening, what do you think I saw? She was in a candy store and spent the quarter on candy. When she came out I said to her: "That is a nice way to get thrift stamps." That is not the way to make money. This happened three years ago.

ESTHER KRESEWITZ, Age 12.
Columbia.

My Fishing Trip.

Dear Uncle Jed: During my last vacation Fred and I went fishing. We walked about two miles into the country. When we got there we hired a boat and went to the fishing grounds and tied the boat. At four o'clock we counted our fish and Fred had twenty-six and I had twenty-one. So we rowed the boat to shore and started walking home.

On our way we met a man and he asked us if we would sell him some fish, so we sold him fifteen for 75 cents. And then we had thirty-two left, so we took home the rest and gave them to my mother and gave her half the money. I hope all the Wide-Awakes will be interested in reading this story.

WILBUR VARS.
Westerly, R. I.

My Pet Hen

Dear Uncle Jed: I thought I would write and tell you about my pet hen. She is seven years old, and every time I go to pick her up she will sit down for me. I hope that some of the other Wide-Awakes are as good to their pet hen as I am.

JOHN F. ROODE, Age 9.
Voluntown.

Lost in the Woods.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the second time I have written to you. One day my friend and I started for the Gap. We didn't exactly know the way but determined to take chances. It took us quite a while to find it, but finally we reached our destination. We found the well known spring nearby and refreshed ourselves. After lunch we rested a while.

It was getting dark so we decided to start for home. We walked in a narrow path for some time and came to where it divided into two branches. Neither of us recognized the scenery. To think we were in strange woods and all alone!

We walked on hoping to reach a farmhouse where we could find a way to inform our parents of our situation. In the distance we could distinguish a light. We hurried our steps with a faint hope that encouraged us. Finally we saw that it was a farmhouse.

After knocking at the door for a few seconds, we were answered by a middle aged woman. We told her our story and she let us come in, and cooked us a supper.

Later when her husband came home he brought us to town in his horse and team. You can imagine how thankful we were.

Baltic.

Nearly Hit By Auto.

Dear Uncle Jed: On my way home from school I crossed the street to talk to a little girl. I did not look to see if anything was coming. I stumbled and fell. An automobile happened along but it stopped just in time to save me. If I had looked before I crossed the street probably I would not have fallen.

EUNICE BROWN, Age 9.
Danielson.

Lives On a Farm.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you all about our farm. I live on a farm three miles from the city. We have two cows and one horse and one hundred and thirty-five chickens. I am going to have a garden this spring. I am going to plant some flowers, sweet corn, sweet peas, potatoes, beets and many other vegetables.

I have a little dog. His name is Tootsy. He is two years old. He is growing nice and fat. Every night I come from school he comes up to meet me. When my sister and cousin come home I put on the supper and after they finish I wash the dishes and put them in their places.

JOSEPHINE SOCHA, Age 9.
Poquetanuck.

Studying About Birds.

Dear Uncle Jed: We have been studying about birds. One little girl brought a feeding tray. We have not put it out yet but are going to soon. All the children hope the birds will come to eat. The birds like corn, oats and sunflower seeds.

GURDON ASPINWALL, Age 10.
Danielson.

The Happy Snow Birds.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writting a story. The name of it is "The Happy Snow Birds." The snow was two feet deep. The snow birds did not have anything to eat. They went over to the houses to look for food. Some children saw them and gave them some food. They put it near the hen house. The birds got so used to seeing the children that they were no much afraid.

Then the children opened some of the windows in the hen house. The birds went in. The children closed them up again and gave the birds food inside. The birds did not know how cold it was outside because it was warm inside. These birds did not suffer from cold and hunger that winter. Don't you think that they were happy birds?

CHARLES GERMAN.
Columbia.

When I Grow Up.

Dear Uncle Jed: I thought that I would write you a letter on What I Would Like to Be When I Grow Up.

My only desire is that when I grow up I'd like to be a public school teacher because I just love to teach the little tots right from wrong and watch them as they are promoted from one class to another. That is one reason. The second reason is because I'd like to teach the children and help them on to higher schools and make something worth while out of themselves so that this country may be more proud of its smart, educated people. That is why I would like to be a teacher more than anything else.

Hoping that you will like my letter.

Colchester.

Made Health Trains.

Dear Uncle Jed: In our school we have been learning different pieces on the Victrola. We also have been making health trains. Last Tuesday we made drawings and made some covers for a poem we have been illustrating.

SHIELDON ENNIS, Age 9.
Danielson.

A School Victrola.

Dear Uncle Jed: We have in our room a Victrola. Miss Woodworth is trying to have us learn some good music. These are what we have learned: Humoresque, by Dvorak; Baccarole, by Offenbach; Narcissus, by Nevin. Now we are learning Ave Maria.

ANNA RICHMOND, Age 10.
Danielson.

How Tommy Spoiled the Party.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have ever written to you, so I am going to tell you about a party three girls were going to have. Their names were Alice, May and Clara. They were prepared for a good time. They had all kinds of fruits, cakes, candies and sandwiches.

Alice's brother, Tommy, wanted to come, too, but Alice would not let him. So when the party commenced Tommy climbed upon a barrel that stood by the wall and he peeped over.

Just then he lost his balance and fell against the wall. A rock fell out of the wall onto the table breaking dishes and scattering the things all about. The girls started to run. When they heard another crash and looking back they saw Tommy getting up from the ruins of the table. Tommy started to run but Alice called him back. "Aren't you sorry for what you have done?" asked Alice. "Yes," said the ashamed Tommy and he never tried to spy on them again.

"Be Thrifty and Save"

Dear Uncle Jed: I have recently been reading the letters of the "Wide Awakes." They are very interesting so I thought I would write one.

Johnny was a very small boy just starting school. His teacher one day was giving the pupils of his class a lesson on "thrift." She was explaining to the best of her ability, trying to make her youthful pupils understand the meaning of "thrift." Along with the lesson Johnny received advice at home from his parents about "Come, come!" shouted dear Uncle Lucky, the nice old gentleman rabbit as the front door bell rang, "Come in!" and he opened the door of his little white house on the corner of Lettuce avenue and Carrot street, Rabbitville, U. S. A.

My Goodness! what a long line of people stretched from the little porch. Why it reached way down Lettuce avenue as far as Cabbage street.

"You're on time, I'm glad to see," laughed Uncle Lucky, as he pointed to the hat rack in the hall. "Hang up your hats and then go into the sitting-room."

In a little while all the shady forest and sunny meadow folk were seated, ready to catch the first word over the radio by David Cory.

4 Little Jack Rabbit and Uncle Lucky stood by the table on which the radio apparatus rested and pretty soon the little rabbit shouted, "Here it comes!"

Sure enough, he was right—

"Hello, boys and girls, little rabbits and birds, chipmunks and bullfrogs: I'm going to tell you about the little bunny who wished to be a bird. One day, as he was hopping through the wood, the nice kind Tailor Bird said to him. "I'll make you a flying suit if you'll give me seven lollypops."

"Here they are," said the little rabbit, opening his knapsack.

Then the Tailor Bird took the little rabbit to his shop in the Big Oak Tree, and after cutting and sewing and fitting and trimming he turned out a beautiful flying suit which fitted the little rabbit without a wrinkle.

It was a wonderful suit, with a pair of wings and a tail to steer by.

No sooner did the little rabbit have it on than he give a hop, skip and jump and then away he went over the houses and over the steeples, over the cities and over the peoples. Goodness, how he did go!

After a while and maybe a mile, he said to himself; "I mustn't lose my way. Up here in the air there is no little trail like the one in the Shady Forset. Neither is there a winding cow path like that on the Sunny Meadow.

"You had better turn around for home." said the Sun. "When I'm gone, it will be dark up here!"

So the little bunny turned about. But, dear me! after he had gone for a mile or more, maybe three or perhaps four, he got lost. Dear, dear me. He couldn't see his dear home anywhere on the earth below. Wasn't that dreadful!"

"I'm lost, I'm lost he cried and his poor little eyes filled with tears and his pink nose grew red and twinkly.

But just then he heard a wireless message from David Cory, the Jazz Rabbit Man.

"Don't lose heart, little bunny. Wipe your eyes on the blue polka dot handkerchief Mother gave you for Easter and then fly down behind that clump of trees.

"Oh, thank you, Uncle Dave!" cried the little bunny and would you believe it, there on the other side of the tall trees was his own little house in the Briar Patch.

"Now, wasn't that a fine story" asked Uncle Lucky after David Cory had said Good Night. And all the little people of the Shady Forest and Sunny Meadow answered yes

LEAGUE TEAMS OFF FOR SOUTH TRAIN FOR 1923 PENNANT RACES

New York Feb 25. - Heralding the approach of spring and another baseball campaign, advance caravans of nearly all the sixteen major league baseball clubs now are on their way south for the annual conditioning process. Training camps, scattered in lands of the palmetto and cactus from Florida to Catalina Islands, Calif., will be in full swing for all of the clubs by the second week of March.

For the veterans, the next six weeks or so of conditioning and exhibition practising will mean shedding excess poundage acquired during the winter lay-off and barbering up for competition with eager and ambitious recruits, hundreds of whom will strive for major league positions in the first time in their careers.

This drive for regular league positions promises to be especially keen among several clubs going through a marked process of reorganization, including the Cleveland and Boston Americans, and the Brooklyn, Chicago and St. Louis Nationals.

Interest among fans is centered largely on the prospects of the New York Giants and Yankees repeating their triumphs of the past two seasons in the face of increasing strength among several of the more dangerous rivals.

While they are not discounting the opposition they will encounter this year, Manager McGraw, of the Giants, and Huggins, of the Yankees, are confident their teams will keep the National and American league pennants in the same city for the third straight year.

Both pilots declare their teams will be decidedly stronger, although they play consistent little rebuilding. The Yankees, to McGraw's opinion, are as the club the Giants must displace to stay at the top of the heap, while the Yankee leader expects a stronger battle from Ty Cobb's Detroit Tigers, Cincinnati, in the National, and St. Louis, in the American, are picked as the next strongest contenders by the metropolitan club managers.

McGraw has announced that he will stand pat on his 1922 championship line-up, with the possible exception of centerfield, devoting most of his attention to bolstering weakness in the pitching staff which nearly cost the club the pennant last season. Jimmy O'Connell, $75,000 "phenom" from San Francisco, is expected to fill the berth in midfield, but McGraw will give the veteran Casey Stengel, whose comeback was a sensation last year, and Bill Cunningham an opportunity to contest for the job with the coast youngster.

Jack Bentley, another expensive acquisition is expected to add considerable strength to the pitching corps. Bentley started both as a portside flinger and slugger with the Baltimore Orioles for several years, but his work with the champions will be confined to the mound, according to McGraw. The Giant leader has a dozen more recruits from whom he hopes to weed another twirling star. He also looks for decided improvement from his veterans—Hugh McQuillan, Jack Scott, Art Nehf and Jess Barnes—besides greater effectiveness from younger moundsmen like Bill Ryan, Claude Jonnard and Virgil Barnes.

Pittsburgh's veteran and hard-hitting aggregation, in McGraw's belief, will prove a formidable obstacle, under the leadership of Bill McKechnie, who took the Pirate helm around midseason last year and developed the club into a dangerous contender in the closing month of the campaign.

Cincinnati, reorganized with a brilliant young infield and good pitching, also figures strongly in McGraw's calculations, while the Chicago Cubs, with a pitching staff above the ordinary, promise to bear watching.

Huggins bases much of his confidence in 1923 prospects upon his belief that the Yankees pitching staff, the deciding factor in last year's race, will be even more consistent this year and that Babe Ruth, if he returns to 1921 form, will bolster the morale and attacking strength of the club.

The diminutive pilot figures Carl Mays and Sam Jones, whose pitching was a disappointment last season, will flash old-time form, while Bob Shawkey and Joe Bush, 1922 mainstays, will be more effective than ever. Ruth's determination to regain the home-run hitting laurels he lost last year has been demonstrated by the strict program of conditioning to which he adhered during the winter on his Massachusetts farm.

The Tigers, formidable last season, will be much stronger, according to the Yankee view, as a result of the acquisition of Del Pratt, veteran second baseman, and Rip Collins, southpaw twirler, from the Red Sox in exchange for Howard Ehmke, pitcher. Cobb has an unusual array of heavy hitters, flanked by a promising corps of young pitchers—a combination which will be hard to keep from the top.

The St. Louis Browns, unless they are strengthened at several positions, are not rated as high as last year when they finished just a game behind the Yankees in a thrilling finish, nor as dangerous as the Tigers.

The Chicago White Sox, with a team that developed fast last year and boasted a brilliant string of young pitchers and Comiskey Park's Addition, who are due to emerge from the depths new fierce contenders for this season's pennant race.

Florida is the most popular training ground this year, seven clubs choosing the Everglades state for their workouts. Texas, Alabama and Arkansas each have two clubs in their domain, while Louisiana, Georgia and California each have one.

The list of 1923 training sites follows:

CUBS TO HAVE BIG GRANDSTAND AT CHICAGO

Chicago, Feb. 25.—(By the Associated Press.)—Chicago will have the largest single deck baseball stand in the country when the new Cub's park is completed for the opening of the 1923 season. The work is rapidly nearing completion at a cost of nearly $900,000.

When finished the park will have a seating capacity of approximately 31,000 compared with a previous capacity of 17,000. There will be 9,277 box seats, 16,672 grand stand seats and about 5,000 bleacher seats.

The old steel and concrete stand, which was erected in 1914 by the Chicago Federals. In 1918 it was cut into three parts, the side sections were moved back while the central section was left on its original position and the open space between the stand was filled in with new sections.

The new grounds and stands will occupy one square block. There will be twenty entrances, and thirty ticket windows. Heretofore, the park had only one set of bleacher seats, but under the reconstruction, there will be bleacher seats in both right and left fields.

With the enlargement of the stand also came enlargement of the playing field. The baseball path was moved back sixty-eight feet, and then turned more to the northwest. The distance from the home plate to the center field is 440 feet. The depth of the playing field in the foul lines will be about 345 feet.

The cost of the stand at the time of its erection was approximately $350,000. The plant exclusive of the franchise, will now be worth approximately $750,000.

A six-room bungalow will be built in the northwest corner of the site to be used by the ground superintendent as a home and office.

SMITH AND CAMPBELL TURN IN LOW SCORES

Belleair Heights, Fla., Feb 25.—Alex Smith, Belleair professional, paired with Alexander (Nippert) Campbell, of Cincinnati, finished all square with Cyril Walker, of Englewood, and Captain F. E. Carter, the Irish champion, here today in a spectacular four ball match. There were 13 birdies and one eagle among the players.

Walker's card was 32-37-4-69. Smith had 35-34 69; Campbell had 35-36-69 and Carter had 40-37-77.

Miss Glenna Collett, the women's national golf champion, played the best golf today of any one who went around the course in 82 with an extra stroke on the fifth hole. She usually makes each hole in four. She played in the morning with Lou Wallace of New York against Cyril Walker and Miss Bernice Wall, Oshkosh, Wis. Walker conceded Miss Collett eight bisques but finished two down.

SQUARELY UP TO THE SENATE.

When President Harding presents the question of joining the permanent court of international justice that has been established at The Hague he gives the senate another chance to review the long discussion that accompanied action on the league of nations.

The president has sent forth his reasons for urging favorable action by the senate, and he has also given the explanation by Secretary Hughes as to how it can be done without bringing this country into the league or imposing upon it any obligations which it does not desire to shoulder. This he would accomplish by means of reservations to the method that was suggested in connection with action on the treaty of Versailles and the league covenant and which would have gone through but for the denial of President Wilson to accept reservations.

This country has nothing to say regarding the election of judges in the international court although by the provisions of its creation it is a competent suitor there, and the president believes the time has come when we should take our proper place there and participate in the obligations of maintenance as well as further its prestige.

It is after a long study that the matter is presented now, and there is believed will operate successfully, if adopted, in accomplishing the object without advancing us any nearer to entrance into the league. Recognizing that it rests with the senate to say what shall be done in regard to the matter, the president has put it squarely up to it.

It comes at a time when it seems improbable that that body will dispose of such a matter, with the remaining few days of the present session. The views of the administration, however, are discussed and the responsibility now rests with congress concerning this as well as with certain other important matters.

DEBT LIMIT IN CONNECTICUT.

What seemed like a quick adoption of the plan to have the tax exempt property of towns included when determining the limit of bonded indebtedness for this state has been halted, and [illegible] property may so [illegible] something more than necessary examination, and a matter in which [illegible] communities are deeply concerned.

As the law now stands cities and towns are permitted to issue bonds to the limit of five per cent of their property value. The legislation does not increase that percentage directly, but it would permit the exempt property of a town or city to be included in property valuation when determining the debt limit. In the contention the exempt property would be available [illegible] many of towns, the measure seemed to gain instant support, but the devotion of further thought to the matter discloses the fact that the boosting of the limit of bonded indebtedness simply means that towns and cities which are already carrying all they should in the way of debts of that character would be allowed to pile on more for the same number of taxpayers to meet in the way of interest charges from year to year and ultimately to be paid.

Instead of restricting needless expenditures and keeping them within the revenues that has existed in the past the way would be opened to more spending and the piling up of debts when there should be more economic administration of city and town affairs.

If it is so that it is for the benefit of certain communities that such a law as proposed, it certainly does not warrant an increased freedom in debt creation, and if those communities have not been able to hold a limit has experienced it is no excuse for removing the restraint from all the others and telling them to [illegible] kewise.

BAKERY TRUCK DRIVER'S CONDITION REMAINS SERIOUS

Joseph Tordo, driver of the Dexter's bakery automobile from Springfield which crashed into a telegraph pole on Washington street near Fanning avenue last Friday morning, remains in a critical condition at the Backus hospital with a fractured skull.

He passed a restless day Sunday. He is semi-conscious, but is able to answer when spoken to and rouses at such times so as to give an answer.

Tordo is the same man who was driving the big Dexter truck that was burned outside of Willimantic last summer on its way to this city.

TWO BIG MASS MEETINGS OPEN CAMPAIGN FOR SALVATION ARMY

Broadway theatre had a standing room crowd Sunday afternoon and the Central Baptist church had a congregation that overflowed its auditorium Sunday evening for the two meetings that opened the Salvation Army campaign to raise a fund of $15,000, of which $12,500 is for a building for headquarters and the balance for the annual budget for local expenses.

Boston headquarters officers and the N. E. staff band of 32 pieces were here at both meetings to give the opening of the campaign a boost and the feeling Sunday night was one of strong optimism that the prepartory ground had been well covered and the campaign would go forward with winning impetus.

At Broadway Theatre.

Just before 3 in the afternoon, the band, of which Staff-Captain Robert Young is leader, marched to the theater escorted by fifteen members of Richard Hourigan post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, who carried their post flag and the American flag which were placed on the stage.

The meeting opened with a fine selection by the band, after which Adjutant William C. Crawford of Boston presented General Chairman Harry M. Clark, who is in charge of the local campaign. After a song, My Jesus I Love Thee, rendered by the band, prayer was offered by Rev. J. Harlow Graham of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church.

Mayor Waters declared that the magnificent audience was demonstration of itself that the city was welcoming the Salvation Army and its officers from Boston. The boys who had come back from France said there was not a thing that the Army could do that it had not done. Its work had been without respect to creed or color. Their motto had been "Service" and they had given it. Now it is our turn to see that the Army gets what it wants.

Col. W. A. McIntyre, of Boston, commanding officer in New England, made the address of the afternoon, holding the closest attention of his audience for over an hour, as he described the work of the Army which he aptly said was as salvagers from the scrapheap of humanity which nobody else would touch.

He said he was delighted at the note of optimism which opened the campaign and he extended general thanks to ministers, mayor, theatre management and employes, workers and team captains, Y. M. C. A. and women for all that they had done and will do in the campaign.

A cornet solo, Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean, was rendered by Chester Mathewson, executed in wonderfully fine form with triple-tonguing variations.

Col. McIntyre then took up his address of the afternoon, mentioning that he was just starting his 40th year with the Salvation Army, which had a field in every city, but had four essentials to the right kind of success: first, a proper workshop with suitable tools; second, the right location for this workshop; third, a competent officer with horse sense and the spirit of sacrifice; fourth, the support of the town.

Statistics are that 10 per cent. of our population do not measure up to the average in mentality or morality, ten million in our hundred million. That's where the work of the Salvation Army is. The Salvation Army is the friend of the poor weaklings and the unfortunate. Just as the blacksmith picks out from his junk heap an old piece of iron and fashions it into something useful, or the carpenter forms into useful shape some old discarded board, so the Salvation Army comes to the scrap heap of humanity and from this human junk pile of discarded and broken odds and ends makes men who were lovers of God, servers of men, good men. It makes over the weaklings of society, doing a work that the churches are neither equipped nor fitted to do.

By the use of a number of experiences from actual life, Col. McIntyre showed how the Salvation Army can help the ministers, the mayor, the chief of police, the courts and how its influence reaches out from the little open air meetings in strange ways that are little suspected at times, but have led to momentous and far reaching results in the lives of individuals.

Have the Best.

If you are to have this work here, why not have the best? he asked. Why not give it the support to make it the best possible?

Since 1920 the Salvation Army has secured 32 buildings in New England and when Norwich gets its building Durham, Middletown and Ansonia will be the only Connecticut cities without buildings. The colonel read a telegram that announced that Danbury had just gone over the top in the building drive and he predicted that the same kind of telegram would be sent out from Norwich to the Boston headquarters.

Col. McIntyre said that it was his ambition to have the New England Salvation Army work the best equipped possible and there were only thirteen more stations still to secure their own buildings. In all the territory there was a total of $1,335,000 in mortgages on Salvation Army property but he hoped that would be paid off next year. He spoke of the large gifts that were being made to the Army in Massachusetts where Lieut. Governor Fuller had given them $10,000 and others had given smaller gifts that already had raised the sum to $20,000.

He closed with an appeal to his hearers to have a part in this work that was making drunken men sober, bad men good, weak men strong, and would bring a joy to the heart in its doing with which nothing else could compare.

Throughout Col. McIntyre's stirring address he was frequently applauded with enthusiasm and he punctured it with bright touches of humor and human interest that kept attention in his words from flagging for a moment.

His address was followed by a fine saxophone solo by Fred Clark of the band and this was followed by brief words from Rev. Mr. Graham who expressed the sentiment of the Norwich ministers and churches in their interest and good wishes for the campaign.

While a collection for the expenses of the band was taken, the band played an overture, after which Col. McIntyre called up and introduced Salvation Army workers in the campaign, including Ensign John Slater, Ensign Strange, Captain Charles Carpenter, head of the local staff, Adjutant James Asher, Captain Young, all of Boston and W. A. Nicol who is executive secretary.

Rescued by the Army.

The final speaker was Henry E. Milands, of New York, once managing editor of the New York Tribune, who had gone down into the gutter from drink and had been rescued from there twelve years ago by the "girl in the bonnet." Mr. Milands acknowledged before his audience. One bum was just like another he said, and he had been as dirty and vile as any when the Army found him, cleaned him up and sent him home to his ninety year old mother who had been praying and waiting for him for 34 years. He knew the usefulness of the Army, he said, and he related some of the instances in which he had been able to do typical Army rescue work in New York city since he had been saved himself.

The meeting closed at 5 o'clock with the singing of the doxology.

At Central Baptist Church

When the Salvation Army secures headquarters for its corps in three more Connecticut cities, namely Ansonia, Middletown and Putnam, every corps in Connecticut will be housed, in their own quarters, said Col. McIntyre, speaking on work of the Salvation Army Sunday evening at the union meeting of local churches held at the Central Baptist church.

I want to thank you all, he said, for your attendances at the various meetings held in the interests of the Salvation Army drive today, and I want to say that it is my opinion that when next Saturday comes I will receive a telegram that the campaign fund in Norwich has reached the $15,000 mark. Danbury with a quota of $25,000 went over the top and I am sure Norwich will do her share, and when other cities in New England fall into line, the corps in this section will be the best in the country.

St. Paul speaks of the sinner as one who is asleep and who needs to awake that Christ might give him life. Think of how weak a strong man is when he is asleep. Think how easy it would be for a weaker person to cripple that strong man when he is slumbering. The sinner is indifferent to the things of God, does not care for the prayers of the people. He closes his eyes, his soul against God, and refuses to hear the word.

Jesus Christ gave his life in one great effort to awaken this slumbering world, but to many his efforts were not appreciated any more than the efforts of ministers and Christian workers on their behalf.

I can remember how my mother brought me out of the darkness into the light but how in one thing she failed. She made me afraid of the dark when as a boy I was told that in the night lurked the bear and the "boo" man who would get me if I wasn't good. This fear of the dark has remained with me even though I am grown up. Think of what a wonderful safeguard light is, how in New York the adding of lights on streets that once were dark has lessened crime.

Pick up a board in the springtime and beneath it you will find bugs, wigglers and all other things that belong to the dark. When the light strikes them they scurry away—they fear the light.

Open your hearts and let the light of God shine in, it will drive those evil thoughts and desires from you, for they belong to the dark. Open your minds to the light and you will be cleansed of those dark, evil thoughts that stay in the dark.

There is another thing about the dark. When you take up that plank, notice beneath it little shoots of vegetation, white, pale, drooping. When light comes to them notice how they strengthen, take on color and become healthy. Open your heart and soul to the light of God's messages and things within that in the dark have been kept white and weak will take on color and strength and grow as God intended they should grow.

I need not speak of the needs of the Salvation Army in this city. You know we want $15,000 for a home in Norwich. We have a place at 10 Cliff street and are going to remodel it. The first floor will have an auditorium and a class room for young people. The second floor will have the officers' quarters, and on the third floor will be emergency quarters. These emergency quarters will be used in our work for boys, girls, women and men who may go astray, run away from home, or come to Norwich without funds. We want to take in the waifs of cities and save them going to the police station, we want to lend them physical and moral aid.

We are looking to Connecticut for $263,000 as her share of the New England fund and we are looking for big men and women to put over the project. When the corps have been housed the need for contributions will be reduced and the workers can go out and work all together for the kingdom of God. I promise you that if Norwich raises her quota that within two years you will see a bigger and better Salvation Army in your city, and that you will be more than repaid for your gifts.

During the service Col. McIntyre called upon other of the army speakers for brief talks, and the New England staff band gave several pleasing concert numbers. There were also Salvation Army songs by Adjutant Malcolm, and other members of the band favored with solo numbers.

The meeting was opened by Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, who welcomed the people and the Salvation Army officials to Norwich. In his estimation, said Rev. Mr. Ricketts, the best band in the world was the Christian band, and in the band that was to furnish music during the evening the men were all Christians and all men who had served their country in France during the war, many of them receiving medals for deeds of valor.

CATCH BOY TRYING TO STEAL SLED AT MINISTER'S

A twelve year old boy who lives on Wauwecus Hill was caught Sunday afternoon by John Browning of West Town street as he was attempting to steal a sled from the porch at the home of Rev. J. B. Aldrich at Norwich Town. The other boys who were with him escaped, but the boy who was caught told who they were and said these other boys had had six stolen sled at their homes but had sold all but one.

Mr. Browning brought the boy to police headquarters, where he apparently readily told to Sergeant John H. Kane all he knew about a number of thefts of sleds by the other boys whose ages range from 14 to 5.

The information was turned over to Constable Lucius Fenton, who will make further investigation. As the small boy was of the juvenile court age, Sergeant Kane allowed him to go home after he had told what he knew about the theft of sleds.

Gave Piano Recital.

A piano recital was given by pupils of Mrs. A. H. Manes on Sunday afternoon at her home, 50 Broad street. A program consisting of 20 short numbers, one duet and a violin solo by Henry Bryman was enjoyed by everyone present. It was each one's opinion that all the pupils were doing excellent work, although some had been studying but a few months. Mrs. Manes has been teaching the piano in New York for at least 16 years and attributed her success to the Leschitsky method.

PRESENTED STRONG CLAIMS FOR ABOLISHING TOLLS

The number appearing before the committee on finance Friday afternoon in Hartford when it gave a hearing on the bill abolishing toll bridges in the state, was the largest of the session, more than one hundred and fifty being present from the eastern part of the state. Senator De Peyster convincingly showed the great injustice that is being done to the people of New London and vicinity by the collection of tolls on the bridges at New London, Saybrook and Hadlyme. You had to pay to get into New London and you had to pay to get out. If it is right for the bridge at Stratford, which cost the state more than the combined cost of these three bridges, to be free, why should they be taxed? It is charged that outside tourists should be made to pay for upkeep, but the fact is lost sight of that these same tourists bring a large revenue into the state, they also pay a large amount of the gasoline tax.

Ex-Senator Costello of New London made a vigorous and eloquent speech for the passage of the bill, emphasizing the point that the income received from the bridges had nearly paid the initial most. Toll bridges belong to the archaic past, to the days of the old fashioned blunderbus.

The first selectman of Groton in speaking in favor of the bill said that tolls collected from some of the inhabitants of Groton often amounted to a larger sum than their property tax. He had paid $55 in tolls during the past year. No one liked to be held up by highwaymen or by the state although the result is the same.

Col. Rogers and Attorney Payne, representatives from New London, gave hearty endorsement to what had been said in support of the bill.

Seventy-five per cent. of the bills paid by the citizens of Groton, New London and vicinity. If you are to collect on one section, why not collect on all bridges? The law as it now stands is unjust to Eastern Connecticut. You invite outside people to come and see you and then charge them to get in and out.

Doctor Douglass of Groton stated that the taxation physicians of over $300 a year was a hardship for respending to what in many times were charity cases.

James Hammond, secretary of the New London Chamber of Commerce, said the fifty-six the enforcement of the [illegible] Groton [illegible] and gave the amount [illegible] Larger [illegible] this city. It include [illegible] E. H. & F. H. Chappell Co., $900; Tait Bros., $520; New Haven Dairy Co., $500; R. H. Gardner, $350; N. L. Fruit Co., $400; Schwartz Grain Co. $300; besides several others of somewhat lesser amounts.

The measure had the endorsement of the New London Chamber of Commerce and the Rotary club. A large number of representatives arose and asked to be recorded as favoring the bill and gave the names of others in favor, who could not be present.

Mr. Hammond said that the state of Connecticut owed to the father of the highway improvement in this state, Senator "Jere" MacDonald, who has introduced this bill, to pass it as a memorial the great work he has done.

But two persons spoke in opposition. The business of the legislative committee of the state chamber of commerce. Attention was called to the fact that it was the custom of this body to take a referendum vote on all important measures, and that no such vote had been taken.

Tax Commissioner Blodgett said he did not wish to appear as opposing the measure but wished to call attention to the income which would be lost amounting to $291,000 a year which had not been considered when the state board of finance submitted its estimate. Later he revised his statement by cutting the amount in two.

Ex-Mayor Murphy also spoke in favor of the bill.

It was an enthusiastic gathering and the applause was frequent as the telling points were made by the speakers.

MR. AND MRS. PATRICK KIRBY CELEBRATE GOLDEN WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Kirby, old and respected residents of St. Mary's parish, reached the golden jubilee of their married life on Sunday. The event was observed in a quiet way at their commodious home at 36 Fifth street, surrounded by their children and grandchildren. The event found them both hale and hearty and destined to reach many other milestones in life.

Mr. Kirby was born in Limerick, Ireland, and came to this country as a boy and located in Greeneville. He had been employed for years in the old Bleachery, now the U. S. Finishing Co., afterwards by the Connecticut Co., and at present night watchman at the Brainard and Armstrong plant on South Golden street. While at the bleachery a Mr. Potter was the general superintendent.

Mrs. Kirby was born Catherine Coyle in the town of Dundee, Scotland, and Greeneville, also, was her destination on reaching this country. She was employed also at the Bleachery in the finishing department which in those days numbered but seven girl employes; today the U. S. Finishing Co. has hundreds of women in the same department, showing the growth of the plant. Miss Coyle for a short period worked in the old Chelsea Paper mill. The marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. Dennis Desmond, a curate under the esteemed Rev. Daniel Mullen. Five children blessed their union, Thomas, James J., Michael F., Mary and Patrick, three of whom are now deceased. The witnesses to the marriage, on Feb. 25, 1873 the eve of Ash Wednesday that year), were Michael and Ann Enright, cousins. Their entire married life has found them residents of upper Preston and Greeneville, the marriage having taken place from their new home on what is now Roosevelt avenue, but the past 45 years have found them living on the Greeneville side of the Shetucket river.

Many interesting tales were related Sunday of the early days of their married life. Greeneville was then a lightless section of the town, while Carpenter's hall on North Main street was the social center of the community. Two bridges destroyed by floods compelled residents of Preston to row to their daily work for a number of months.

The grandchildren of Mr. and Mrs. Kirby number nine as follows: Marion, Mildred and James Kirby, children of Mr. and Mrs. James J. Kirby; Catherine, Andrew, Mary, Madeleine, Thomas and Raymond Kirby, children of Michael F., and the late Catherine Farrell Kirby.

Congratulations were in order on Sunday to the happy married couple on the attainment of their jubilee with well wishes for the future.

Mr. and Mrs. Kirby attended mass Sunday morning at St. Mary's Memorial church.

Has Norwich Relative.

Dr. Ellen C. Potter, who has been named commissioner of public welfare in Pennsylvania, the first woman in that state to hold a cabinet position, is a sister of Mrs. J. A. Elder of New London and a cousin of Mrs. S. S. Thresher of this city. Charles R. Stark of Providence, author of the History of Groton, lately reviewed in the columns of The Bulletin, is also a cousin of Mrs. Thresher.

THAMES STREET FIRE IN KIVELEWITZ APARTMENTS

Fire that broke out about 9.20 Sunday evening caused a loss of over $1,000 in the old Potter block, now owned by David and Charles Gordon, on Thames street. The call came in from Box 14 on Thames square and when the firemen arrived the fire had gained considerable headway in the apartment of Aaron Kivelewitz at 10-12 Thames street, and two of the rooms were filled with flames.

Smoke was pouring out of the two front windows on the second floor and after it was ascertained that no one was in the apartment the firemen devoted their attention to the fire. Four lines of hose, two for water and two for chemical were laid and in a half hour the recall had been sounded.

The fire evidently started in a clothes closet on the second floor and had eaten its way through the door into a bedroom and along the floor over the shoe and dry good store of Mr. Kivelewitz. The loss by fire was mostly on the second floor, the damage in the store being by water which came through when the firemen had to chop away the metal ceiling in the store to get at the fire in the studding.

The alarm of Sunday evening recalled the fire that swept and gutted the Potter block about 20 years ago At that time the firemen worked under conditions that were far worse than those of Sunday night. The temperature then hovered around 10 below zero and ladders, hose and men were covered with sheets of ice.

ARRESTED ON CHARGE OF THEFT FROM PERSON

On a complaint by Frank A. Fitch of 19 McKinley avenue that he had been robbed of $55 Saturday night while at 47 Franklin street, where Thomas Keeley, 54, was in charge of the bar at the place, Keeley was arrested Sunday afternoon on the charge of theft from the person. It is understood that another arrest is likely in case as a result of the investigation that has been made by the police since receiving the complaint.

Keeley gave bonds in $500 for his appearance in court. The arrest was made on the street last Sunday afternoon by Sergeant A. C. Matthews and Officer Charles McFaddin.

V. F. W. STATE OFFICERS MADE NORWICH VISIT

Hourigan post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, whose members paraded Sunday afternoon with the Salvation Army, had a meeting at its rooms in the Alice building after the parade, with Commander R. E. Graham presiding.

State Department Commander John H. Williams and H. C. Rising, state claim officer, both of Bridgeport, were visitors at the meeting where State Commander Williams gave an address upon the progress of the work in the state, explaining its growth which is at quite a satisfactory rate. Mrs. Williams who is state deputy for the women's auxiliary and Mrs. Rising who is assista ant deputy, also attended the meeting.

The post accepted an invitation to attend the installation of the officers of the auxiliary Sunday afternoon in T. A. B. hall.

DANIELSON

Announcements have been received here of the marriage at Allentown, Pa., on Wednesday of last week of Miss Frances Trexler of the city and Victor Schmidt, now engaged in business in New York. Mr. and Mrs. Schmidt are in the south on their wedding trip and will be at home in Allentown after April.

Mr. Schmidt is a construction engineer and was in charge of important improvements for the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company at the time it converted its plant from tire and tube manufacturing to that just after the world war, in which he served as a captain. He was a resident of Danielson about a year and has many friends here.

The university glee club will give a concert in Thespian theater, Friday evening, March 3 auspices D. A. R. Tickets now selling at Dowe's.—adv.

Mrs. Mary A. Slater, 68, is dead at her home near Little Rest, where she lived throughout her life. She was born in that territory a daughter of Abijah and Lucinda (Tucker) Slater. Miss Slater had been ill for some time past, but her condition did not become critical until the past week. She leaves two sisters, Misses Hulda and Helen Slater, with whom she had made her home for years, the three conducting a small farm on the road that leads from Little Rest toward the Lime store.

Mrs. Mabel Gordon Heneault, wife of John Eno of New London, died at a hospital in that city Sunday morning. Her illness of the illness that led to her death were not available here. Mrs. Heneault was a resident of Danielson for a number of years living on North Main street, near Davis switch, prior to her marriage to Mr. Heneault, who also formerly lived here. Mr. and Mrs. George Heneault of Riverview left Sunday for New London.

What was termed a birthday party in honor of the members whose birthdays come during the months of January, February or March—was given Friday evening by the girls' club at their rooms here. Eleven members whose birthdays occur during the months mentioned were present and were in attendance. Miss Mary Lyons presided as chairman.

At the close and distributing of the birthday cake Mrs. Charn Nado got the ring, Mrs. Thomas Kelly the silver coin, Mrs. Mary Peters the thimble and Miss Antonio LaBonte the kewpie doll. Each of the eleven members whose birthdays were being observed was presented with a handkerchief. At whist, to which a part of the evening was given over, first honors went to Miss Anson, LaBonte and second to Mrs. Lucy Kenyon. Refreshments of cake, cocoa and ice cream were served.

Recently a newcomer to Danielson purchased a lot from Oliver A. Downs in property on North Maple street, near Holy Cross cemetery. The order for the lumber for the new home to be built there was ordered on Saturday and delivered on Monday of last week. On Tuesday night the owner slept in his new home. Persons familiar with the locality have rubbed their eyes and pinched themselves upon seeing the house, which sprang up almost overnight. There it is, however, with a reserve supply of fuel corded up [illegible] the cellar and [illegible] of the chimney as though the habitation had been there for generations. The gentleman who owns it and is to make his home therein [illegible] himself what some call a fast worker.

No one hereabouts is quite certain what is a blessing for humanity is contemplated, but something remarkable must be in the wind, for the price of glass on electric lamp globes costs a cent in Danielson and [illegible] that morning and the same on the filling stations would read 20 cents when you leave your next home. Two cents a gallon on hundreds of thousands of gallons is going to amount to a tremendous lot of money and someone should put the price of gasoline up about 10 cents for profits, as of what is alleged to have gone before, could be used to make this a prosperous world.

AUCTIONS

WITTER BROS. ..... Auctioneers
Office and Salesrooms, 42 Main St., Danielson, Conn.
20—HEAD OF CATTLE—20
AYRSHIRES, GUERNSEYS, HOLSTEINS,
—AT—
AUCTION
THURSDAY, MARCH 1, 1923,
at 10 o'clock a. m., sharp.
Having decided to retire from the farming business entirely, we will sell the following described property at unrestricted public sale: 20 head of extra high grade dairy cattle, all large, young cows, in the various stages of milk, including a number of forward springers, and others due in late spring and early summer. These cattle were selected from one of the largest dairy herds in the country with great care and expense. We wish to call special attention to the fact that we have in this lot of cows two sweet young Guernseys from the Noyes thoroughbred stock.
ONE PAIR OF CHOICE FARM HORSES consisting of one handsome 1400 lb. gray mare, young and sound and a black horse of medium age, in excellent condition and weighs about 1425 lbs. Any man who can hold a pair of lines can work this team.
WAGONS AND TOOLS
One practically new team wagon with 12-foot body, 1 manure spreader, one low-down wagon, 1 pair 1-horse mile wagon, 1 pair of nearly new team harness, 1 six horsepower Saxon gasoline engine with saw mounted on a good gear, 1 Kemp manure spreader, 1 two-horse mower, 1 hay rake, 1 tedder, 3 harrows, plows and cultivators, 1 hand roller, and a few small tools.
ONE HARLEY-DAVIDSON MOTORCYCLE with side car (1919 model, in good running condition), 1 Ford touring car in running condition.
16 tons first quality hay (this is the best hay that grows on any farm in this neighborhood), 25 tons of silage.
Conditions of Sale: Every article and lot sold by the Auctioneers for the highest available dollar for cash. If stormy, postponed to the first fair day after at the same hour. A good collector will attend. This will positively be one of the important events of the auction season.
A. L. RUNDELL & SONS,
Plainfield, Conn.

Auction Notice
for My Next Auction, on SATURDAY, MARCH 3, 1923,
at 10 o'clock a. m., Rain or Shine.

I have an extra choice lot of fancy young horses in singles and pairs, including blacks, grays, and browns. These horses are all in show ring condition right now. I have a pair of chestnut horses with white faces, fine manes and tails, that will open 2000 lbs. that will go right into any show ring in the world and bring home the ribbons. I also have a pair of the sweetest hitching, handsomest bay mares a man could wish to look at, that weigh 2600 lbs., and a lot of other good ones weighing from 1200 lbs. to 1500 lbs., all hitchers and workers.
Owner's Statement: With fifteen years' experience will be with us. If you are looking for horses for spring work, I've got the goods. Come and see a real live high dollar sale. When I say I'll sell, I mean business. Don't mind dull times, dull weather or dull and when the curtain goes up. Every horse sold with my money-back guarantee as usual.

The Bulletin.
Norwich, Monday, Feb. 26, 1923.

THE WEATHER

Conditions

A disturbance of wide extent was central over New Mexico Sunday night, and moving slowly eastward, another of slight intensity was central over Wisconsin, while pressure was high and rising over the north Pacific states, and the northern Rocky Mountain region, and it continued high off the south Atlantic coast. This pressure distribution has been attended by local snows in the lower lake region, the north Atlantic states. The temperature continued to rise Sunday in the eastern and southern states, and it remained above normal almost generally, although somewhat colder weather overspread the Plain states and the northwest.

The southwestern disturbance will move east-northeastward during the next two days, attended by general precipitation, mostly in the form of rain, in the states east of the Mississippi river. The temperature will remain above normal during the next two days, although somewhat colder weather will overspread the Lower lake region.

Winds

North of Sandy Hook: Moderate to fresh southerly and weather overcast, followed by rain Monday.

Forecast

For Southern New England: Cloudy, followed by rain or snow Monday afternoon; Tuesday rain and warmer.

Eastern New York: Rain on the coast and rain or snow and somewhat warmer in interior Monday; Tuesday rain with mild temperature.

WITH $3,200 SECURED IN CAMPAIGN BOY SCOUTS CONTINUE APPEAL

In the anniversary round up of Scouts for 100,000 throughout the United States by February, 1923, Norwich accepted a quota of 372 Scouts.

On February 24th, Troop No. 4, Sacred Heart church of Taftville added four new scouts to the Norwich council quota, thus bringing the number up to 300. It is earnestly hoped that contributors who have not yet sent in their subscriptions for the current budget of $5,000 will hasten to do so. At present $4,200 has been turned in and in order to carry on the Scout work and provide adequate camping facilities more money must be secured.

The campaign committee again appeals to contributors whose names have not yet been reported to send their pledge to Arthur Story, treasurer.

MAKE RIGHT OF WAY TO REACH STATE PONDS

The ponds of the state are private property, according to a ruling of the attorney general a number of years ago and the fish therein are the property of the state, yet owners of ponds in which can, if they choose, prevent citizens of the state from using the land to fish for their property in the waters of the ponds, the legislative judiciary committee was told Thursday.

The hearing was on house bill No. 18, introduced by Representative Marion Newton of New Fairfield, which provides that a right of way shall be established to every pond or lake over which the state has control and over which right of way it shall be lawful for any person to pass or repass. Mrs. Newton said that she had introduced the bill because New York people had bought the land surrounding Bearse pond in New Fairfield and had tried to prevent the people of the town from using it for boating or fishing. Before the New York people bought the land around the lake the owners had made no objection to the use of the lake.

ENJOY VENISON SUPPER AT STARLIGHT FARM

On Saturday night the home of Lafayette F. Main, Starlight Farm, in North Stonington, was the meeting place for guests whose roads centering there pretty nearly taxed the compass; for they rolled into the farmyard from Preston, Norwich, New London, Noank, Mystic, Westerly and from other Rhode Island towns. They had been bidden to a feast of genuine native venison, procured for the occasion by the host himself. The home of Mr. Main is almost baronial. It is located in a scenic fastness, surrounded by some thousands of acres belonging to the host of this festive occasion. The house is steam heated and lighted by electricity, while some of the orchard land is lighted by about two hundred electric bulbs. For the entertainment of his guests Mr. Main had the field lights switched on, which gave a city-setting to this home sequestered ... almost mountain scenery.

The feast of venison, ably supported by numbers of side issues, appetizing accompaniments, was most gratifying to the guests who had ridden miles to grounding under weather to win its enjoyments. The daughters of the host were the attentive waitresses and pourers of coffee.

After the feast Mr. Main greatly entertained his guests in many personal reminiscences of his exercise life told in his rather quaint graphic style of speech which proved him a searching analyst of human nature. He readily gave paragraph after paragraph of moral comment and statute law, often brilliantly colored by flashing witticisms from his rugged, virile mind. From his auditors came frequent applause.

Mr. Main's wide domain is a veritable game sanctuary, and he is a strong supporter of the principle that to the land upon which the game is found it belongs—against all comers.

At a late hour and in heavy snowstorm the party broke up, wishing the host many happy returns of the night

ATTORNEY GENERAL SPENT MUCH FOR ASSISTANCE

Payments for legal assistance by the ... the state have amounted to over $45,000 during the last ten years, evidence presented to the legislative judiciary committee by Representative Howard B. Dunham of Westbrook showed. Some idea of the total expense can be had when assistance to Attorney General Searl in Hearst case ran to the sum of $3,625.

The hearing was on a bill introduced by Representative Dunham to require the attorney general to secure the approval of the board of control before engaging legal assistants. Representative Dunham said that he had been surprised in looking over the expenditures of the state at the large sums spent for assistance for the attorney general and he thought that the board of control ought to pass upon such large expenditures.

Representative Dunham told the committee that the following sums had been spent by attorney generals for legal assistance in the years named: $325.91 in 1913; $1,543.82 in 1914; $1,739.82 in 1915; $1,627.03 in 1916; $1,380.22 in 1917; $744.67 in 1918; $1,898.64 in 1919; $4,397.46 in 1920; $17,852.75 in 1921; $3,630.80 in 1922.

The years 1914, 1915 and 1918 were for assistance to Gov. John H. Light, 1916, 1917 and 1918 and part of 1919 for George E. Hinman and the other years for the present attorney general, Frank E. Healy of Windsor Locks.

Reports laid before the committee by Representative Dunham showed that during 1920 and 1920, Attorney General Healy paid the following amounts to lawyer: Gov. assisting Gen. Lappin W. Cooper, $7,500; Hugh M. Alcorn, $6,000; William H. Leete, $65; Charles Kleiner, $525.68; Geo. E. Hinman, $333.50; John W. Banks, $344.45; A. C. Baldwin, $283.53; W. S. Egan, $600; J. T. Robinson, $110.25; Klett & Alling, $200; A. J. Bailey, $50; A. F. Ells, $295; A. C. Howard, $125; B. M. Grant, $500; F. L. Perry, $2551; L. J. Nickerson, $200; R. O. Bowers, $140; T. F. Carmody, $250; A. W. Marsden, $100; Kendall Pierce, $100; W. H. Blodgett, $205.

DRAWS LENTEN LESSON FROM THE TRANSFIGURATION

Before a large congregation at St. Patrick's church Sunday evening, Rev. John X. Lyne, S. J., of Holy Cross college, was the preacher of the special Lenten sermon, speaking upon the Transfiguration of Jesus.

The voice that came from the cloud to the ears of the three apostles, he said, in the words, "Hear ye Him," is a good lesson in all that pertains to our relations with one another, whether of soul of body, knowledge and belief, or belief and conduct

In brief Father Lyne spoke as follows:

The transfiguration of our Lord Jesus Christ, is a subject which can be considered from many viewpoints. The view which will be taken will be determined by the interest or interests of the person who considers it.

To the ascetic, the transfiguration is a study in consolation. Our Lord selects the three apostles who are later to witness His agony in the garden, to view Him in His glory, so that when their faith is put to the test by what appears to be the utter collapse of His career, their faith in Him may not be shaken. Consolation is given to us at times, not as a [illegible] of heaven, but as a sort of spiritual nourishment, to sustain us during the trials, that are to follow.

To the spiritist—although to the devout Christian the comparison seems blasphemous—Christ appears to be a wonderful medium, holding a seance and materializing spirits for the benefit of the spectators. To the Christian, however, there is no similarity between Christ and the medium. Christ is the God-Man. To Christ, communication with the world of spirits was natural. To man and woman in the present state of existence such communication is not natural. Nor would such intercourse be profitable, even if it were possible. Our Lord himself enunciates this fact in His reply to Dives: "If they hear not Moses and the prophets, neither will they believe if one rise again from the dead." Even when a Lazarus was raised from the dead, the clan of Dives refused to believe.

To the philosopher the subject of the transfiguration is of interest as illustrating the truth that the soul of man survives death. The Moses who appeared to our Lord and to the three apostles was not the corpse which had long since decayed in the grave. Yet it was Moses, the real Moses, who could converse about those subjects concerning which he had uttered prophecies while still in the body. To the philosopher this Moses who appeared was the soul of Moses made visible to the eyes of the apostles by the omnipotence of God. This apparition of Moses is an illustration of the truth of the proposition which philosophy teaches, though not a demonstration of it, that the soul of man is immortal.

To the Christian, the transfiguration of Christ is of interest as illustrating the unity of the Divine law, and the position which Christ holds in relation to that law. Moses, to whom the law was originally given, Elias, by whom it was re-established, and Christ, through whom the law is perfected, together appear radiant in glory. The three are working for the accomplishments of the object of the law. Thus, to the Christian it is evident that, while the Old Testament contains truth, it does not contain the whole truth. If we wish to understand the law in its entirity, we must study both Testaments, the New and the Old. What is in the New Testament that we see the fulfillment of the Old. Moses and Elias saw the fulfillment of their efforts in the accomplishments of Christ

To the student of manners the suggestion of Peter and the voice from the cloud are of interest. Peter is enthusiastic. He would be glad to remain on the Mount of Transfiguration indefinitely. In this spirit he suggests that they build three bungalows, one for Christ, one for Moses, and one for Elias. Peter, at this stage of his career, does not realize what articles are on the programme which his Master is carrying out. He is self-centered, though he evidently regards himself as very altruistic. He would be blessed to remain on the mountain indefinitely; in the enjoyment of spiritual consolation. He assumes, without any justification, that his Divine Master would be equally pleased to remain. But Christ did not become man merely to make three of His apostles happy. He became man to save mankind. His mortal career was to terminate, not on Mount Thabor, but on Mount Calvary. The voice from the clouds communicated a revelation and a command: "This is My Beloved Son in Whom I am well pleased, hear ye Him." "Hear ye Him" is a good lesson in manners. "Hear ye Him" is a good lesson in all that pertains to our relations with onanother, in all that pertains to soul and body, to knowledge and belief, belief and conduct

WILL EXPLAIN NORWICH FIRE INSURANCE RATES

Directors of the chamber of commerce received a report at their meeting last week from the membership committee that J. H. Howland, assistant engineer of the national board of fire underwriters, had been secured to address the chamber and its friends at the meeting on Monday evening, March 5.

Mr. Howland is to speak upon the subject of fire insurance rates. His coming is a result of thought given for some time past to the fact that Norwich has spent about $50,000 in the past few years for increased fire-fighting apparatus and that on that account the city might reasonably expect something in the way of a reduction in rates.

While the National Board of Fire Underwriters directly have absolutely nothing to do with the making of insurance rates, all insurance rates are based upon their investigations. Mr. Howland will enlighten the people of Norwich as to the relative importance of additional improvements in fire-fighting apparatus as affecting the grading of fire-fighting facilities with their subsequent effect on rates. Mr. Howland knows the subject thoroughly and he is an entertaining and instructive speaker.

SUPREME MASTER WORKMAN TO VISIT A. O. U. W. LODGE

Norwich lodge, No. 12, of the Ancient Order of United Workmen, is making extensive preparations in honor of the visitation of Will M. Narvis, supreme master workman, who is to visit the lodge on Wednesday evening. All members of the order in Norwich and vicinity are expected to be present on that evening as he will have much to say to them regarding the good work that has been accomplished during the past few years and the wonderful financial condition of all grand lodges connected with the supreme lodge of the A. O. U. W.

It will be remembered by members of the order, and particularly by those in this jurisdiction, that in 1904 all loyal grand lodges adopted adequate rates, and the wisdom of their action is now demonstrated by the annual report of the Grand Lodge of Connecticut which shows assets of over $1,000,000, making this grand lodge rank as one of the solid financial institutions of the state. It is the only fraternal insurance society operating on an adequate basis which has the approval of the insurance department and is in a position to give its members cash surrender, cash loan, paid-up and extended insurance values after two years. The order in Connecticut has made a substantial growth during the past year Norwich lodge being one of the leaders in the membership contest. Field Manager John C. Trant, who is in charge of the local work, will be present and entertain the meeting with some of his funny stories.

NORWICH CO-OPERATIVE EXCHANGE ELECTS OFFICERS

The Norwich Co-operative Exchange recently held their second annual meeting, on the offices of the New London Grain and Feed Bureau. A. W. Lillibridge was re-elected president and C. P. Bushnell, vice president with Inbert Fellows as secretary and H. J. Larkham, treasurer. These officers and S. A. Beebe, Earl Smith and Harry Plunker make up the board of directors.

J. B. McCarthy, the manager gave a report on the business done which shows that the exchange had handled a total of 414 tons of feed, fertilizer and seed this past year. That this organization is in very good financial condition was indicated by the board of directors declaring a 6 per cent. dividend on paid in stock and also a patronage dividend of 5½ per cent. to all members who have bought through the organization during the past year.

FORMER NEW LONDON PRINTER DIES IN DENVER

Matthew Brennan, formerly of New London and at that time a journeyman printer, died Thursday at the International Printers' home in Colorado Springs, Colo., of tuberculosis where he had been under treatment four years. Mr. Brennan is survived by a widow and two children and by two brothers, William and Edward Brennan of New London. The body will be brought to New London for funeral and burial.

Mr. Brennan's widow will receive approximately $600 insurance from the Typographical union.

Mr. Brennan married a daughter of Mrs. Hattie Silva.

Mr. Brennan was for a year or more at the tuberculosis hospital at Norwich. New London printers contributed the money to send him to the Colorado home and there he has had the best of care and all that could be done for him was done.

saving. He began at once to save his pennies and while his young classmates would buy candy, Johnny would hoard his pennies until he saved twenty-five.

Then he would go to school one of the proudest of the class.

He would give them to his teacher for a "thrift stamp." As the year passed by Johnny grew up to be a thrifty young man. He was talking with his mother and father. Johnny's father said "Johnny my son, what did you do with your thrift stamps?" He was very proud as he showed a bank book. This is what I did with my thrift stamps. He had saved enough to pay his way through high school. Johnny's motto was "Be thrifty, live right, and save." If we should practice this there would be more wealthy people in the world.

A Piece of Money

Dear Uncle Jed: The first that I can remember about myself is that I was a piece of silver in a rock, I had been there a long time, when one day some men came and got me and some of my friends. Then we were taken to a place where we were smelted. After that we were shaped into flat pieces about the size of a large button. On one side an eagle was stamped on us and on the other side the face of the Goddess of Liberty and above that was printed "In God We Trust."

After we were all ready we were taken to a bank, and that is where I lost account of my friends. A man came one day who had a little boy named John. This man got some money, and I was some of it, so I was given to John. This was in the morning, and in the afternoon John went to a store with me, and gave me and a dime to the store-keeper for a jack-knife that he wanted.

The next day a man came into the store and bought something and I was given to him as change. He had an auto and so he drove home in that. There happened to be a hole in his pocket so I fell out and as there was a crack in the car just big enough for me to go through, I rolled out onto the street, and into the gutter. I am still there waiting for some-one to find me for I am not in a very comfortable place.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

CHARLIE CHICKADEE GUESSES.

Now, let me see. Oh, yes, I remember now where we left off in the last story. It was just when Little Jack Rabbit gave Charlie Chickadee three guesses. Yes sir that's where we left off. The little chickadee had to guess why Little Jack Rabbit had gone down the Hollow Tree Stump Mine to see the old miner, Mr. Mole.

"Are you ready?" asked the little rabbit.

"Yes," answered the little chickadee, "you went to get some gold!"

"No, I didn't," answered the little rabbit.

"Then you went to get some silver."

"No, I didn't," said the little rabbit.

"Oh, dear me," said Charlie Chickadee, "I've only one guess left, and I'm sure Mr. Mole hasn't got a coal mine," and then the little bird cocked his head on one side and looked at Little Jack Rabbit out of the corner of his left eye to see if he had guessed it right.

But Little Jack Rabbit didn't say anything, he just took out the big diamonds and three immense rubies and looked at them carefully and then Charlie Chickadee hopped up and down and fluttered his wings and then, he shouted, "I know! I know! Ha, ha, ha! You went to get diamonds and rubies!"

"No, I didn't," said Little Jack Rabbit and he strapped up his knapsack and started off for Uncle Lucky's house, for he wanted to give his kind uncle a ruby, you know and maybe a diamond.

"Goodness me! Then why did you not tell me?" asked Charlie Chickadee. "Everybody around here knows how dangerous that Hollow Tree Stump Mine is."

"Because Mr. Wicked Wolf was so near to me that I had no place else to go except Little Jack Rabbit and I have to look out for him," said Little Jack Rabbit, and then he shouted, "And now, I'm off to see Uncle Lucky," said Little Jack Rabbit, shouldering his knapsack.

Well, after a while he came to Carrot street in Rabbitville, U. S. A. So he went down for maybe three hundred and ninety-five and a half hops, and came to Lettuce avenue, where on the corner stood Mr. Lucky Longhindfoot's little white house.

"Oh, here I am, how glad I am," said the little rabbit and just then Uncle Lucky himself opened the front door and when he saw his little nephew, he began to say:

"Hello, hello, how glad I am,
I'm as happy as a clam,
At last I've come to see you now
So, come in and tell me how
All the folks are getting on,
Since you lost your Uncle John."

"Wait till I show you what I've got for you," said Little Jack Rabbit and he opened his knapsack, but he must wait for the next story to hear what dear Uncle Lucky said when he saw the diamonds and rubbies.

BAY STATE IS CONSIDERING DRASTIC COAL LEGISLATION

Gov. Cox Recommends Action for Destruction of Coal Containing an Excessive Percentage of Foreign Substances—Would Establish a Standard for Coal and Prevent Speculative Sales—Bill Provides a Maximum Fine of $1,000 and a Year's Imprisonment for Dealers or Other Persons Selling Impure Coal.

Boston, Feb. 26. Immediate passage of legislation authorizing the seizure and destruction of coal containing an excessive percentage of foreign substances was urged by Governor Cox, in a message to the legislature today. The governor transmitted a bill legalizing such action, drafted by attorney general Jay R. Benton.

"The continuous coverage of anthracite coal and the attendant high price and difficulty of equitable distribution constitute the most pressing problem which confronts the people of the commonwealth today," the governor's message said. "Every financial measure I suggest the aid of congress of federal legislation . . . would contribute to such a standard for coal and prevent speculative sales. . . . Since the time I addressed the general court on the subject of the anthracite coal situation, Massachusetts representative has introduced a bill to establish a standard for coal and other Massachusetts representatives have petitioned for legislation to prevent exportation to foreign countries. These measures have not however, become laws. Massachusetts is helpless except as to coal which has actually reached the common wealth."

The bill transmitted by the governor provided a maximum fine of $1,000 and a year's imprisonment for dealers or other persons selling impure coal, or who obstruct the state department of public health and other state or municipal officials authorized to confiscate such coal. The bill provides a similar penalty foor seling fuel short in weight.

ARNSTEIN DISCHARGED: NO EVIDENCE AGAINST HIM

New York, Feb. 26.—Jules W. "Nicky" Arnstein and four of the five men who were arrested with him Friday on a warrant charging suspicion of having received stolen bonds, were discharged by Magistrate Levine late today after Assistant District Attorney Wilson admitted he had no evidence against them.

The charge of conspiracy with Arnstein was lodged against Fuller, head of a bond and mortgage concern bearing his name, Albert Eyl, Cleveland salesman, Harry Sokol, a New York salesman, and C. M. Kimball, known as "The Boy from Salt Lake." Albert Wells, Cleveland dealer in bonds, a man arrested with Arnstein, failed to appear and Magistrate Levine ordered his $7,500 bail forfeited.

Assistant District Attorney Wilson, addressing the court said his office was chiefly concerned with the arrest of the "big leaders." He explained that three subsidiary charges, including receiving of stolen bonds, had been lodged against Smith and that it was hoped through the arrests information could be obtained which would lead to the indictment of the ringleaders.

The district attorney's office expressed a wish to continue the cases in the event the records Arnstein produced . . . proved genuine.

U. S. TO HAVE AN UNOFFICIAL OBSERVER AT GENEVA

Washington, Feb. 26.—An unofficial observer representing the United States will attend the conference at Geneva to consider international methods of barring traffic in women and girls called under auspices of the league of nations. It was announced today by the labor department that Miss Grace Abbott, director of the children's bureau, would sail for Europe shortly to be present at the gathering.

REQUEST FOR INDICTMENT OF WILLIAM H. ANDERSON

New York, Feb. 26.—Acting District Attorney Pecora today went before the grand jury with the request that William H. Anderson, state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league of New York, be indicted on a charge of grand larceny, and presented as his first witnesses Rev. Dr. George Caleb Moor, secretary, and Bertram H. Fanher, treasurer of the league.

Mr. Pecora, before entering the jury room, declared it was imperative that Rev. Dr. David James Burrell, president of the league, appear before the grand jury to explain certain aspects of the league's financial relations with Anderson.

He said he explained his attitude today to Edgar T. Brackett, counsel to Anderson, who had notified him that the aged clergyman was too ill to appear before the jury today. Mr. Brackett promised, he said, to confer with Dr. Burrell's physician to ascertain whether it would not be possible for Dr. Burrell to come before the grand jury for a short period some day this week.

GERMANS REQUESTING TO USE THE FRENCH TRAINS

Duesseldorf, Feb. 26.—(By The A. P.)—The German government's policy of resistance, and the subsequent unemployment, according to the French authorities is leading to an increasing number of Germans requesting permission to use the French trains and increasing applications for employment.

In the district occupied by the southern army corps the security police are declared to be causing disturbance. Two Germans responsible for acts of destruction between Coblenz and Capellan have been arrested. Trucks of coal numbering 450 have been sent to Switzerland, Holland and Italy and 86 trucks of coal and coke to France and Belgium.

The director of the finance office at Kaiserslautrn has been imprisoned. The newspapers state that the economic and food situation in Germany, especially in Baden, is extremely critical and that Chancellor Cuno has expressed an intention to visit Karlsruhe shortly. All supplies of coal from the Ruhr having ceased several factories have had to reduce their working hours or close down.

TAPESTRIES IN HOME OF JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER, JR.

New York, Feb. 26.—Six tapestries women about 1450 for the Duke De La Rochefoucauld, the whereabouts of which recently was made the subject of an official inquiry in Paris, are hanging in the home of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., the New York Evening Post said it had learned today.

According to the newspaper, the tapestries were shown in the Anderson Galleries here last November, and admission was by card only. On the third day the tapestries were suddenly withdrawn without explanation and it was understood that they had been acquired by an American collector for $1,000,000.

According to the Evening Post, the tapestries—which included "the Hunt for the Unicorn," and which were considered some of the finest in France—after having rested for years in the Castle of Verteuil, the estate of La Rochefoucauld family, passed last fall through the customs in the regular manner.

INCIPIENT MUTINY ABOARD RUSSIAN REFUGEE SHIP

Manila, Feb. 26.—(By the A. P.)—An incipent mutiny aboard the Russian refugee ship Magnit, at Mariveles quarantine station, was smashed before it got well under war last night by the ship's officers and a detachment of Philippine constabulary.

Members of the ship's company of the Magnit, discontented with their rations, obtained five carbines belonging to the officers and planned to seize the vessel. The officers discovered that the arms were missing and notified constabularly headquarters. When a constabulary detachment arrived the plotters threw the carbines into the water tank and fled. Later they were rounded up and it was announced that the Russian officers would ask the Philippine authorities to deport the ringleaders to Russia.

JUDGE G. T. BROWN TO RETIRE FROM R. I. SUPERIOR COURT

Providence, R. I., Feb. 26.—Judge George T. Brown, of this city, senior associate justice of the Rhode Island superior court, today announced his intention to retire from the bench, his retirement to take place during the present week. A native of Rhode Island, Judge Brown has been engaged in the practice of law in this state for the past thirty years since his graduation from the Albany Law school. For the past 17 1-2 years he had been a justice of the superior court. He has always been an active worker in the democratic party and last fall was a candidate for the gubernatorial nomination against the present governor of Rhode Island, William S. Flynn.

Suspect Collusion in Mail Train Robbery

New York, Feb. 26.—Post office inspectors investigating the theft of a registered mail pouch from a train entering Grand Central station Sunday, tonight turned toward a theory of possible collusion.

It was learned today that when the Chicago train, with through mail from San Francisco, stopped at Albany, ten mail clerks came aboard. It is said that a stranger was observed to have slipped on board with the regular clerks, possibly having provided himself with either stolen or forged credentials.

That his presence was noted is indicated by a report to the inspectors that armed guards searched the train after it left Albany, but no trace of the intruder was found. There is mystery in that phase of the story, as the train was of the regulation mail carrying type, affording few opportunities for a potential robber to secrete himself.

The stranger emerged from his hiding place, as the train was rolling into Grand Central station, some of the mail clerks saw him handling pouches and they raised an alarm. The intruder dashed to the end of the car, and jumped to the tracks, slamming the spring door-lock in the faces of his pursuers, which gave him a few minutes start. In his haste he dropped one pouch, he made his way up an emergency exit to Park avenue and disappeared, the mail clerks fearing to fire in the semi-darkness of the tunnel.

The missing package is said to have been consigned to a foreign city, but the value is reported as negligible. From an examination of the other car in which the robber was disturbed, it is apparent he was able to work unmolested for some time, as several mail bags were found split open.

A similar robbery last week, between Albany and Syracuse, was announced today. The same mail train, no. 22, figured in Sunday's robbery. These facts would indicate, the post office inspectors say, that the same man committed both robberies.

SHOT DEAD AT STEERING POST OF HIS AUTOMOBILE

New York, Feb. 26.—Shot apparently as he was driving to his office through Soung View avenue, the Bronx, Fred Schneider, wealthy contractor, was found dead at the steering post of his automobile tonight.

One of the dead man's hands clutched the wheel. The other was in his overcoat pocket, clenched. In his head were two bullet wounds, and beside him, on the seat, with its muzzle pointing toward him, lay a .45 calibre automatic.

His foot apparently had slumped from the gas accederator, shutting off the power. The machine was in high. The brakes were free.

On the rear seat of the machine, sheltered by closely drawn storm curtains, snored two chow-dogs, that waked, barked and frolicked when the patrolman disturbed them.

A pedestrian had informed the police that "an intoxicated man was sitting at the wheel of an automobile up the road." Later, detectives were told by Nick Fulmer, a farmer whose home adjoined the road at the spot, that "a blonde woman, well dressed and carrying a dark bag" had alighted from the automobile and hurried away, just after he had heard two sounds like muffled pistol shots.

The machine was headed in the direction of Schneider's office, half a mile away. There it was said the contractor had gone to lunch at noon with three of his girl stenographers. The girls had not returned.

According to the police Schneider was married, but had, for some time, been separated from his wife.

The driver of the machine had been shot once in the back of the neck, at the left, and once behind the right ear. Either wound might have caused instant death, and it undoubtedly was a case of murder, said authorities.

Schneider had been making a $1,000,000 a year in the contracting business, detectives were informed by a nephew, William Schneider, who is a member of the firm of Frederick Schneider, Inc., of which the slain man was head.

LIQUOR SEIZURE MADE BY BOSTON INSPECTORS

New York, Feb. 26.—Customs inspectors seized a quantity of liquor found secreted on the Santa Teresa when she arrived from South American ports today and three of the passengers were parted from bottles they carried in their handbags.

Captain C. M. Cochrane has been asked to report to the customs authorities.

The Santa Teresa is scheduled to sail next week with the United States delegation to the Pan American conference at Santiago.

COAL MOVED AS ICE FLOES LEAVE THE HUDSON

New York, Feb. 26.—A rise in temperature and consequent clearing of ice floes from the Hudson enabled towing companies to move thousands of tons of anthracite from New Jersey terminals to New York city today.

More than 75,000 tons, twice the normal amount, have been delivered to Manhattan and Long Island dealers since Sunday night.

The fuel administrator's office directed delivery of the coal to the points where shortage was most acute.

REFUSED TO HAVE THEIR CHILDREN VACCINATED

Torrington, Feb. 26.—John Gunn, and Ernest Slate, of Harwinton, who refused to have their children vaccinated, in compliance with an order of the town school committee, were arraigned in court in Harwinton today and found guilty of violating the school attendance law. Fines of $15 and costs were imposed, but they refused to pay the fines and will be committed to jail.

Child Assaulted and Slain by Her Abductor

Confession Made by Wylie Morgan—6-Year-Old Lillian Gilmore's Body Found in a Tree Stump Hole.

Philadelphia, Feb. 26.—Wylie Morgan, the prisoner held in connection with the kidnapping Saturday of six-year-old Lillian Gilmore and her five-year-old sister, Dorothy, confessed tonight and led the detectives to a spot on the Neshaminy Creek near Croydon, Pa., where the body of Lillian was found in a tree stump hole on the bank of the stream. Croydon is twenty miles north of this city.

The child's body was taken to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gilmore.

Beyond stating that he had kidnapped the children and thrown Lillian's body on the bank of the creek after having assaulted both, the police withheld the details of Morgan's confession.

Shortly after the searching party, headed by Lieutenant Belshaw of the homicide squad, returned to the city, a large crowd surrounded the station house where Morgan was placed and threaten trouble. Threats of violence to the prisoner freely were made and for a time it was feared an attempt would be made to storm the building. The police, however, soon gained control of the situation and dispersed the crowd.

Little Dorothy Gilmore, whose pathetic story of the kidnapping and assault led to Morgan's arrest yesterday, had practically recovered tonight from her experience. She led a party of searchers during the day to an ice-covered pond, where she said Morgan had put her out of his motor car and from whence she managed to make way home.

Croydon is in Bucks county and it was said that Morgan was unable to tell whether the child had been slain in that county or in Philadelphia. The body was mutilated and the clothing saturated with blood. The exact cause of death, the police said, would not be determined until an autopsy is held, but they believe the child was dead when thrown to the bank of the creek.

Morgan's alleged confession, the authorities said, came shortly before 6 o'clock tonight, after thirty-six hours of questioning and after the prisoner again had been identified by Dorothy as the man who had lured her and her sister from in front of their home on the pretext of taking them for an automobile ride. Fifteen minutes later detectives left with Morgan in motor cars for the isolated spot where the body was found. The prisoner was at the wheel with a detective at his side and other officers in the rear seat. In the vicinity of Torresdale, Morgan became confused and drew a diagram of the place he had thrown the body. One of the detectives knew the neighborhood and a few minutes later the body was recovered.

Several hundred policemen and neighbors of the Gilmore family had spent the day searching for the little girl. Every vacant house, stable and other places in the northeast section that might conceal the child had been searched and all the streams in the vicinity dragged.

DEATH OF FORMER U. S. SENATOR G. B. PERKINS

Oakland, Cal., Feb. 26.—Former Senator George B. Perkins, 84, died at his home here today. From ship boy to 46 years of almost continuous public service, 22 years of which were in the United States senate, was the active life experience of George Clement Perkins.

He was born at Kennebunkport, Me., Aug. 27, 1839. At the age of 13 young Perkins left his home to become a sailor before the mast, his first voyage being on a sailing vessel to New Orleans. Thereafter, for a number of years, he followed the life of the sea, visiting nearly every port of the world. Touching finally, in 1855, at San Francisco, he caught the gold fever and turned prospector and miner. He was the first to introduce steam whalers in the Arctic ocean, and operated numerous ships on the Pacific from Alaska to Mexico.

GOVERNMENT CONTESTING CONSOLIDATION OF PACKERS

Action to Prevent Armour & Co. From Acquiring the Plants and Business of Morris & Co.—Merger Would Result in the Largest Meat Packing Industry of the Country, With Annual Sales of More Than $1,000,000,000—Would Increase the Power of Armour & Co. to Control and Dominate the Livestock and Packing Industry.

Washington, Feb. 26. — Another battle was begun today by the government against what it claims would be a monopoly in industry when Secretary Wallace, of the agricultural department today took steps to prevent Armour & Company of Chicago from acquiring the plants and business of Morris & Company, another of the "Big Five" packers.

Consummation of the consolidation would result in the largest meat packing enterprise in the history of the country with annual sales of more than $1,000,000,000.

F. Edson White, president of Armour & Company, declaring the present administration had proclaimed its belief in "less government in business and more business in government," said in a statement made public here and in Chicago that his company heartily subscribed to that slogan and was willing to meet the issue involved speedily and without fear of the result. Before legality of the merger is finally decided, several months is expected to elapse, and in all probability the case will reach the supreme court for determination.

Secretary Wallace, proceeding under authority given him in the packers and stockyards act, served complaints on Armour & Company, J. Ogden Armour, and Morris & Company, charging them with violation of the act by entering into a written agreement for the sale of Morris & Company. The complaints were to be made on or before Feb. 28 and the Morris & Company would be eliminated entirely as a competitor in the packing business. The acquisition, the complaints set forth, would effect a restraint of interstate commerce and would have the effect of creating a monopoly in many sections of the United States in the purchase of livestock and in the shipment and sale of meat and other livestock products in this country and abroad. The merger would materially increase the power of Armour & Company, it was stated, to control and dominate the livestock and meat packing industry.

A hearing was set for Monday, April 2, in Washington before the secretary of agriculture at which the packing companies specified will be required to show cause why an order should not be issued against the consolidation. Such an order would be subject to appeal to the United States circuit court in Chicago within thirty days. Decree of that court would be final except for review by the supreme court.

If the packers, in the event final determination of the issue is in favor of the government, fail to obey the order they would be subject to a fine of not less than $500, nor more than $10,000, or imprisonment for not less than six months nor more than five years or both. Each day during which failure to comply continued, would be deemed a separate offense.

At conferences between Secretary Wallace and J. Ogden Armour, then president, and other officials of Armour & Company in November, the packing offials asked that the proposal for the purchase of Morris & Company be sanctioned. Mr. Armour afterward saw President Harding and later a conference between the president, Secretary Wallace and Attorney General Daugherty was held, at the conclusion of which a statement was issued by Mr. Wallace that there seemed to be no occasion for government action at that time.

Secretary Wallace today stated that at that time he had suggested to the Armour officials that they should do nothing further with the proposed transaction and a week later he had repeated to them that the best thing to do was to drop the whole matter. He told them plainly, he said, that if they consummated the deal he would feel it his duty to issue a complaint.

Government officials said today there was nothing in the packers and stockyards act which would prevent Armour & Company from completing the purchase of Morris & Company, but that if the government was upheld in the final decision of the case, the Armour Company would have to divest itself of the Morris plants and business.

HAZARDS OF DEALING WITH PRIVATE BANKS

Boston, Feb. 26.—Private banking in this state has been turned largely into a gambling business in foreign exchange, with heavy losses among foreign born depositor speculators, a legislative committee reported today. These small banks were declared to be bucket shops in fact, and the bankers in several cases were identified as men associated with Charles Ponzi in his international postal coupon swindle or with defunct Boston trust companies.

An orgy of speculation by people who can ill afford to lose their savings" was the committee's summary of the operations of the banks in foreign exchange. These operations are mostly on the basis of margin payments, which appear on the books of many of the private banks as money placed with them for safe keeping, according to the committee report. This and other practices, it was said, have brought the operations outside the supervision of state authorities. Several bankers who have failed, who have had their licenses suspended or have surrendered them, are free from supervision under existing laws, it was said.

"The present gambling proclivities of these small bankers have grown steadily year after year," the joint special committee on banking laws said, "and today they are dealing in depreciated exchanges, which fact in itself encourages speculation. Under these circumstances this business is beyond the control of the banking department and requires regulation and restriction.

"With the restrictions called for in the proposed legislation, the poor immigrant, intent upon getting his savings back to his home or in aiding his relatives abroad, will not be subject to loss by the gambling spirit that is now the rule among these private bankers."

HELD IN $5,000 BAIL ON MANN ACT CHARGE

Hackensack, N. J., Feb. 26—Bail of $5,000 was fixed by United States Commissioner Agnew here today in the case of Arthur Ainscough, 35, on a charge of violating the Mann act in connection with the disappearance of Miss Ivy Davey, in 1921, when she was sixteen years old.

Ainscough, expert on marine engines and said to be a former member of the Canadian Constabulary, was a boarder at the Davey home. Police of Hackensack say he became fascinated with the girl and persuaded her to elope with him. On their way to Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Ainscough met with an accident as a result of which he lost the sight of one of his eyes.

Authorities say Miss Davey told them that they did not get married but lived together in a shack near the water front of Poughkeepsie. It is to this place that they were finally traced and brought back to Hackensack, authorities assert.

Ainscough is alleged by police to have one wife living in England and another in New Bedford, Mass.

CANADIANS WEARY OF LIVING IN THE "STATES"

Halifax, N. S., Feb. 26.—The Canadian club of Boston has asked government and municipal officials in the three maritime provinces to invite thousands of Canadian born persons now living in New England to return to their former homes this summer, proposing the pilgrimage take the form of an "old home week" observance. The club's communication asserts that there are thousands of former residents of the provinces anxious to return to the Dominion fold.

TO DYNAMITE ICEBOUND NEW ENGLAND HARBORS

Boston, Feb. 26.—Acting on instructions from Secretary Denby, officers of the First naval district here tonight took steps to secure additional help from the Third naval district at New York, and dynamite from the naval training station at Newport R. I., to force open icebound harbors on the Massachusetts coast.

The action by Secretary Denby followed an appeal by the mayors of 32 Massachusetts cities who on Saturday sent a telegram to President Harding seeking aid from the federal government in keeping open the Cape Cod canal in order that movement of coal might be expedited.

Navigation is being hindered off the New England coast, shipping men said today, by the fac tthat many buoys have been released by ice floes, with the result that the element of hazard of running aground has been added to the difficulties of penetrating the ice.

Thick ice was hampering efforts by the navy tug Chewink to break the ice barriers at Quincy to allow coal barges to be moved.

Rising temperature today had its effect on the ice conditions in Vineyard sound and Nantucket sound and the ice which had tied up barges and schooners and hindered navigation in the channels was fast disappearing.

The Sankaty of the New Bedford, Martha's Vineyard and Nantucket line today succeeded in breaking out of Nantucket harbor, where she had been held by the ice with other vessels for eight days.

Relief from the fuel shortage on Martha's Vineyard, rendered acute by ice conditions, was in sight tonight when it was learned that a barge would arrive at Vineyard Haven within two days with coal.

PLANS FOR DEALING WITH THE MERCHANT MARINE

Washington, Feb. 26.—The administration shipping bill was kept alive in the senate today by further debate, but executive officials, recognizing the end to be near, began the formulation of plans for dealing with the government's war-impelled merchant marine venture without the aid of the legislation.

Chairman Lasker, of the shipping board, conferred with President Harding, then met with the other members of the board and afterward announced that the policy of the administration would be worked out and made public before the end of the week. He declined to give any indication of the plans under consideration beyond saying they were of a "startling novel" nature.

Hopeful until last week that the shipping bill would be enacted, administration officials have given no indication of what alternative they have in mind. President Harding in making his final appeal for passage of the legislation in course of his address to congress February 7 on the British debt settlement said that if the legislative branch refused to approve the shipping bill or submit an alternative "the executive branch of the government may proceed as best it can to end the losses in liquidation and humiliation."

GOVERNOR TEMPLETON HAS RETURNED TO WATERBURY

Waterbury, Feb. 26.—Governor and Mrs. Charles A. Templeton returned to this city today from Jackson, N. H., where they have been spending a brief vacation. The governor was accompanied by W. J. Pape, publisher of the Waterbury Republican and the American, Mrs. Pape, and their daughter, Benita. Others in the party were Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Platt, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Reed, Dr. and Mrs. A. A. Camp.

WILLIMANTIC

NORWICH BULLETIN
Willimantic Office
21 Church Street Telephone 1020

About 100 voters attended the town meeting held at the town hall Monday evening. Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton called the meeting to order at 8 p. m. Robert E. Mitchell was selected as moderator. The first clause read was the petition of 21 voters asking for the erection of a receiving vault at the new Willimantic cemetery at a cost not to exceed $2,000. After loose discussion the clause was endorsed by the meeting. The voters endorsed the clause providing for the erection of an iron bridge in place of what is now known as the Horse Shoe bridge over the Natchaug river. Plans for the new bridge, 28 feet wide, estimate that the cost will not be over $14,000.

The necessity for a new bridge in place of the present structure was explained by Attorney Thomas J. Kelly, who further stated that the present Horse Shoe bridge had a capacity of not over four tons. The state statutes call for bridges built before 1917 to have a capacity of at least 8 tons. The new structure will have a capacity of at least 15 tons. In case of an accident on the present bridge the town will be liable for the damage.

In view of the additional expenses voted the tax rate on the grand list of 1921. A special town meeting will be called in the near future to ratify the endorsements of these clauses. The meeting was adjourned at 8.40 o'clock.

A pretty wedding took place Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock at St. Paul's Episcopal church, when Gerald Brooks of New London and Miss Leora Evangeline White, daughter of Mrs. Sadie White of No. 812 Main street, were united in marriage by the rector, Rev. Walter F. Borchert. The single ring service was used. The couple were attended by Mrs. White, the bride's mother and Miss Minnie Brooks of Hartford, a sister of the groom. A large number of friends attended the ceremony.

The bride wore a beautiful gown of grey canton crepe, with hat to match, and carried an arm bouquet of Killarney roses. Immediately after the ceremony, the bridal party motored to Hotel Bond, Hartford, where a wedding dinner was served. Mr. and Mrs. Brooks are spending their honeymoon in New York city and Springfield, Mass. On their return after April 1, they will reside at No. 812 Main street. The groom is employed by the Brainard & Armstrong Silk company, New London. The bride, who is widely known and popular here, was employed at the Holland Silk company mills previous to her marriage.

Four men were arraigned in police court Monday morning charged with intoxication Judge Fran H. Foss was on the bench. Three of the men pleaded guilty and were fined $10 and costs.

Early Sunday night a horse took fright near Bridge street and capsized the sleight which it was drawing and in which were Frank Garmalinski of South Coventry and Felix Lesiniak of No. 15 Main street, this city. Officer Frank McLean went to the scene and foud two broken jugs in the snow. Both men were intoxicated and were locked up. Unsuccessful attempt were made Sunday night to learn their names.

In court Monday morning, Lesiniak pleaded guilty to the charge and was fined $10 and costs, totalling $17.-15.

Garmalinski pleaded not guilty to the charge although he admitted having had a few drinks. His case was continued until Wednesday morning so that Officers McLean could be present to testify. Garmalinski paid Lesiniak's fine.

John Squires, who said that he was a native of Newburyport, Mass., had been employed as a weaver in Vernon, pleaded guilty to the charge of intoxication.

Squires had no money or friends and was taken to the county jail to work out his assessment of a $10 fine and costs of $9.15.

James Lynn, who gave his home as Hyde Park, Mass., and his occupation as a cotton weaver, also pleaded guilty to the same charge and his total assessment of $17.15 was paid by a friend.

Up to late Monday afternoon, Personal Tax Collector Michael E. Sullivan had collected about $8,000 or the taxes of about 4,000 men and women in the town of Windham, which is only two thirds of the number of names on the list. There are now only two days of grace remaining during which time the delinquent three thousand men and women must settle their personal tax with Collector Sullivan. It is likely that failure to do so will result in an appearance before police court. All persons between the ages of 21 and 60 years are liable to pay the tax unless exempted.

Willimantic Lodge, No. 11 of the Ancient Order of United Workmen, is making preparations for the reception of Will M. Narvis, supreme master workman, who will visit the lodge Tuesday evening, at their lodge rooms.

Mr. Narvis will speak on the good work accomplished by the organization during the past year and on the fine financial condition of all grand lodges connected with supreme lodge of the A. O. U. W.

In 1904, all loyal grand lodges adopted adequate rates and the excellent results of this method are shown in the annual report of the grand lodge of Connecticut, which shows assets of over one million dollars, making this grand lodge rank as one of the solid financial institutions of the state.

Willimantic lodge was one of the leaders in a recent membership contest, locally in charge of Field Manager John C. Trant.

More or less comment was aroused on the street Monday regarding the holding up of one of the drivers for the Parker-Elliott Coal company Sunday morning as he was making a delivery of coal to a customer. The driver was stopped by Prosecuting Attorney Samuel B. Harvey, and told to appear in court Monday morning.

Upon being informed of the affair a member of the firm called on Mr. Harvey and explained that the coal situation was so very acute and so many people were in need of a supply that the firm found it necessary to make Sunday deliveries to relieve suffe[illegible] conditions. Mr. Harvey agreed not to press the charge and the matter was dropped. Mr. Harvey said Monday morning that he could see no reason for coal deliveries on Sunday.

Camden Man's Amazing Message to Rheumatics
After Suffering Intense Agony for Many Years—He Wants to Tell Others.

Dr. Brigedoi: I simply had to write and tell you what your wonderful Camphorole has done for me. For many years I suffered the tortures of Rheumatism as only those who have it know. At the same time I had a terrible itch and, covered with sores, the sharp pains were so severe, I could not sleep. Had to get up and rub and scratch. It almost drove me crazy. I tried doctor after doctor and all kinds of medicine I was told to take, which only left me worse. I could not bend my knees. I am a steamfitter by trade and had to give up my work. Seeing your advertisement in a paper, I thought I would take another chance and told my daughter to get me a package of Camphorole. You can imagine my surprise after using Camphorole, I started to get better right away. After using two jars of Camphorole I am well and happy and have gone back to work. I shall never forget the day I took a chance on Camphorole. After all the years I suffered, it feels good to be well again. Robert W. Teasdale, 1917 High St., Camden, N. J.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre.

A local event of considerable importance in the photoplay world, is the presentation in this city of Laurette Taylor in a screen version of her most famous role, the title part of "Peg O' My Heart," which is the feature attraction at the Breed theatre today. The brilliant star of the stage was seen by many for the first time as "Peg" and to these especially the occasion was a memoriable one. In its celluloid form the celebrated play by J. Hartley Manners is destined to win new greatness; and the charming star an even greater renown.

Miss Taylor's "Peg" is a decided contribution to screen artistry. It is an effective reply to those who continually clamor "what's wrong with the movies?" The next time picture fans hear that complaint, send the knocker to see Laurette Taylor in "Peg O' My Heart." If he doesn't come away singing the praises of all concerned in the making of this delightful story, and of the photoplay as an art, he is either blind of a moron.

Once again "Peg" lives on the screen. Once again hundreds of thousands wil lthrill to the woes of little Peg, and once again will they rejoice with her in her happiness. For Peg is back again, and she is destined to stay a long while.

King Vidor, who directed the picture, has faithfully transformed the play to the screen. Mary O'Hara prepared the excellent scenario, and George Barnes is responsible for the fine photograph.

Larry Semon will also be seen in "A Pair of Kings," and the Pathe News will complete the bill.

Playing At the Broadway.

Five fine acts of B. F. Keith vaudeville was presented at the Broadway theatre yesterday to well pleased audiences.

Parshley opened with an xylophone musical novelty. Hall and Netla are agreeable comedians and also did some good singing.

Arthur DeVoy, assisted by Evelyn Faber, were well rewarded in their one act comedy playlet called "Mother's Diary."

Ed. Lowry offered songs and stories that were well received.

The closing act was the Du Vries Troupe in an acrobatic aerial novelty.

Douglas MacLean has never put over a funnier characterization than that of "Harry Elrod" in "Bell Boy 13," Thomas H. Ince's new comedy farce now running at the Broadway theatre.

The novel method in which he extricates himself from his difficulties when his millionaire uncle buys the hotel for the sole pleasure of firing Number Thirteen is the basis for one of the funniest farce situations ever screened.

"Kindred of the Dust" at the Strand.

Gripping drama, produced by a masterhand and enacted by a cast the strength of which could not have been improved upon, collectively or individually.

That is "Kindred of the Dust," an associated First National attraction produced by Raoul A. Walsh from the famous novel by Peter B. Kyne, whose readers are numbered in the hundreds of thousands. It started a three day run at the Strand theatre yesterday.

Seldom have we beheld a picture which is so grippingly effective, thanks to the skill of the author and producer, and the talent of the cast.

Throughout the tale there is a thread of romance which has a particular appeal of its own, with Miriam Cooper as "Nan of the Sawdust Pile," and Ralph Graves as Donald McKaye, playing the part of the lovers. Others in this exceptionally capable cast are W. J. Ferguson, the veteran actor; Eugenie Besserer, Pat Rooney, Lionel Belmore, Maryland Morne, Bessie Waters, Carolyn Rankin, Bruce Guerin and John Herdman.

If you love romance, adventure and thrills don't fail to see "Kindred of the Dust" at the Strand theatre.

A comedy and News were the other subjects.

College Convocation Recital.

At convocation Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock at Connecticut college a dramatic recital, Shakespeare Heroines, will be given by Mrs. Charles Rann Kennedy.

Mrs. Kennedy, widely known, professionally as Edith Wynne Matthison, is regarded as one of the gifted artists of the day; and her voice and diction particularly are known wherever a model of musical English expression is valued.

Tickets to this programme were issued in response to and in the order of application by mail, as requested by the committee, and were assigned up to the number beyond which it was not deemed safe to tax the capacity of the building.

Lecture Under Farm Bureau.

There will be a free illustrated lecture on Practical Improvements for Small Home Grounds, at the North Stonington Grange hall at 7.30 p. m. Wednesday evening, Febuary 28th. This lecture has been arranged for through the New London county farm bureau. Mrs. B. W. Ellis, specialist from the Connecticut Agricultural college will give the lecture. Everyone interested is welcome to attend.

The following evening, March 1st, Mrs. Ellis will also speak at the Wequetequock Community house in Stonington. This meeting will be open to all interested also.

MOLLA MALLORY WINS MATCH AFTER EXERTING HER UTMOST COURT ABILITY

Monte Carlo, Feb. 26.—(By the Associated Press)—Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, American lawn tennis champion, survived the first round of the Monte Carlo tournament today, only after the most strenuous playing. She defeated Miss Howcett, of Great Britain 4-6, 7-5.

Suzanne Lenglen, the French star, was scheduled to play the singles. By defeating Miss Vlasto in 24 games in the first set Miss Howlett forced the American champion to what is said to have been the longest set in her experience as a tournament player.

The withdrawal of Mlle. Lenglen [illegible] and the fact that Mrs. Mallory and Miss Elizabeth Ryan were playing below their normal form, caused disappointment among the tennis lovers gathered on the Riviera, especially because of the failure of the much expected Mallory-Lenglen match to materialize.

WOODWARD HAS CHANCE TO MAKE GOOD

The sale of Frank Woodward, New Haven pitching star, to the Chicago White Sox, announced recently by George Weiss, had been hanging fire for almost a week, it became known last night. When Weiss was in Philadelphia last Monday night he was in conference with Kid Gleason, the Chicago pilot, and the matter was discussed a length. Completion of the sale was held up pending the settlement of the civil suit instituted against Woodward by a local conductor for an alleged attack two weeks ago.

It is a question whether Woodie will make the grade with the Whit Sox. However, one thing in his favor is his recent statement that he really intended to take baseball seriously in the future. If he does he will have a chance to stay up in fast company. If he doesn't he might as well get ready to flop back to the minors. When he is right Woodie is a first rate pitcher, in fact, the best seen in the eastern League for years. But his only fail- [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

INSTRUCTIONS IN ENGLISH.

A case that dates back to the war days, when revelations were being made concerning settlements where nothing but a foreign language was spoken, has just come before the United States supreme court from the state of Nebraska. In that state, as well as in some others, laws were enacted which prohibited the teaching of foreign languages in the schools whether public or private. And in Nebraska the prohibition was carried to the extent of making it unlawful to give such instructions to children below the eighth grade in the homes, outside of school hours and by private teachers. It was the result of the feeling that developed at that time and the belief that the time was ripe to prevent any future revelations of such a character.

It is because the belief exists that the legislation went too far and denied rights which were constitutional that the case has been carried to the highest court in the land. The purpose of the law was to require the children growing up in this country to know the English language. Other states which took action similar to Nebraska, although possibly not as far reaching, have since changed their view so that the teaching of other languages is permitted along with English.

If any language is to be taught exclusively in this country, and that is what was revealed in not a few localities at the opening of the war when nothing but foreign languages were taught, that language should be English, but it doesn't appear that there is any such need even though it is believed that every child should have his instructions in the language of this country.

When the schooling in English has been obtained, the teaching of a foreign language to children does not necessarily constitute a menace. Compulsory education in English does not have to go so far as excluding the teaching of other languages in order to accomplish the desired object of making better American citizens. What the supreme court will have to say in regard to the question that has been raised will therefore be of widespread interest in the country.

RETURNING SEIZED PROPERTY.

That we are getting to the point where it is evident that we have seized and still hold alien property in excess of whatever may be necessary to cover claims from this country is shown by the action in the lower house of congress in voting that $10,000 of each estate shall be paid back to the former enemy alien. This may wipe out some of the estates held by the alien property custodian and will of course reduce by just that amount to more than that sum.

Coming at this late date there is no certainty that the bill will pass but in view of the slight opposition in the house the matter may be quickly disposed of in the senate in the rush to clear up business during the closing days of the session.

There are those who sought by amendment to make the bill even broader, but they failed. Any serious opposition to the measure in the senate would be sufficient to block it under present conditions.

The release of such a sum will come at a time when good use of it can be made in Germany. That country estimates that property to the amount of $11,000,000,000 was tied up by similar seizures in all countries. Just what proportion is in this country, or how near right the estimate of Germany is, are questions on which opinions may differ, but if there is no good reason for holding the property any longer it should be returned. The tying up of such funds only creates embarrassment and that is not the object of the custodianship now, whatever it might have been in the past. As long as there remains a sufficient amount to protect whatever claims have developed here the excess may well be turned back to the owners. There can be no harm in acknowledging through such action that the war is over.

FRANCE IN THE RUHR.

Progress may be slow, yet the French have reason to feel that they are making headway in the Ruhr against the many obstacles that are being put in their path. It was not to be anticipated that all that was required of the French was to send an army into that district, occupy it, say they had taken possession and proceed to get the same respect and cooperation from the people that would be expected from French territory or that had existed there previous to their coming.

The seizure was accompanied by the resentment and opposition of the people in the Ruhr district. They have made plenty of trouble for the occupying forces and they have done their best to check production and transportation. They have tried as hard as they could to make the whole affair appear to be a failure from the French standpoint.

France knew that it was not a question of a week or a month. It has figured on a year, or three months, or two years before a balance of judgment could be passed on the accomplishments. It has gone ahead at much expense, and to the accompaniment of reduced benefits from that district, but it is to its credit that it has put its policy into operation without the widespread destruction of property that occurred in Belgium and France. Homes, factories, mines and property in general have not been damaged but are in the same condition for full production that they were before the coming of the French.

France hasn't sought to strike terror to the hearts of those people. It would have been folly for it to have entered on a campaign of destruction, however it might have been figured that it would have quickly cowed the German people and given them a taste of what others had to experience at the hands of invaders from their country. France hasn't moved forward for revenge, but to collect what is due, but not paid, and its course is such as to accomplish the desired results, if anything would. The procedure in the Ruhr must have the approval of the world, even though the seizure of the [illegible] might not have been approved.

NEW ENGLAND AND WATER TRANSPORTATION.

The importance of water transportation to New England is well illustrated by the efforts that are being made at the present time to open up the harbors and rivers, the Cape Cod canal and Vineyard and Nantucket sounds which have been closed to navigation because of the ice. The severity of the winter has seriously interfered with navigation and such steps as are necessary to get through the coal vessels are thoroughly justified, to say nothing of aiding the moving of other commodities for which there have been serious delays.

There have been other years when the Thames river has been closed to navigation for a longer period than it has been this winter, but only for the persistent and costly efforts of the Thames river line the channel would have been closed sooner than it was. And now Norwich is prevented from getting coal, which is almost at its door, because the vessels carrying it are blocked.

The advantages to a city of water transportation are great. In an open winter it would have been of great assistance to New England in overcoming the effects of the coal strike and the inability of the railroads to handle all the business that they have been expected to take care of.

Even though abnormal conditions have prevailed in the past year, the situation now only lays emphasis upon the importance of encouraging the handling of the coal supply during that season of the year when it can be the most advantageously moved. Coal mined without strike interference ought to move into New England during the summer and early fall when the handicaps of winter are absent. Perhaps the experience of the past several years will direct more attention to it in the future.

LACK OF FUNDS.

In connection with the petitioning by the Grand Trunk road for the extension of its right to complete the railroad extension from Palmer to Providence the question has been asked as to why the road should not be completed.

The Grand Trunk spent something like seven million dollars in acquiring the right of way and grading. That expenditure has not all been lost. It will in fact be made good use of if the time ever comes that the extension is completed. The work was stopped by the exhaustion of funds and the great obstacle to further work lies in the lack of funds. The Grand Trunk is now in the hands of the Canadian government and while it is not disposed to comply with the demands, the fact that it was asked to abandon all the lines outside of the country makes it evident that the attitude in Canada is, to a certain extent at least, opposed to any great outlays on lines beyond the dominion borders.

Lack of money is thus quite a substantial reason for not completing the line. The Grand Trunk has an outlet in this part of New England that is able to handle any more business that might be obtained, and while it would appear that it might well direct its attention to a betterment of this line before undertaking any new lines in southern New England, it is highly probable that under the guidance of the Canadian government such outlays as are made for the Grand Trunk will be chiefly confined to the system as it exists today, with the greater part of the attention being directed to the lines within the dominion though good business would direct that feeder lines should not be neglected.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The amount of work that congress does never offsets what it fails to do.

Harry Thaw is allowed to go to see his mother for ten days. It is to be hoped it will not be another Bergdoll case.

The man on the corner says: One of the best signs of spring is that we have arrived at the end of the winter months.

The use of soft coal is going to add to the labors of those who will very soon be called upon to open the housecleaning season.

Henry Ford is talking about getting more railroads, but he hasn't as yet given any assurance that the railroad rates will be reduced.

The Moscow police have found over 3000 moonshine stills in less than 6000 houses searched. What a great help they would be to our enforcement squad!

Without a doubt there are those, not directly interested, who are disappointed over the developments in the Ruhr. They are the ones who seek profits from war.

Those who have been caught making counterfeit money did not intend to let Russia, Germany and other countries outstrip us in the volume of cheap money.

With the country having gained 4,500,000 since the last census it doesn't appear that Bill Haywood, Emma Goldman and Isadora Duncan have seriously interfered with a healthy growth here even though they have freed their minds on American institutions.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Washington, D. C., Feb. 26.—Both republican and democratic leaders of the house have practically decided not to attempt reorganization until the 68th congress convenes next December. At first it had been intended to call party caucuses this month and settle the vexed questions of floor leadership and other important offices, including a rearrangement of committee positions so far as affecting members now in office. But this week has seen a change of heart, and now neither side wants to assume the responsibility of stirring up factional strife at the last moment of the 67th congress when outgoing members would have a big "say" on matters governing the next congress where they would not be included in membership. There isn't much of a tangle on the democratic side of the house, as the selection of Garrett of Tennessee as floor leader is practically unanimous, and where Oldfield of Arkansas will be reelected party whip. But the republicans are still in a tangle over floor leadership to replace Mondell, who goes out under defeat for the senate, for which he was a candidate in November. The choice still seems to fall on either Longworth or Graham, but neither man has a solid sectional backing so essential to success at a caucus, and it may be a dark horse will be put forward at the last moment. If it were not for the fact that Massachusetts holds so many offices of power at the present time, which are credited to New England as a whole, in the minds of men from far-away sections, the choice in that case would be Tilson of Connecticut, who is especially adapted for the office both from parliamentary knowledge and experience, and because of his ability to keep his temper under all circumstances, and with the additional merit of being regarded as absolutely fairminded by men on both sides of the chamber. Tilson presides over the house frequently and his decisions are so able, so fair and so well founded that he has the respect and confidence of all his colleagues regardless of politics.

The last days of the session are filled with recrimination, challenges and general faultfinding. Unparliamentary language is heard on both sides of the aisle, for although floor leaders Lodge and Underwood by their poise and dignity, they cannot control the actions or words of their respective followers, and lapses from so called senatorial courtesy are frequent. This delights the crowded galleries which are on the alert for a scrap between senators and representatives who, as a rule, keep within the bounds of seemly behavior.

Senators have assailed each other with shouts of derisions, and loud calls of "prove it." Representatives havey gone a step farther and come to narrowly averted blows, as was the case in the house when two southern democrats rushed down the aisle, seized each other by the throat, and came out of the fray with torn collars and dangling neckties, as they were pulled apart by colleagues. Back and forth across the aisle that separates republicans from democrats sharp thrusts constantly fly. "You will run the country without the democrats," "I'd have already done that if the present administration" retort the republicans.

In other cases party ties are broken or ties occur between factions of the same parties. Two of the most amusing incidents of the week were when Senator Ashurst, who had listened to 25 similar statements of many words, by Senator McKellar, both democrats, rose and shouted "You talk too much." It was unparliamentary but it struck a responsive chord all over the senate. The next day Senator Owen became enraged at something Senator Kellogg had said regarding the Owen comments on the United States supreme court. There was but republican in his seat at that moment and that was Jones of Washington busily reading a newspaper. All the same Owen shook his fist at the empty republican chairs and shouted angrily "You people on that side of the aisle must answer me. I challenge you to do so" etc. But Jones, representing "you people" kept on reading his paper.

Thirty-eight of the men recently returned for their Watch on the Rhine slipped into Washington and out to their new post at Fort Meyer, absolutely unheralded and unnoticed by official recognition. But they said they didn't care a rap. They detrained without fuss and feathers and quietly climbed into the two big army trucks that waited their coming. No public notice had been given of their return or it would have unquestionably been otherwise. And Private Michael Gaffney expressed the sentiment of the little group when he remarked "It's all right. All we want is straight army stuff." He added "It's all in the life of a soldier whether we are here or in Germany. All the same I had got kinder used to the Rhineish atmosphere and I'd like to have stayed a bit longer." The men who rode out to Fort Meyer with the returned detail from overseas said the troops chatted and laughed all the way out, flavoring their talk with German phrases and German slang and overseas coloring. The detail was composed of men from all parts of the country.

Secretary of War Weeks does not regard trips abroad by congressional committee in the light of junkets, but regards them as enlightening and quite important when those committees are to decide on appropriations and policies governing overseas legislation.

Mr. Weeks has suggested to the members of the appropriation and military committees of senate and house that they make a trip down through the Panama canal and up the Pacific coast to Alaska early in April, on the St. Mihiel, which must make the trip anyhow for government purposes. The secretary offers them accommodations on the ship provided they pay for their own rations, etc. Mr. Weeks will go also if he can leave the department at that time, as he expects to be able to do. The transport has a cargo of army freight to take out, and Mr. Weeks believes it will be no expense to the country and a great benefit to coming legislation if the men on these committees can visit that part of the country and become personally familiar with its needs.

Congressman John Q. Tilson of Connecticut can claim unchallenged the distinction of having made the first 22nd of February 1923 speech on George Washington. It came about this way. Col. Tilson was a speaker at the annual banquet of the Masonic club of the National University law school, and was called on to speak at the moment the clocks were chiming midnight on the 21st. Colonel Tilson immediately began his address and at 12.01 on the 22nd was eulogizing the father of his country with emphasis and eloquence.

New England men here are very indignant over the statement made by Chairman Meyer of the interstate commerce commission to the effect that New England is not suffering for lack of fuel and that the coal shortage there is "psychological."

THEIR ODD ACTIONS

"The trouble with mother," began the first young married woman in a decided grievance, "is that she is entirely too modern! I don't see what the world is coming to! Here I've got to stay home from the bridge part this afternoon because——"

"Why, so have I!" declared the second young married woman, who was tucking the fur robe around the kicking feet of the twins in the smart perambulator. "I'm perfectly mad! My new dress has come, and when Petrolea sees it she is just going to curl up and pass out, because she hasn't a thing like it! I was counting on wearing it and then my mother—"

"My goodness!" cried the first young married woman, packing a pound of coffee and a bottle of olives into the vacant sport in her gocart. "Is your mother that way, too? I never heard anything like it! I called up my mother and told her I was going out, and wouldn't she run over and take care of Junior for me? I had a nice large pile of stockings for her to darn—mother always likes to be doing something—and then I counted on her making a custard pie for dinner, because I wasn't going to have time.

"But she said in such a sort of gay and carefree voice that wasn't it a shame, but she'd have to do without Junior today, as she was meeting an old friend downtown for lunch and the matinee.

"And then when I mentioned that I wanted to go shopping tomorrow she said, casually, that she was going out, too—her physical-culture club met. Just like that!"

"Well!" the second young married woman said, straightening up and abandoning the twins to their kicking. "My mother has been getting that way for a long time, but usually one look at the twins is enough to adjust her and make her forget whatever she has thought she wanted to do. But would you believe it, this morning I stopped there on my way to market and she wouldn't even come out to see them! She said she was having two tables of bridge herself and was making a cake—and when I cried, oh, dear, I had counted on her looking after the twins she said I wasn't it too mad, in an absent-minded sort of way, and went right on dusting! It does seem to me that a mother should have her child's interests at heart——"

"That is precisely the way I feel about it," agreed the first young married woman, jiggling the gocart up and down in a pacifying way. "Junior is so fretful these days that he nearly drives me crazy and I was counting on getting away from him this afternoon! My nerves are completely worn out and I should think mother would realize that I need a rest once in a while! It is so important for me to get out and meet people and get ideas and come home fresh and full of interesting news!

"I tried to tell mother so the other day, and she said she thought so, too, and dad said she looked so much brighter and younger now she had stopped staying home so much. Of course, my mother is awfully young looking, but it seems to me a true grandmother shouldn't waste time considering the youthfulness of her looks!

"I should think she would find her chief pleasure in watching the development of her grandchild's mind."

"Isn't that funny," the second young married woman cried. "That's almost the identical words I used myself when mother explained she was going to a club breakfast the other day when I had the dressmaker and phoned her to come on over and look after the twins. She said if I tried hard enough I could easily have the pleasure of watching their minds expand while I basted for Miss Jones and she was so sweet and serious about it that it didn't sound a bit sarcastic! She said a most important woman was going to give a talk after the breakfast and that for weeks she had been counting on being there then."

"I just don't understand it," said the first young woman, shaking her head. "Why, I've depended on mother so every time I've gone out. Nearly every afternoon I've let her have Junior and never objected when she rocked him and that's more than most grandmothers are allowed——"

"And mother has enjoyed the twins so," chimed in the second, "that I felt I ought to let her have every minute with them that she could—say, didn't my mother have your mother over to lunch the other day?"

"Why, so she did," said the first young woman.

Then recorded each other in breathless silence for a long moment.

"Well, I never would have believed it!" sighed the latter finally. "But it looks like a return and a strike. Why our mothers have been unusually kindness at all."—Exchange.

EDITOR'S

The Book of Mark.

Mr. Editor: The discussion going on for some time by different writers on Christian Science cannot but attract attention. But like all religious arguments it starts nowhere and lands in the same place. No one ever gets anything out of a religious discussion in a paper or anywhere else except possibly self-satisfaction. The last writer, M. B. M., appears to know more about the book of Mark than any one I ever met or read of and I have perhaps spent as much time studying the Bible in the past fifty years as any reader of The Bulletin. I wish your correspondent would inform me who wrote the book of Mark and how he or she as the case may be knows who was the author of that second part of the gospel?

Of course many believe it was the work of John Mark whose surname was Mark." (Acts 12:12, 25; 15:37)) afterward called John and finally Mark. His home was in Jerusalem with his mother, named Mary, who, according to biblical and other writers was apparently a woman of some means.

After Paul and Barnabus (the cousin of Mark) returned from a mission of relief to Antioch, they went on their first mission and took Mark with them as an attendant, but at Perga, three days out, Mark deserted them, various reasons being given by different writers and as a result, Paul, who was a little bit bossy in his way was so angered that Mark was not taken on the second trip. Yet Paul when he came near death's dark door and he wrote so touchingly to Timothy, "No one but Luke is with me," he especially requested Mark to be brought to him if possible before his death. The reading of the book and what is known of the quick, nervous way of Mark leads to the belief that Mark was the author, but it is believed with good reason that it was the first, not second gospel written. These are facts but furnish no proof of the authorship of the book.

There are many who think Peter was the author of the book with Mark for interpreter. There is good proof that the book of Mark—not part of it—was composed before the destruction of Jerusalem, in 70 A. D. Am I right, M. B. M?

Contrasts in Orthodoxy.

Mr. Editor: After reading in The Bulletin of today some extracts given from an address made by Rev. Percy Stickney Grant, on the errors of Scripture, as asserted by him, "it will do any Protestant good to turn to the page containing the Lenten lessons given at St. Patrick's church, by a Catholic priest, on the subject of "The Transaguration." As we read it, in the light of local movements we thought, would it not be strange if all the good gospel teachings that will be left us, will come from the Salvation Army and the Roman Catholic church? Would it not be a strange anomaly if they who have been charged with opposition to the Bible, should turn out to be the real champions for its integrity and guidance?

If it be so—as Mr. Grant affirms—that the children that are being born now are so much wiser than their parents, that they will not endorse their religious beliefs, it is time for us to sit up and take notice of the catastrophe which awaits our civilization as well as our Christianity.

Indeed, if it be a fact that the parents of today are begetting a generation of Bob. Ingersolls, it is really time that something be said and done seriously about birth control, ere we be deluged by a living tide of rank skepticism? An immediate remedy, however, might be applied in the house-cleaning of the church, in a different way from what Mr. Grant suggests.

It is apparent that the church needs a cleaning out of some ministerial humbugs who follow the pulpit as a profession that is more profitable to them than any other for which they are fit.

Once upon a time it was believed that God called men to the ministry, and that the candidates felt "Woe is me if I preach not the Gospel!" Now, if some of them do not realize this strain, if they preached even as if they did feel the obligation, it might fill a place in God's economy, and produce fruit after its kind.

But, God does not call men into the ministry to preach their doubts. He never did.

He does call men to preach His gospel; and in this is the test given for the judgment of those who hear, and how they are to distinguish the genuine and the man-made sort from which they are to turn aside.

The minister, the real one, the servant of the church, is to be listened to only when he preaches "the gospel." How reputable then are churches that pay such dispensers of skepticism and breeders of doubt. Rev. Grant says there are many of that kind.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, who will soon take his seat as one of the youngest members of the United States senate, celebrates his forty-first birthday today, having been born at Hudson, Mass., Feb. 27, 1882. He was educated in the public schools of his native town, entered a business college, took up stenography and later earned his way through the University of Michigan law school. After completing his studies he went to Butte, Mont., to begin the practice of his profession. He soon established his reputation as one of the most brilliant and capable lawyers in the State and is credited with having amassed a fortune of $100,000 in his profession. Mr. Wheeler began his public career as a member of the Montana legislature in 1910. Later he served five years as United States district attorney for Montana. In 1920 he was nominated for the governorship on the Democratic ticket, but was defeated in the election.

INCOME TAX FACTS

Refusal to File Return

Failure or "willful refusal" to file an income tax return and pay the tax on time subjects the delinquent to heavy penalties. For failure to file a return on time—on or before March 15, 1923—a taxpayer becomes liable to a penalty of not more than $1,000. A further penalty of 25 per cent. of the amount due may be applied, unless a later return is filed, and it is satisfactorily shown that the delinquency was due to a reasonable cause.

"Willful refusal" to make a return and pay the tax on time is punishable by a fine of not more than $10,000 or one year's imprisonment, or both, together with the cost of prosecution and a penalty of 25 per cent. of the amount of the tax.

If any installment of the tax is not paid when due the whole amount of the unpaid tax becomes due and payable upon notice and demand by the collector of internal revenue. If not paid within ten days after such demand a 5 per cent. penalty accrues with interest at the rate of 1 per cent. a month until paid.

When a return is made in good faith and understatement of the amount is not due to any fault of the taxpayer, no penalty attaches. If the understatement is due to negligence, but without intent to defraud, there is added 5 per cent. of the total amount of the deficiency, plus interest at the rate of 1 per cent. a month from the time the tax was due.

CHRISTOPHER BRAMBLE, of Brooklyn, Retired Chief Quartermaster U. S. Navy, who says his determination to try Tanlac was the wisest decision he ever made as the medicine completely restored his health

"I'll stand by Tanlac to the very last," declared Mr. Bramble, for it has helped me back on my feet and I am feeling like a new man now. I had suffered from stomach trouble for two years and was in an awful run-down condition. My appetite went back on me and when I did eat a little something I would suffer pain and misery for hours. My nerves were all out of fix. I would lie awake tossing and rolling until almost day, and I felt weak and tired all the time. I had no energy to do anything and just felt any way but right.

"Well, I just kept on losing weight and getting worse until I concluded to try Tanlac, and that was the wisest decision I ever made. It's the only medicine I ever saw that does all they say it will. I now eat three hearty meals a day and never feel a touch of indigestion and my appetite was never better, even when I was a school boy. My sleep is sound and restful and I get up mornings feeling refreshed and fine. My weight has increased and I have been built up until I never felt better in my life. If anybody doubts this statement just let them see me."

Rebecca Bryan, Wife of Daniel Boone.

One of the pioneer women of American history was Rebecca Bryan, pretty young wife of Daniel Boone, Indian fighter and first settler of Kentucky. In spite of his adventuring and warring, Daniel fell in love when he was still a young boy. His folks when they moved to North Carolina, were welcomed by a family named Bryan, of whom Rebecca was one of the daughters. She was a pretty creature, with dark eyes and rosy cheeks and gay spirits. It was a case of love at first sight with both of them, and their troth was plighted when Rebecca was but 15 and Daniel little older.

In the spring of 1756, shortly after the young pioneer's return from the French and Indian war, they were married by Daniel's father who was a Justice of the Peace. Pioneer wedding feasts were always very long and boisterous and this one was no exception, for the couple were soon to go further into unknown lands and might have no merriment for many a day. Rebecca must indeed have been a girl of exceptional charms. Thus runs her description in the words of a contemporary:

"Rebeca Bryan, whose brow had now been fanned by the breezes of seventeen summers, was like Rebecca of old, very fair to look upon, with jet black hair and eyes, complexion rather dark, and in stature something over the common size of her sex; her whole demeanor expressive of her childlike artlessness, pleasing in her address, and unaffectedly kind in her deportment. Never was there a more gently, affectionate, forbearing creature than this same bride of the Yadkin."

Indeed, a fitting bride for a pioneer She began married life in a rough log cabin on her father-in-law's farm, but soon she and Daniel acquired a level stretch of their own land, and, with the help of relatives and friends, put up their own home. Then Rebecca's real struggle began. Their modest dwelling stood in a real wilderness, she had no companions but Daniel, who was of a necessity away frequently. She did her rugged housework and kept her husband with his trapping and farming and cattle raising, and in these simple and industrious ways they made their living. Two sons were born here. She bravely faced the attacks of Indians and the hardships of warfare, and was in every way a representative pioneer wife and mother.

Stories That Recall Others

No Fair, Tail.

Katherine, age six, was explaining to her father the absence of a tooth that had been loose when she had started a few days before to visit her grandmother. "Grandmother told me to open my mouth so she could see my loose tooth, and when I did she took her fingers and jerked it out."

"That's no way to treat one, is it did?" said Katherine.

A Modern Hero.

The first primary teacher was telling the children the story of Abraham Lincoln. After she had described all his good traits, she said "And because he was so good they called him Honest Abe."

A little fellow in the back of the room signed, "Why didn't they call him Bill Hart, then?" he asked.

SQUIRREL BEGS FOOD FROM BROAD ST. MAN

That the long continued cold weather and snow on the ground has driven the wild animals to unusual boldness in their search for food was indicated last week by a squirrel that Officer Charles Smith observed at his home on Broad street. The little animal came dashing down a tree in Rockwell's woods and bounded across the street straight through the open door of a house on Rockwell street. After a moment or two out came the squirrel again and over into Mr. Smith's yard, where it boldly ran up to him and perched on his shoe in a begging attitude.

Officer Smith scattered some milk crackers in the yard, one of which was seized by the expectant squirrel which ran for the woods again and as it climbed back into a tree was chased up and down among the branches by another squirrel that wanted to share in the feast.

That water could be heated by stirring it was discovered by James P. Joule in 1843.

SURPRISES APPEAR ON BATTERY B'S NIGHT

When Battery B, 192nd F. A., C. N. G., met Monday night at the state armory a pleasant surprise awaited them, for under the direction of Mrs. William R. Denison, wife of Captain Denison, commanding the Battery, members of the Woman's Auxiliary of Robert O. Fletcher post, No. 4, American Legion, an appetising banquet had been prepared for them.

At a given time the non-commissioned officers marched across the drill floor and stood at their places at the tables, the enlisted men followed and then came Captain William Denison, Lieutenants John W. Hazelton, Howard S. Ives, and Roderick O. Lawless, officers of the Battery, and the guests of honor, Mayor Milo R. Waters, Rev. Charles H. Ricketts and Rev. U. O. Bellerose, who sat at the head table.

While popular music was being played by the Columbus band, which had given its services, the following banquet was enjoyed: Baked beans, roast pork, brown bread, buttered rolls, mixed relishes, frankfurters, cake, coffee, ice cream, cigars.

At the close of the banquet Captain Denison who acted as toastmaster introduced Mayor Waters who complimented the Battery on their standing and said that Norwich was proud of the men who were serving the colors in the Battery. Other speakers of the evening were Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, pastor of Greenerille Congregational church, and Rev. U. O. Bellerose, pastor of Sacred Heart church, Taftville. Captain Denison and Lieutenant Hazelton also spoke briefly.

While the Battery members were surprised in enjoying the spread another member of the company received a double surprise when Captain Denison called on him to arise and then presented him a fancy cake on which were twenty-five candles, and a box of cigars. The surprised man was Sergeant E. A. Faulkner whose 25th birthday fell on Monday.

The tables were most attractively decorated, red, white and blue streamers being laid across the center of each table. Beautiful baskets of cut flowers, loaned by Hawkins the florist, added to the attractiveness of the tables. Each Battery member and guest received a miniature American flag to be worn in the button hole.

To commemorate the occasion Don A. Houghton photographed the Battery at "mess," and the picture is to be framed and presented to the Battery by a friend.

Those who aided Mrs. Denison in preparing for and serving the banquet were Mrs. William F. Bogue, Mrs. James Caulkins, Mrs. George Fraser, Mrs. Clark Fraser, Mrs. Frank Kimball, Mrs. George Malcolm, Mrs. Geo. Pitcher, Mrs. George Turner, Mrs. Herbert Lawrence, Mrs. John Bowman, Mrs. George Ranger, and the Misses Evon Broadhurst, Ella Gernhardt and Dorothy Malcolm.

Following the banquet the Columbus band rendered several numbers and a snappy basketball game was played between the Battery five and the Baltic five, the army boys winning out by one point in a game of 20 minutes. The score was 12 to 11, Simoneau with 6 points leading in the scoring for Baltic, while Coleman with 6 points led the Battery five. The line-ups follow:

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

In its share of the recently authorized Windham county tax of $50,000, the town of Killingly is going to be called to pay more than $7,000—a pretty sum if one had it tucked away in a savings bank or Liberty bonds or some other equally satisfactory place. Killingly seems to be assessed about one eighth of the total for the entire county with towns. The assessment digs deep into the town's bank roll, but it is one that cannot be avoided and is made necessary by the heavy shrinkage in the county revenues during the past three years. The amount apportioned between the taxpayers of Killingly will mean a considerable sum to some individuals and will be reflected in the tax rate which will be levied at the financial meeting of the town scheduled to be held in March. As a matter of fact the tax assessment will be one of the things that will operate against any decided reduction in the tax rate in Killingly during the present [illegible] are other things to be paid such as paying for the new bridge over the Assawaga river, but that was a local improvement, while the county tax isn't of just the same complexion, though recognized as an obligation that Killingly owes to the county as an important part of that area.

PUTNAM

Three cases were disposed of in the city court, Monday morning. He wasn't a lawyer but his name was Marks, first name Martin. Martin got hold of something in liquid form that had a content of much more than one-half of one per cent. Full of liquid courage, Marks got into an argument with Frank Kocinsky, School street, and his arrest followed. He was charged with intoxication and breach of the peace. The latter charge was nolled and he enriched the city by the payment of $20 and costs.

Carl E. Koross of Worcester came to Putnam with an automobile party Saturday night. He beat the Volstead act to it and got some forbidden liquid refreshment and over estimated his capacity. This case was filed on the payment of costs.

August Holgenson, who was arrested a week ago on a charge of intoxication, pleaded guilty and then said he had not had a drink in 30 years, was called up on his continued case. An investigation had been made and it was found that Holgenson's memory was faulty or that possibly it seemed 30 years since he had his last drink when he was arraigned on that morning after. It was found that he has been drinking more or less. The city benefits to the extent of $20 and costs from August's indiscretion. Deputy Judge Archibald Macdonald, Jr., was on the bench in the absence of Judge Geissler, who is busy straightening out the affairs of his firm which suffered loss through the recent fire.

All of the teachers in the Sunday school of the Congregational church will meet in the gymnasium this (Tuesday) evening where a supper will be served. Matters pertaining to Sabbath school work will be discussed.

Mrs. Hiram Brown, who slipped on the subway stairs last week Thursday and broke her ankle, is able to sit in a chair and is suffering little or no pain. Mrs. Brown is 76 years old.

The brick work on the First National bank is nearing completion. The interior work is being rushed. When completed the bank will have the finest quarters in this section of the state.

Fifteen more shares in the 15th series of the Building and Loan were sold Saturday and 20 more Monday afternoon. This brings the total sale for the series up to 420 shares.

The bankrupt stock of an automobile accessory store just south of the City Hotel on South Main street, was sold at auction in Willimantic recently where the owner, A. Mathieu, had another store. The concern went into bankruptcy after being attached by the Standard Oil company for a large bill.

The selectmen have appointed Joseph Plessis to collect the personal tax of the town. Heretofore th epersonal tax has usually been collected by the town tax collector who collects the tax on real property, who for the past two years has been Attorney E. C. Morse.

Insurance adjusters are expected to arrive in Putnam Tuesday to adjust the losses caused by the Donahue block fire. The only remaining safe that was in the building, which belonged to Attorneys Torrey & Geissler, has been located under the debris of the burned building and appears to be intact. People who own building and loan shares have no cause for any uneasiness or alarm as the large book in which all share holders names are recorded and the amount due each was recovered from the large steel cabinet. The Building & Loan is now functioning in the Bar Library of the Court House block and all day Saturday share holders were coming to pay their February assessments. The police are still guarding the ruins night and day, and from time to time have driven people away who would loot the ruins if a watch was not kept. It is thought that partially burned clothing may be found in the ruins but it is not anticipated that it will be of much value.

From an authentic source it was reported Monday morning that a bluebird had been seen. Any sign that spring is approaching is more welcome this season than in many years. While so far as known the unusually severe winter has caused little suffering it certainly has caused much inconvenience. People have learned by experience that other fuels besides anthracite coal can be burned. A few who have used substitutes state that they will not change even when anthracite becomes plentiful but the majority of people are satisfied to return to burning hard coal to the exclusion of other fuel when opportunity of [illegible]

State Treasurer G. Harold Gilpatric, Mrs. Gilpatric and children and Miss Ellen Wheelock returned Sunday evening from New York.

About 200 wills in the custody of the firm of Torrey & Geissler, attorneys, came through the fire all right. These were in the steel cabinet which broke open and took fire inside. The wills were in heavy pasteboard containers. The containers were smoked and scorched but the wills remain intact.

There is considerable criticism among citizens that the highway department is failing to sand the sidewalks in the city. From the railroad station south on South Main street the sidewalk is coated with solid ice and there has no sand been put on it in a week or more. Practically the same condition exists in other parts of the city. The subways are also dangerously slippery. Last Thursday a woman broke her ankle by a fall on the stairs and Monday morning a Putnam dentist slid half way down the slippery steps but was not seriously injured.

Word was received in Putnam Monday morning, that John G. Johnson manufacturers agent of the H. K. H. Silk company, has suffered a cerebral hemorrhage and is in a critical condition. Mr. Johnson's health failed some weeks ago and he was obliged to go to Florida where he was accompanied by his brother, also of Putnam. Mr. Johnson came to Putnam when the Eureka Silk company removed here from Canton Mass. He was an overseer and finally became superintendent of the Hammond-Knowlton Silk company and when the concern consolidated with Hemingway's Mr. Johnson became general mill agent. Mr. Johnson has been very active both in his business and in public movements and church work. For a number of years he has been an alderman of the city and was chairman of the highway committee. It is believed that Mr. Johnson's physical breakdown is due to overtaxing his strength as all of his spare time from his business was utilized in public and church work.

Mrs. Emerance Maria Farley, for many years a resident of Putnam, died Sunday night at her home on Providence street. Mrs. Farley was the widow of George Farley, one of Putnam's best known French Canadian citizens. She was born in Sorel, Canada, April 14th, 1846. She came to Putnam when a young girl with her parents, Antoine Bibeault and Mary Louise Anger. Mrs. Farley is survived by three children, George and Armand Farley and Mrs. Gideon Lamitre.

Funeral services for Frank Mignault, one of Putnam's oldest French Canadian citizens was held from St. Mary's church, Monday morning. A high mass or requiem was celebrated by Rev. Charles F. Bedard. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Simon Farley of Pawtucket, formerly of Putnam, was in the city Monday, called here by the death of his sister-in-law, Mrs. Maria Farley.

Derby. — State police in company with local police, swooped down on several alleged gambling places and arrested two proprietors and a number of frequenters.

GOSHEN

Very interesting and highly instructive was the extension service institute meeting held under theauspices of the New London county farm bureau in Goshen church Tuesday, Feb. 20. The timely subjects along the line of agricultural thought included poultry and the disposition of eggs, by H. E. Johnson, agent of the New London county farm bureau. T. S. Owens of Storrs gave a stereopticon lecture on the extension service, including the demonstration work accomplished in the county and state during the past year. The windows of the church kitchen were darkened and the pictures shown were bright and clear. A lecture was also given by Professor Owens. While these agricultural thoughts were occupying the attention of the men folks down stairs in the lecture room Miss Aman conducted a demonstration in domestic home economics in the line of millinery that proved particularly interesting for the ladies. During the afternoon some very attractive new spring hats were deftly produced. A collation was served by the ladies at the noon hour.

Country roads are not in condition for travel by auto at present, and those who came from a distance had the novelty of an ox sled ride to and from the main pike, a distance of two miles.

Andrew Lathrop is the guest of friends in Hartford and is attending the automobile show.

A good time was enjoyed at the regular meeting of the Community club on Wednesday evening. The program was a stereopticon lecture on western scenery in Utah and the Grand Canyon of Arizona. Nearly 100 views were shown. Royal Weymouth of Quincy Mass a talented musician, gave two selections on the violin. Three songs—Keep the Home Fires Burning, Mother, and Peggy O'Neal—were sung by Lahaven ladies. There were selections on the victrola. Hot cocoa and doughnuts were served. The program committee were W. T. Curry and J. A. Randall.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Kenyon are the program committee for the next meeting to be held, March 5th.

One of the pupils in the Twelfth school district was quite badly injured while coasting down Goshen Hill on Thursday.

This Offers You

what you'll be glad to know

A new-type tooth paste, based on modern research, has brought rich benefits to millions. Dentists the world over now advise its use. You see one of its results in glistening teeth wherever you look today.

This offers you a delightful test, to show what it means in your home.

The foe of film

Your teeth are coated with a viscous film. No ordinary tooth paste can effectively combat it. So it clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays. Most tooth troubles, most dingy teeth, are due to that clinging film.

Film absorbs stains, making the teeth look cloudy. It forms the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

It was alarming

Tooth troubles due to film were constantly increasing. Very few escaped. The situation was alarming. So dental science sought for film combatants.

Research discovered two. One acts to curdle film, one to remove it, and without any harmful scouring. Able authorities proved those methods effective. Then a tooth paste was created, based on modern knowledge, and those two film combatants were embodied in it.

That tooth paste is called Pepsodent.

New protection

Pepsodent brings other new protection. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to neutralize mouth acids, the cause of tooth decay.

It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits which may otherwise ferment and form acids.

In all these ways, Pepsodent is bringing to careful people of some 50 nations a new dental era.

Avoid Harmful Grit

Pepsodent curdles the film and removes it without harmful scouring. Its polishing agent is far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

For beauty's sake

Men and women who want prettier teeth must fight that dingy film. People who want cleaner, safer teeth must combat it.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear.

What you see and feel will soon convince you. Cut out the coupon now.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

Buying Off Wild Wolf

Well sir, when Uncle Lucky saw the diamonds and the rubies he said to little Jack Rabbit

Ma[illegible]
Dollies[illegible]
Stripe[illegible]
Why[illegible]
Then[illegible]

Then, the little rabbit told Uncle Lucky how he had hopped into the hollow stump and how Old Miner Mole had given him the precious stones, just as I told you in the last story.

And then, after a little while, Uncle Lucky said:

"I'm tired of sitting by the fire. Let's go out and catch us the Sledmobile and go for a spin."

So the two little rabbits put on their fur coats and went out to the garage, and pretty soon, not so very long, they were skimming over the snow as fast as the Sledmobile would go, which was mighty fast, let me tell you, and, just then, all of a sudden, whom should they see but Mr. Wicked Wolf. Oh dear, oh dear.

"Hello there, Mr. Lucky Lefthind foot," said Mr. Wicked Wolf with a dreadful growl, and he jumped right in front of the Sledmobile.

"Get out of the way or I'll run over you," shouted the old gentleman rabbit, but Mr. Wicked Wolf didn't move a foot. No sir, nor an inch either. He just stood there with his mouth wide open, showing all his long white teeth.

"Dear me," said Uncle Lucky, "if I run over him I'll be arrested by the automobile cop and if I don't Mr. Wicked Wolf will eat me up, so what shall I do?"

And just then, he heard a voice say: "Tell Little Jack Rabbit to get out his gun,
He can shoot Mr. Wicked Wolf just in fun,
And then, if that wicked beast wont go,
I'll tell you of something else I know."

So little Jack Rabbit opened his knapsack, took out his little gun and pointed it at Mr. Wicked Wolf, but he only laughed and came closer to the Sledmobile.

"Oh dear, oh dear!" said Uncle Lucky, now we are done for, I know it, I know it."

And then, all of sudden, the voice came again from the tree-tops:

"If you have a bag of peanuts in the Sledmobile, I say,
Just toss it out to Mr. Wolf and then he'll run away."

And would you believe it, when the little rabbit looked in his knapsack, he found a bag of peanuts he had bought a long time ago at the circus. Wasn't it lucky he hadn't found them before. Well I just guess was! And when he threw the bag over to Mr. Wolf and [illegible] Mr. Wolf [illegible] he [illegible] and [illegible] and [illegible] and

BILL TO ADMIT ALIEN LABOR TO HAWAIIAN ISLANDS

Washington, Feb. 26.—A resolution proposing the temporary admission to the Hawaiian islands of alien labor including Chinese, otherwise barred under the immigration laws, was reported today by the house immigration committee. At the same time Chairman Johnson of the committee, who opposed the measure, introduced a resolution authorizing members of the committee reelected to the next congress to investigate Hawaiian labor needs.

The resolution reported today was introduced in July, 1921, by the late Delegate Kalanianaole, of Hawaii. Chairman Johnson, whose home is in Washington and other members of the committee from Pacific coast states, as well as Representative Box, Texas, said they would submit minority reports.

TO BROACH SETTLEMENT OF REPARATIONS QUESTION

Berne, Feb. 26.—Leopold Dubois, who went to Paris, it is understood, to sound Premier Poincare on the possible settlement of the reparations question is president and general manager of the Swiss Bank Verein at Basle, and financial circles regard him as eminently fitted for such a mission.

M. Dubois was formerly general manager of the Swiss national railways. He served as financial expert at the Genoa conference and later went to Berlin as a neutral expert on the commission studying the possibility of international credits for Germany. He is head of the Swiss consortium that advanced 100,000 Swiss francs for Germany and his bank is one of the three largest in Switzerland.

A NEW DISTANCE RECORD FOR MOTORLESS AIRPLANE

Not a shoddy, short-lived, graceless body—but a soundly constructed, beautiful body by Fisher.

Not a "favorable" price or an "impressive" price—but the lowest price of any six cylinder sedan on the market!

Look anywhere! Make any comparison! See for yourself! Be convinced that it is the greatest value the market affords!

Dr. Vapor-Eze says: "My treatments for all sorts of colds have helped many of your friends. Why shouldn't they help you?"

When you feel a cold coming on, simply rub Sterling's Vapor-Eze on your tight chest, or place it up each clogged-up nostril. The healing, medicated vapors go all through the air passages—and you just breathe your cold away

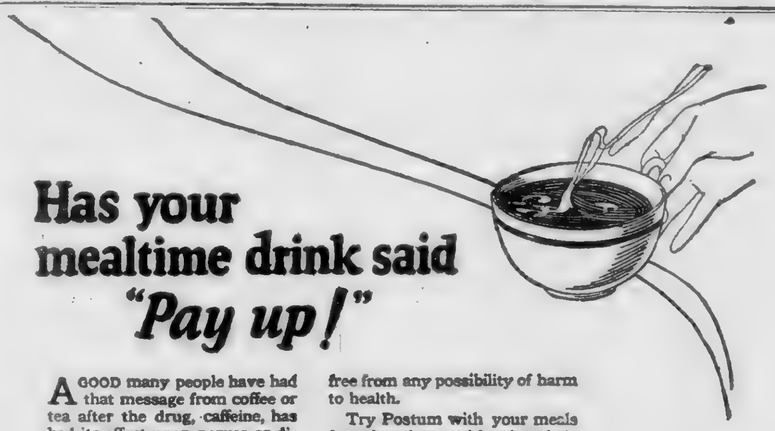
Sterling's Vapor-Eze leaves no stain



Has your mealtime drink said "Pay up!"

A GOOD many people have had that message from coffee or tea after the drug, caffeine, has had its effect upon nerves or digestion.

Frequently the message comes at night, when nerves won't quiet down and sleep won't come, after the dinner cup of coffee.

There's no unfriendly afternoon notice from that good cereal beverage, Postum.

Postum delights the taste, gives comfort and satisfaction, and is free from any possibility of harm to health.

Try Postum with your meals for a few days and let the whole family, the children included, share in its appetizing, invigorating goodness. It will bring better nights and brighter mornings.

Your grocer sells Postum in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) prepared instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages) for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared; made by boiling fully twenty minutes.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

Day's total sales 1,118,000 shares.
20 industrials averaged, 102.40, net loss .45; high 1923, 103.59; low 96.96.

Market Closed Irregular

New York, Feb. 26.—Higher money rates brought a large volume of selling orders into today's stock market, which closed irregularly lower. Further study of the cause and effect of the raising of the local federal reserve rediscount rate encouraged operations of the short side of the market and these were particularly effective in a number of the industrial shares which had been bid up sharply in the last three weeks of rising prices.

Bidding up of the steel shares on over distribution elsewhere was again resorted to. Considerable significance was attached to the fact that such constructive trade news as higher prices for crude rubber, zinc and copper were virtually disregarded, those shares making little or no headway in the face of the realizing movement in other quarters.

Steel shares have been lagging behind the rest of the industrial list so that any forward movement in them was not unexpected. U. S. steel common was frequently traded in, duplicating its previous high of 108 3-4 but failing back a point at the close, whereit was up only 1-8 on the day. Republic steel closed 2 points higher at 55 1-2, the early gains in Gulf States and Vanadium were reduced to fractions and crucible, after 90 7-8, dropped back to 88 1-2 for a net loss of 3-4.

Baldwin and American Can yielded readily to selling pressure, the former closing as low as 97 5-8 and the latter getting as low as 103 1-8, but both made partial recovery later. Food, chemical, sugar, motor and oil shares also were in demand, heavy losses of 1 to 10 points being registered by American Agricultural Chemical common and preferred, Virginia Carolina Chemical preferred, Brooklyn Edison, North American Co., Pittsburgh Coal, American Beet Sugar

POETRY

FROM "ASTRONOMY."

They sail, they sail—those lighted ships
Star-schooners out and on,
Cold eddy of the last thought slips
Smooth at their keel and is gone. . . .

Proud they come down on winds unspiced
With aught but the cold scent
Of space, to keep (who knows?) what tryst
Beyond the firmament.

The ultimate spume of light will toss
Upon their sails and fall
Pearl-spray, to leave dark sheets that cross
Seas with no light at all. . . .

On, on they steer span after span,
And only find to lose.
What seemed the star Aldebaran
In the shadow of Bolchemise.

On still: and time—a lessening—drawn
With a deep sigh must thank,
And sink with spattered oars and dawn
Soundlessly in their wake.
—Humbert Wolfe, in The Spectator.

WHERE DO FAIRIES HIDE THEIR HEADS?

Oh! where do fairies hide their heads
When snow lies on the hills,
When frost has scrolled their mossy beds,
And crystalized their rills?
Beneath the moon they cannot trip
In circles o'er the plain,
And draughts of dew they cannot sip,
Till green leaves come again.

Perhaps, in small blue diving bells
They plunge beneath the waves,
Inhabiting the wreathed shells
That lie in coral caves.
Perhaps, in red Vesuvius
Carousals they enjoy,
And cheer their little hearts, thus
Till green leaves come again.

When they return there will be mirth
And music in each tree,
And fairy wings once more the earth
And ruscle o'er where
The maids, to hear the elves dance,
Will hold their breath with pleasure,
No prophet tells the fairies' haunts
When grass and leaves spring green.

TAFTVILLE

Taftville people were amazed Monday morning to see a bird as big as a South American condor flying rapidly across the land in the rear of the Peosenmah barns, soaring easily over the No. 3 mill and across the Shetucket river and into the Lisbon woods. Few people had ever seen such a gigantic bird on the wing, and no one who saw it could name it until it later developed that the bird was a big bronze tom turkey, owned by E. W. Yerrington of South Front street, and only recently acquired by him for breeding purposes. The turkey evidently not feeling at home in its new surroundings took to flight inside the coop and crashed through the glass window, and in the sight of astonished attendants and passersby sailed directly Lisbon-ward. One of the men employed about the farm went to Lisbon immediately, but the big turkey eluded him and at last reports it was still at large. Few poultrymen in this locality have ever heard of a turkey flying half a mile or more, and at a height great enough to take it over a two-story brick mill and across a river which is by no means narrow. The bird is valuable for breeding purposes and it is hoped that it can be recovered before another day.

Justice of the Peace Walter Drew presided over the court that was held in Lisbon Monday noon, at which two small boys of Polish descent were charged with setting snares. The boys were fined and went their way well supplied with good advice which Justice Drew imparted to them.

Monday evening the Checker Girls, musical comedy was presented in Arnold hall to a fair sized audience. Those who attended saw a good clean show and plenty of action. The company is equipped with good singers and clever comedian, and is superior to the average song now appearing on the amateur stage.

Mr. Joseph Duquin and her sister, Miss Marie Desgeron, have been spending the week-end in Jewett City, the guests of Miss Delphine Beauregard.

The Community Sewing class met Monday evening in the Red Cross room in the Ponemah building.

Miss Sophie Turowicz is confined to her home in Lisbon, by an abscess in the ear.

The Boy Scouts met Monday evening in their rooms in the Sacred Heart school building, under the direction of Scoutmaster Rev. Henri F. Gendreau.

Mrs. William Geiser of Lisbon is ill with an attack of quinsy.

Mrs. Ralph Bussiere has returned to her home in Arctic, R. I., after spending the week-end with her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. James Emerson of Lisbon.

Dr. A. Sussler, who has been the guest of his brother, Dr. David Sussler, has returned to his home in New York.

George W. Meyer has returned to work after being ill at his home in Lisbon for the past few days.

Miss Ruth E. Heap is ill at her home on South Second avenue.

Maurice Gagne has resigned his position in the carding department of the Ponemah company.

Sunday afternoon there was a joint meeting of the English speaking Children of Mary society, the Rosary society and Ladies Auxiliary, A. O. H. to elect a committee to take charge of the supper and entertainment which is to be given on St. Patrick's night. The committee is as follows:- Chairman, Mrs. William Malone; secretary, Mrs. Andrew Frohmader; treasurer, Miss Agnes Malone; Mrs. Mary Coleman, Mrs. Bridget Flynn, Mrs. Marion Dougherty, Mrs. Dennis C. Murphy, Mrs. Anthony Murphy, Miss Annie Lafleur, Miss Kate Malone, Miss Louise White, Miss Catherine Hasler, Miss Lillian J. O'Brien, Miss Norah Murphy, Miss Agnes M. Dougherty, Miss Mary Murphy.

Miss Augusta Heibel of Lisbon entertained nine of her little friends Sunday afternoon in honor of her eighth birthday. A pretty birthday luncheon was served by her mother, Mrs. George Heibel, Jr., the centerpiece on the table being a large birthday cake with eight candles. The rooms were prettily decorated in pink. The afternoon was spent in games and music. The little guests were Misses Anna Geiser, Myrtle Schmidt, Hazel Gley, Martha Remfek, Helen Remick, Annetta Herman, Masters Raymond, Harold and Charles Helmboldt, Miss Augusta received many pretty and useful gifts. The little guests all voted on Miss Augusta as an ideal hostess and wished her many happy returns of the day.

LESS THAN 800 OUT OF 2,432
HAVE AUTO DRIVERS LICENSES

More than two-thirds of those who held 1922 Connecticut operators' licenses have failed to renew them for 1923 according to a statement issued by the department of motor vehicles. All possible efforts have been made by the department officials to urge motorists to renew their driving licenses before tomorrow (Wednesday) night when the old ones expire, but up to the end of last week only 34,751 had been issued, while the total for 1922 was 171,475.

If the same proportion holds true in Norwich as in the state, it would mean that out of the 2,432 cars that are owned in Norwich, according to the figures in the latest tax list only between 800 and 700 owners have so far secured their driving licenses for 1923.

Of course many of these are persons who do not intend to operate their cars until after the first of April, accordingly having a month left before they need a driver's license, but there will probably be some who have delayed to the last minute and may not get their 1923 license in time.

All branch offices of the motor vehicle department are opening at 8.30 and are remaining open until 6 o'clock so that those who have not yet made application for their new licenses may have several extra hours a day in which to secure them. The offices will also be open until 4.30 on Saturday.

To date the main Hartford office has issued but 49,000 new licenses, the New Haven office about 2,000, the Bridgeport branch a few over 1,000, the New London office about 1,500 and the Waterbury office less than 1,000.

The officials of the department are warning motorists that the state law makes them subject to arrest and conviction if they drive after midnight tomorrow night without securing and carrying a 1923 driving permit. The department is attempting to do all in its power to reduce the number of arrests by urging all drivers to secure their licenses at once.

SUES FOR $250 FOR INJURY TO HIS DOG

Leo Ceneviva of Niantic appeared before Judge Charles E. Waller in the court of common pleas in New London, onday seeking damages of $250 for injuries to a hunting dog by reason of being run over by an automobile owned and driven by Jacob Bohun of East Lyme. The plaintiff claims that on Oct. 10, 1921, his English setter hunting dog was upon the Flanders-Chesterfield highway when it was struck by the defendant's automobile and injured. Ceneviva alleges that he was put to considerable trouble by the dog fleeing into the woods and becoming lost and that he spent large sums of money for veterinary services and medical aid and that he lost the use of his dog for two or more seasons. The plaintiff claims that the animal was worth $100 at the time of the accident and that he has depreciated in value to $5.

Attorney Perry J. Hollandersky appeared for the plaintiff and the defendant was represented by Attorney Clayton B. Smith.

Ceneviva testified that he had been hunting and that the dog had been pointing some quail near the highway and that while the animal was crossing the road the defendant came along in his automobile, which hit the dog and injured it severely.

Other witnesses for the plaintiff were W. F. Goodrich, James H. Ames and Frank Santella, who gave expert testimony as to the value of the dog.

Helen Bohun, Clarence Hatt and Jacob Bohun, the defendant, all gave testimony denying that the car struck the dog but that the dog ran into the automobile.

Testimony was completed when court recessed at 1 o'clock for lunch and Attorneys Hollandersky and Smith made their arguments after the motion list session in the afternoon, after which Judge Waller took the papers.

WHITE HOUSE LUNCH OBLIGED TO CLOSE

The White House Lunch room at 15 Franklin street has been closed by the proprietor, Charles Stevens. The closing came as a surprise to many of the old patrons who went there Monday and found a sign giving notice of the closing attached to the door.

The location had been used for years as a lunch room and proprietors have always done a good business. It is said that the reason the place was closed was because the owner has other plans for the building in the future. Mr. Stevens did not wish to give up the business but could find no central location for his lunch room and gave up the job as hopeless.

One of the old patrons said Monday morning that more food could be bought at the White House lunch room for a thin dime than in any other eating establishment in the city. It was a poor man's haven and many of them patronized the lunch room for years. They will miss the place, but hope that some other location can be secured that they may enjoy meals at low prices in the future just as in the past.

Theatre Party for Nurses

Through the courtesy of Dr. E. J. Brophy six student nurses of the W. W. Backus hospital training school were entertained at a theatre party, followed by a supper. The doctor very kindly sent his car to convey the nurses to the theatre and back. The party was chaperoned by Miss Ruth Cooper, R. N.

DIED IN LANSING AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Thomas O'Donovan, formerly of Norwich, died in Lansing, Mich., on the night of February 22, after an illness of several months, a part of the time having been a patient in a sanatorium.

Mr. O'Donovan was born in the north of Ireland about 63 years ago, the son of John and Mary Walsh O'Donovan. His father followed the sea and later entered the coast guard service. The son received a good education and then followed in the seafaring business. In school he often acted as assistant to the teacher.

While on the sea, Mr. O'Donovan as a boy served as cabin boy for captains of ocean liners and later filled the position of steward.

After the death of his father, the family moved to Connecticut, and located in Baltic, remaining there until after the freshet of 1876, when the dam and much property in Baltic was swept away. The family then moved to Jewett City and seven years later came to Norwich.

Mr. O'Donovan mastered the trade of a polisher and for some time was employed by the Hopkins & Allen Arms Co., and its successors. He started the Knights of Labor in this city and was prominent in politics, often presiding over democratic caucuses. He was a close friend of the late Thomas A. Robinson and was the first to advocate his election as tax collector. His persistence won and Mr. Robinson filled the office with honor.

Mr. O'Donovan married Miss Nellie Alexander and two children came from this union, a daughter now living in Lansing, and a son who holds a fine position in that city. Mrs. O'Donovan died in Norwich about seven years ago, after which the family moved to Lansing. The only other survivor is a brother, John T. O'Donovan of Norwich.

Mr. O'Donovan was well informed on the topics of the day, and played an active part in the various organizations of which he was a member. He made friends quickly and was well known. There are many people in Norwich who remember him and will mourn his loss.

Disallows Doctor's Bill.

In the workmen's compensation claim of A. Ursprung of 55 Summer street, New London, against New England Collapsible Tube Co., New London, in which Commissioner J. J. Donohue has held a hearing on the doctor's bill presented by Dr. Charles M. Gasson of Waterford, the commissioner has disallowed the claim and dismissed it. The employe had the end of his second finger on his right hand hurt on May 26, 1922, on which compensation for total incapacity and specific injury has been paid.

It was shown at the hearing that the injured man was treated by a doctor provided by the company at the time of the injury. Afterwards he went to Dr. Gasson. The commissioner ruled that in leaving the physician furnished by the employer and seeking medical service of his own choice the employe must assume payment of bill for such services and the services rendered by Dr. Gasson were not such as are contemplated in the workmen's compensation act.

About 4,800,000,000 axes are made each year in the United States.

BERT LUCAS AMIDST ALL THE MOVIE STARS

Herbert W. Lucas of this city, who is on a trip in the west, was at Los Angeles, Cal., on Feb. 18, from which he writes The Bulletin as follows:

We left San Diego at 7 a. m., a beautiful morning, on the auto-bus stage and, believe me, it's a beautiful ride of 135 miles from San Diego to Los Angeles. We were right on the ocean edge part of the time and up in the mountains part of the time. It was gorgeous all the way. We came through a lot of orange groves which were loaded with fruit. We passed through Santa Anna, Twine, Fullerton, Anaheim, Pno, Hirdo Bandine and other places. The roads here are the best I have ridden over. All over the state they are great. We arrived in Los Angeles at 12.10 and you would think you had struck New York city. Geel what a live town. Well, with two heavy grips I struggled through the crowd till we got a Ninth street car. Then we took the car (the fare is a nickle) and went to the hotel. They charge the tourist the highest prices. They advertise cheap rooms but they never have any. We have a room now on Hope street, a very nice room, much cheaper than at the hotel. Thursday we went over to Pasadena and saw Johnny Service and Mr. Dodd, two Norwich boys. They were very glad to see one from Norwich. We learned that Jim Healy was dead, another Norwich person We went up to the Colorado bridge, a beautiful piece of work, and I visited the Elks home and was used fine.

The store that Johnny Service works in is one of the nicest stores in California. He showed us all through it, wholesale and retail. It employs 150 people and has 40 teams on the road. We had a very enjoyable day of it. Pasadena is a beautiful city. The climate here is grand. I don't wonder people want to live here, 82 here today and 15 below zero at Chicago.

We attended a great lecture last evening at the Trinity Auditorium on Practical Psychology. The building holds 2,500 people. We went at 6.30, stood outside to get in and at 7.15, when the doors opened, there were 1,500 people outside ready to gain admission. We went in with a rush at 8 o'clock. Thousands were outside trying to get in but couldn't.

Today (Friday) we took a 70-mile free ride out to a place called Gerard, a new town being opened up. We took an auto sight-seeing car at Hill street, 40 in each car, and went all through the principal streets, saw the Ambassador hotel with 2250 rooms, saw where Barney Oldfield lives and went through Hollywood, saw where all the moving picture places were, Fox studio, Lasky studio, Thomas Ince. We saw where Charles Ring is now making a new picture, Pilgrims Progress. Then we journeyed along away out to Gerard, where the lots were being sold. When we arrived we were served with a good dinner all of this free. Of course they tried to sell you a lot. They sold 30 lots. It was a fine place. We arrived home at 5.30, an all day's outing absolutely free. We saw the oldest oil well in California, still producing oil. Tomorrow we are going to Santa Fe, another free ride. We get in all the free rides we can as we also take rides that cost us quite a bit.

Sunday next there is to be a benefit for the aid of the children's hospital. It will be staged by all the leading movie actors and actresses. When you enter the great three-star race at the Ambassador arena you will be ushered in by the following ushereettes: Mae Busch, chairwomen, Alice Lake, Helene Chadwick, Teddy Sampson, Mattie Gamley, Betty Compson, Phyllis Haun, Marjory Daw, Ruth Clifford, Carmelda Geraghty, Lottie Pickford (chairman), Helen Ferguson, M. Julian Scott, Virginia Vaill. The big features on the bill are Tom Mix with his famous horse; Jack Pickford, Douglas McLean, Hoot Gibson, Edythe Sterling, Jenny Baker, Al St. John, famous trick cyclist, Rintendon, the champion jumping dog. The expenses of the event have finally been defrayed by the following contributions: Mary Pickford $100, Charles Chaplin, Douglas Fairbanks, Mack Sennett, Thomas Ince, and a lot more noted movie stars. The fare in is 50c and $100; boxes $10 and $20. It is at 2.30 Sunday afternoon. I shall take it in and the weatherman says it will be clear. It was postponed from last Sunday.

WASHINGTON PROGRAM FOR PARISH HOUSE DEPARTMENT

In place of the regular February meeting of the parish house department of Park Congregational church a beautiful entertainment in commemoration of Washington's birthday was held on Saturday evening in the Sunday school auditorium.

Preceding the formal program several delightful musical numbers were given by a trio consisting of Misses Annie L. Taft and Helen Royce and Eben Learned, after which Miss Louise C. Howe, chairman of the parish house department spoke a few words of welcome. A most interesting and instructive paper on the "Constitution and its Makers," which had been prepared by Mrs. William B. Birge, was effectively read by Mrs. Robert C. Perkins.

Following some musical selections by the trio, tableaux were shown which had been arranged by the committee, Miss Hannah Crowell, chairman: Miss H. R. Trumbull and Mrs. F. T. Sayles. As both tableaux were reproduced from familiar historical pictures, appropriate explanations of the scenes and characters were read during the presentation by Mrs. Perkins. The first tableau The Signing of the Constitution, showed General Washington seated, and was posed by George L. Ingalls. Other signers standing about the table were represented by H. A. Tirrell, Dr. W. W. Leonard, Neville Bliss, B. C. Pullen and Kenneth Church.

The second tableau, The Family of General Washington, represented the familiar picture of the home life and the characters, costumed in rich materials, were posed by Mrs. F. W. Cary, as Lady Washington, and her children, Nellie Custis and John Parke Custis, by Miss Barbara Allen and Charlie Prentice, while the first president was represented by Mr. Ingalls.

A candy booth appropriately decorated in red, white and blue, had been arranged by the Camp Fire Girls, for which a team had solicited candy. Under the general direction of their leader, Mrs. Louis Walden, those in charge were Misses Winifred Sweazey, Frances Dana Colt, Harriet Geer, Beatrice Leonard, Marion Agnew, Helen Clapp and Elizabeth Johnson.

During the social hour ice cream and cake were served in the dining room, the committee in charge being Mrs. William H. Collins and Mrs. George L. Ingalls. President and Lady Washington, impersonated by Mr. Ingalls and Mrs. Cary, presided at the table dispensing hospitality and attended by Mrs. John F. Rogers and Mrs. W. Tyler Browne, costumed in true colonial style, who earlier in the evening had acted as a reception committee.

WASHINGTON PARTY BY CHILDREN OF REVOLUTION

A Washington party was held last Thursday afternoon by the General Ebenezer Huntington society of the C. A. R., at the home of Mrs. E. Allen Bidwell, many members being present.

The meeting opened with the singing of America, following which routine business was transacted. The sum of $5 was appropriated from the treasury, which with a gift of $20 made a total of $25 to be sent to Washington, D. C., for the C. A. R. room in the administration building.

At the close of the meeting a social hour was enjoyed and games were played. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Bidwell and Mrs. Stewart, assisted by other members. A rising vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Bidwell and Miss Emily Bidwell for their hospitality.

NORWICH MEN GOING TO CUBA BY AIRPLANE

Two Norwich young men, J. A. Barry and B. B. Semoskey, are now in Florida, visiting Jacksonville and Key West, from which they are to go by airplane to Cuba, where they expect to stay two weeks, then returning home by way of Florida, Georgia, Virginia and Washington, where they intend to make short stops.

They left here about the middle of the month, going to New York and Chicago. A forty-five-mile gale at Albany and Buffalo made them five hours late in arriving in Chicago. From Chicago they went through Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky and Tennessee on their way to New Orleans before going to Florida.

A pleasant birthday party was greatly enjoyed last Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Lucier of Occum, both of whom had birthdays last week. A beautiful feature was two birthday cakes with candles. A buffet lunch consisting of cake, ice cream and punch.

Among the gifts were two $5 gold pieces, linen and cut glass. Those present were Ernest Lucier, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Thibeault, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Disco, Mr. and Mrs. Fred St. Germain, Mr. and Mrs. John Joubert, Mr. and Mrs. George Lacroix, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Boucher and Mr. and Mrs. Eustache Charron.

Holders of 1918 War Savings Stamps

The holders of the 1918 War Savings stamps, who have not as yet cashed their stamps, are urged to do so at the earliest possible moment, according to Postmaster John P. Murphy. These stamps ceased to bear interest on Jan. 1, 1923, and it is to warn the holders to redeem them that this call is sent out. Receipts are given to the owners while the stamp certificates are in transit to New Haven and cash payments are made within a week's time. Where a death has occurred in a family and the certificate appears in the name of the dead, it will be necessary for some member of the house to procure two copies of their probate appointment from the office of Nelson J. Ayling, the judge of probate, the same to be sent to Washington for authorization of payment to the proper party.

DIVERGENT VIEWS AT THE LEGISLATIVE HEARING ON ONE-MAN TROLLEY CAR BILL

Trolley Employes, With Frank O'Meara as Spokesman, Urged the Abolition of the One-Man Car on the Broad Ground That They Are Not Safe for the General Public—Employes Not Influenced by the Idea That They Are in Danger of Losing Their Employment—Lucius S. Storrs, President of the Trolley Company, in Opposing the Bill Declared There Were Fewer Accidents Per Mileage on the One-Man Cars Than on the Two-Man Car Service.

[illegible] Feb. 27.—The general assembly today had what was regarded as a [illegible] day. While the sitting in the house which was short, the volume of business given was large, and it would appear that nearly half of all measures introduced in January have gone through the committee stage. On no previous day were there so many persons in committee rooms for hearings, although [illegible] were particularly striking in nature.

The judiciary committee had before bills concerning the state prohibition laws one of which would permit a higher output in beer and wines than determined by the Volstead act, the another would provide reimbursement of former saloonkeepers for licenses lost when the 18th amendment became effective. Prohibition agents mustered a room full of people who [illegible] listened to debate on the merits of a state purchasing agent appointed by Governor Templeton as a measure of economy.

The [illegible] committee had before it three matters interested in kindergarten, removal of the tin dipper as a [illegible] drinking cup in schools, supervision of education in state institutions and elimination of discriminatory [illegible] between men and women [illegible].

[illegible] railroads committee was a bill to abolish the one-man trolley car. This was merely a preliminary hearing to that on similar bills and on a five cent fare tomorrow. The bill was offered by Mr Sisisky of Enfield, who made it chiefly a recital of poor trolley service in that town. Interest in the bill was limited to sixteen men, most of whom were trolley company employes who put themselves on record as opposed to the one-man car. Mr. Sisisky said the residents of Enfield were bitterly opposed to one-man cars because they did not afford sufficient service, were overcrowded at rush hours and were generally considered a danger to the traveling public.

W[illegible]y, in reply to Chairman, De[illegible] he thought the only justification for use of [illegible] kind of a car was economy. He thought people [illegible] would prefer a [illegible] line to no [illegible] service they were receiving.

Mr. Hyland, also a member from Enfield, said that he had been told by trolley employes that it was only a question of time before the one-man cars would lead to a "bad accident." He did not believe the one-man cars gave good service. He said it was only yesterday that he saw the operator of a one-man car take his hands off the lever and turn around to ring up a fare.

Frank O'Meara, representing the trolley employes, said that the men opposed one-man trolleys on the broad ground that they were not safe for the general public. The men did not oppose them with the idea that they were in danger of losing employment. He said there had been agitation for one-man cars against this type of cars. He thought that the public demanded service and was willing to pay for it.

Mr Dunham asked what he thought Mr Hyland's statement of the operator turning around to ring up a fare with his hands off the control, and Mr. O'Meara replied that he thought that operator ought to be discharged. He said the union insists that its members use utmost care in operation. The representatives of unions in New Haven, Hartford, Bridgeport, Meriden and elsewhere [illegible] their opposition to the measure.

Lucius S. Storrs president of the [illegible] company, replied in opposition to the bill reserving his main argument until tomorrow, but making brief general statement on one-man car [illegible] hearings. He spoke of difficulties beginning with present time and efforts [illegible] economy [illegible] be a [illegible] and at [illegible] Mr Storrs said that not all accidents properly credited to one-man cars were [illegible] Against [illegible] fewer accidents per [illegible] mileage on one-man cars than on two-man cars. Mr. Storrs said that the nature of injuries [illegible] service was shown which gave the adjustment [illegible] $9.23 per [illegible] Mr Storrs said that [illegible] of the [illegible] Mr Storrs

In the local police court Tuesday morning, John Conway, of Baltic, was arraigned on the charge of violation of the automobile law in that he had failed to make a report to the state motor vehicle department of an accident in which he figured on the evening of Saturday, December 2, 1922. The charge was brought by the state police. Conway was not put to plea. When court was opened, Prosecuting Attorney Harvey stated that he wished to have the case continued until Saturday, June 2, and Judge Foss granted the continuance.

The incidents in the case were related by Prosecuting Attorney Harvey who stated that on the evening in question, Elmer Richmond of South Windham was struck and knocked down by an automobile driven by the defendant while walking along the South Windham road to his home.

The state took up the case after having received a complaint and state Policeman Fred T. Caron made the investigation. The matter was brought to the attention of the prosecuting attorney who said that he did not believe that there was evidence enough to bring a criminal action. Upon a second investigation by the state police apparently convincing evidence was secured and Conway was brought before the court.

Attorney Harvey stated that he understood that Mr. Richmond was to institute a civil action and he did not care to try the case until that action was brought about. This was agreeable to the defendant's attorney. The defendant was let on bonds of $100.

When the accident took place, Richmond was taken to his home by Conway and he was confined there for several days. Conway stated that Richmond stepped directly in front of the car and that he was in no way to blame.

There were twenty-five deaths in the town of Windham during the month of January, according to the certificates filed at the office of Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton. Sixteen of these were people over sixty years of age. The list follows:

1—Kate L. Dimock, 69, kidney insufficiency.
3—Matthew P. Healy, 42, oedema of the lungs.
3—Denis Garceau, 54, tuberculosis of the lungs.
3—Anastasie Gadue, 74, chronic endocarditis.
4—Cornelius Looney, 76, arterio sclerosis.
4—Jennie Johnson, 48, cerebral embolism.
4—Alexandra Eremita, 44, carcinoma of the breast.
5—Johanna Mulligon, 82, interstitial nephritis.
6—Althea Lincoln, 72, pulmonary congestion.
9—Vincentena Larecchia, 2 months, three days, pulmonary oedema.
11—Henry Sloater, 83, pulmonary congestion.
12—Lucy P. James, 82, cerebral hemorrhage.
15—Cecile Claing, 2, diphtheria.
18—John Fenton, 77, arterio sclerosis myocarditis.
20—Andrew Matsack, 21, post operative intestinal obstruction.
24—Arthur Gagne, 67, anemia.
24—Mary A. Stone, 79, cerebral thrombosis.
26—John Skinner, 73, embolism of pulmonary artery.
28—Martha Arline Harris, 1, cardiac insufficiency (congential.)
29—Olivine Laberge, 68, cancer of the stomach.
29—Amelia Juranty, 34, pulmonary tuberculosis.
30—Chauncey Hooker, 86, interstitial nephritis.
30—Adelbert E. Welden, 74, suicide by hanging.
31—Lewis Lawton, 3, carcinoma of the throat.

At a meeting of the guarantors of the Willimantic Chautauqua Association held in the chamber of commerce rooms, a letter was read from the Swarthmore Chautauqua Association, setting the date for the Chautauqua in Willimantic this year. This was accepted as a favorable date and the following officers and committee were elected to take charge of the program:

President, Mrs. Carl Alford; vice president, Judge F. H. Foss; secretary, A. W. Buchanan, Jr.; treasurer, F. A. Cook; grounds committee, C. C. Case, chairman; A. I. French, A. L. French, A. A. Burton; advertising committee, E. F. Whitmore, R. G. Pennington, M. E. Sullivan, R. O. Branch, Miss Bertrude Turner; ticket committee, Mrs. J. B. Fullerton, Mrs. C. H. Webster, Mrs. M. E. Russ, Mrs. Marietta Stone, Mrs. C. N. Merrifield, Mrs. Lewis Curtis Dean, M. E. Lincoln, Channing Morrill, Ellsworth Weeks, John Reilly, J. A. Cook; reception committee, Mrs. A. A. Burton, chairman, with power to appoint her assistants; Sunday committee, Rev. Harry S. McCready, chairman, assisted by the clergy of Willimantic; junior Chautauqua, Mrs. Nellie B. Spaint her assistants.

It was also voted that the officers of the association and chairmen be given power to fill all vancies which might occur on their respective committees.

The Standard Oil company of New York has brought suit against Irving Greenberg of this city to recover damages of $100 and the case is returnable before Justice of the Peace Curtis Dean, March 10. An attachment has been served on the property of the defendant to the amount of $200. This constitutions the third action brought against Greenberg recently.

Gasoline has taken another jump and the Standard Oil company, the Gulf Refining company the E. A. Buck company have notified local garages and proprietors of service stations that the price had been increased two cents a gallon. Automobile owners found the price up to 29 cents a gallon Tuesday morning.

The regular meeting of the Girls' Friendly society of St. Paul's church was held with Miss Susan Albro of Oak street. This was the last meeting of the society before Rev. and Mrs. Walter F. Borchert left for Edgewood, R. I. Mr. Borchert was presented with a handsome cut glass vase. Refreshments were served during the course of the evening.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

WINDHAM

The Ladies' Aid society of the Congregational church served another bean supper Friday evening incharge of Mrs. F. E. Guild, assisted by Mrs. George Cook, Miss Emma Larrabee, Mrs. F. W. Barber, Mrs. Charles Larrabee and Miss Gertrude Arnold. In recognition of Washington's birthday the chapel was decorated with flags and in the center of each table was a Washington pie decorated with cherries and a lighted red candle in the center of each pie. The programme was in charge of Eden Cook, who had planned for a radio concert but satisfactory arrangements could not be made and home talent was substituted. There were soprano solos by Miss Margaret Bixby, readings by Miss Bixby and Mr. Cook. Victrola selection and singing of patriotic songs by the audience, accompanied by Miss Charlotte Lathrop, pianist and Mr. Cook banjo and mandolin. Although there is a good deal of sickness from grip colds, etc., there was a good attendance and the proceeds amounted to over $20.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

To destroy a costly painting in the interest of art is an almost every day occurrence in motion picture making. That is why a portrait of Bebe Daniels, popular Paramount star, painted at heavy expense by a well-known artist was cut to ribbons for a scene of William de Mille's production, "The World's Applause," featuring Bebe Daniels and Lewis Stone, which will be on view at the Strand theatre for three days beginning tomorrow.

The portrait of Miss Daniels was painted by a noted artist of Los Angeles at a cost approximating $1,000 and on its completion, it was placed in a frame and given a prominent place. As the guests invited by Townsend gather in an adjoining room in anticipation of seeing the great portrait, Mrs. Townsend (Kathlyn Williams), unable to restrain her fury, slashes the portrait savagely. In attempting to prevent the vandalism, Townsend is stabbed to death by his infuriated wife, who flees.

Corinne d'Alys (Bebe Daniels), the actress, is detained by the police and the newspapers make a great sensation of the affair, with the result that Corinne loses all her friends except one, her producer, Joh nElliot (Lewis Stone). From this point onward there is a succession of thrills, which will hold the spectators as by a spell.

A Christie comedy featuring Bobby Vernon in Second Childhood, and a News will be included.

At Broadway.

For the last half of this week there has been arranged five excellent B. F. Keith vaudeville acts.

The feature picture is Richard Talmadge, the dare-devil of the screen in "Putting It Over."

A chase sequence in "Putting It Over" the photoplay at the Broadway theatre tomorrow, called for motorcycle policemen. Two officers from the city force were secured and Mr Talmadge tells us that in spite of the fact that he knew it was all part of day's work, still he experienced quite a thrill when h ewas speeding down the boulevard to hear the siren's shrill blast, which means an invitation to attend the regular Monday morning court session.

An amusing incident occurred in the making of "Putting It Over" which tends to show the attempt at realism in picture making. An election speech was being made and a huge crowd of people were in attendance. From the midst of them came loud-mouthed praises for the speaker and his ability as a mayor. The noisy one was discovered to be an intoxicated person who had staggered into the crowd and drunkenly believing that he was listening to the real thing. The situation was so ludicrous that the director photographed the stranger in action.

"Peg O' My Heart" Closes Engagement at Breed Theatre.

The work of bringing the masterpieces of the stage within reach of every home into communities never reached by stage performances, has another striking contribution in the translation to the world of the screen of the famous stage play, "Peg O' My Heart," which Laurette Taylor made her memorable characterization of Peg which has become world-wide in fame.

"Peg O' My Heart," now a Metro picture, with Laurette Taylor appearing in her famous role, will be shown for the last three times today at the Breed theatre. This fascinating tale of J. Hartley Manners' conception, with Ireland and England as the background, and the elfin ways and humors and pathos of the motherless girl providing the main theme, has had 6,605 stage performances in the United States. Laurette Taylor created the role and has been identified with it ever since, even being known as Peg Taylor.

It's a tale of an Irish father and an English mother, of the Chichesters and Kingsworths, and Sir Gerald Aldair, Peg's legal guardian; and of the circumstances, amusing as well as heartstirring, that attend the young girl when she leaves the little Irish farm house where she was born and ventures among strangers to whom good form is the cardial requirement.

As in the stage play, Miss Taylor has the assistance of Michael, the famous canine actress with the masculine name. Michael has been with Miss Taylor in all her performances of Peg.

The screen production of "Peg O' My Heart" was directed by King Vidor. Miss Taylor's brilliant supporting cast includes such capable and popular players as Mahion Hamilton, Russell Simpson, Ethel Grey Terry, Nigel Barrie, Lionel Belmore, Vera Lewis, Sidna Beth Ivins, D. R. O. Hatswell, Aileen O'Malley and Fred Huntley.

SPENCER'S COLTS FIRST TO TRIM COMBAT TRAIN INDOOR BALL TOSSERS

A flashing attack that reached its peak in the first half of the eight inning launched by Spencers' Colts sent the Combat Train indoor baseball team down to ignominious defeat, the first the organization has suffered this season. Tuesday evening at the state armory. When the accounts were audited at the end of the game it was shown that the Colts had pile up 29 runs while the soldiers had corraled a paltry 15.

To pick an individual star on the Colts team would be an impossibility for each and every man proved his worth when the ocassion arose. The same however, cannot be said of the team of national defenders for if there was any kind of an error written into the records of baseball, they made it and some, that were never found on the pages. Billy Dixon, usual star of the indoor game, performed like a man with a wooden leg and only one arm. "Duke" Shea, by all laws of nature a pitcher, was at third base—that's all, just there occupying good space. Al Pineault, a youngster with pitching aspirations, showed plainly that all he had was just aspirations, a prayer and a smile. His offerings were treated with the utmost disrespect and hammered to all corners of the big drill shed, chased under chairs by mama outfielders, booted and mauhandled unmercifully.

The Colts were guilty of no glaring errors, only a few technical misplays being laid at their door. They played in whirlwind style, getting what seemed impossible hits with the greatest of ease and grace. Their hitting was what stood out prominently for in one inning, the eighth they batted around twice, and piled up 14 runs in this frame, a discouraging lead for any team to overcome. Spencer did the batting for the Colts with Murphy on the backstop end. The Simcox brothers, Tom and Red, put up a great exhibition and saved many a run. Downs, Smith, Bush and Zeralski also cavorted up in big time manner and all in all it was a whale of a team.

Willie Grieb, as honest a boy as ever stood in two shoes, was the official scorer and it goes without saying that the auditors of the score sheet found no mistakes in his figures. Too much cannot be said for the impartial way in which "Shorty" Malcolm officiated as arbitrator. He was the Judge Landis of the armory last evening and not even a whisper of complaint was heard against his unbiased decisions.

SUZANNE STILL UNCERTAIN ABOUT MENTONE TOURNEY

Monte Carlo, Feb. 27.—(By the Associated Press)—Mlle Suzanne Lenglen, the French tennis champion, still declines to give positive assurance that she will compete in the ladies' singles at the Mentone tournament, beginning March 5. The tennis officials announce her participation as certain, but when Mlle. Lenglen was asked for a definite "participation," and whether it meant taking part in the singles, she replied: "I will decide it in good time."

In mention of Mrs. Mallory's arrival on the Riviera coincidentally with Suzanne's withdrawal from the singles competition, in which, she had appeared the past five weeks, the latter temperamental young woman to display some heat. "I am afraid of any woman tennis player in the world" she exclaimed excitedly as she broke off the interview.

It is said deeply regret Mlle. Lenglen's failure to play through at the Monte Carlo singles. As the entire seating capacity of the stands had been sold several days ago upon the understanding and in expectation of another meeting between Mrs. Mallory

MATHEWSON BECOMES MEMBER OF BOSTON C. OF C.

Boston, Feb. 28.—Christy Mathewson, president of the Boston Braves, is going to be a member of the Boston chamber of commerce. That business organization tendered him a dinner tonight and one of the things "Matty" said was that the chamber ought to take a great interest in the city's major league affairs as does the St. Louis chamber.

Other than his reference to the St. Louis chamber of commerce's objections last season to deal with the Boston Red Sox and the New York Yankees, "Matty avoided the subject of baseball."

Emil Fuchs, of New York, a member of the syndicate which recently purchased the Braves from George Washington Grant, has also applied for membership in the Boston chamber.

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 27.—The state racing commission today announced the 1923 racing dates as applied to the four one-mile track in Maryland. The racing season, which will last 52 days, will open April 2 at Bowie and close at that track November 29. The dates follow:

Bowie: April 2 to 14, (12 days); November 26 to 29, (4 days). Havre De Grace: April 16 to 30 (15 days); September 19 to 30 (10 days). Pimlico: May 1 to 12 (11 days); November 1 to 14 (12 days). Laurel: October 2 to 27 (23 days).

WALKER BREAKS BELLEAIR LINKS RECORD OF 67 STROKES

Belleaire Heights, Fla., Feb. 27.—Cyril Walker, of the Englewood Country club, broke the record on the Belleair links today when he went around the championship course in 66 strokes. Two weeks ago, Captain E. F. Carter, the British golfer, played around in 67, bearing the record of Alex Smith, Belleair professional by a stroke.

Walker played with Miss Anita Lehme, of Chicago.

FLOWER OF ATHLETES AT ILLINI RELAY

Urbana, Ill., Feb. 27.—(By the Associated Press)—More than 500 athletes, the flower of the middle-west, with a sprinkling from the south, east and west, will compete in the sixth annual indoor relay carnival of the University of Illinois, on next Saturday afternoon.

Established in 1917 by Harry L. Gill, Illinois' veteran track coach, the carnival has become the largest indoor relay meet in the United States. This year the wester Missouri Valley, Little nineteen and other conference coaches will enter larger squads than ever.

Michigan, Chicago, Wisconsin, Iowa, Minnesota, Ohio, Illinois are certain to be represented and Purdue and Indiana may also send teams. Kansas-Nebraska, Missouri and Drake will be included in the invaders from the Missouri valley. Iowa will send intact its mile team which won at the carnival last year and repeated at the Big Ten conference meet in Iowa city.

With the passing of the Illinois four mile squad, holders of the world's record, Michigan springs into prominence as a likely victor in the long race. Chicago, reputed to have the best runners it has boasted since 1918, when the Maroons won three relay races, is likely to figure largely in the university division, Wisconsin, despite loss of a considerable squad by scholastic deficiencies, will present a stronger front than expected.

Illinois probably will enter mile and four mile teams which will be composed largely of new men.

Greater interest than ever before is manifested in the college races in which are already booked Michigan Aggies, two mile victors at Drake, Lombard, Bradley, Kalamazoo, Carleton, Coe, Haskell institute, Knox, De Pauw, with many more to hear from. East Frazier, Baylor university's crack hurdler, will come all the way from Texas to race over the barriers.

The special events will be listed, the 75-yard dash, low and high hurdles, high and broad jumps, pole vault, shot put, 300-yard, 1000-yard and 1500-meter runs.

The three-year duel foor all-around honors between Harold Osborne of Illinois and Brutus Hamilton of Missouri ended last year when Osborne achieved his ambition by defeating the Missouri star. With the passing of these star athletes, new men will be seen in the competition. Kansas has Norton, groomed as a new champion but Michigan will present Hubbard, who is especially good in the hurdles. Mathias of Illinois, who placed third last year will represent Illinois.

THE PRATT BROTHERS REINSTATED BY LANDIS

Chicago, Feb. 27.—(By the Associated Press)—The Pratt brothers, whose interchangeable names introduced baseball to the spectacle of one body being in two places at the same time, were reinstated in organized baseball today by commissioner K. M. Landis, contingent upon their repaying to two clubs "the expenses occasioned by their misconduct."

The Pratt family baseball league in 1920 when Francis B. Pratt was drafted by the Greeneville, S. C., baseball association from Carrolton, in the Georgia state league. Francis B. though, had the instincts of a born "joiner" and, not satisfied with one contract, joined the Chicago White Sox, too.

The extra contract was no burden on the Pratt family for W. Luther, brother of Francis B., plays baseball, so Francis B. sent Luther down to Greenville, where he palmed himself off on the Carolinians, as Francis. When Francis began playing on two teams at one time an investigation started, with the result that both landed on the baseball czar's ineligible list.

A SIKI-CARPENTIER BOUT TO BE ARRANGED TODAY

Paris, Feb. 27.—A fight between "battlins" Siki the Senegal black, and Georges Carpentier, is to be definitely arranged tomorrow, and a contract signed, according to the Petit Parisien. The bout will be for twenty rounds. Each man must weigh in under the maximum weight for light heavyweights. All titles held by either man at the time of the fight are to be at stake.

The meeting will take place in the Buffalo stadium here. The date is dependent on Siki's American engagements, but it will be sometime between May and September 30. A large part of the gate receipts will go to scientific institutions.

COVELESKI AND UHLE ARE SHOWING IMPROVED FORM

Hot Springs, Ark., Feb. 27.—Stanley Coveleski, Sherrod Smith, and George Uhle, pitchers of the Cleveland American baseball club, are in form to start exhibition games, coaches Roth and McAllister of the Indians, declared late today when the hatterymen left here for Lakeland, Fla., to join their mates.

Babe Ruth's daily rambles have reduced his weight so successfully that the big home run king is already in much better condition than at this time last season. His admirers are predicting that he will regain this year some of the prestige lost last season.

Montreuil Quits in 11th

HAHN TO BECOME COACH AT PRINCETON

Ann Arbor, Mich, Feb. 27.—Archie Hahn, freshman track coach and varsity trainer for the last three years at the University of Michigan, will leave at the end of the present school year to become assistant track coach to Keene Fitzpatrick at Princeton, it was announced today.

Hahn, who for five years prior to coming here was track coach at Brown University, is said to be the only individual who ever won three first places in the Olympic games, winning the 60, 100, and 200 metre events in the games held in St. Louis.

Hahn is the second Michigan track coach to go to Princeton, Fitzpatrick going to the Tigers about ten years ago.

MAENNERCHOR ATHLETES PERFORM AT "Y"

The Taftville Maennerchor men and women gym class gave their gymnastic exhibition in the Y. M. C. A. gym last night, giving one of the best demonstrations held in the "Y" gym in the last few years. The program covered a variety of gymnastic stunts, each being put over with real pep and finish. The performers were neatly dressed, and worked in an enthusiastic way that reflects much credit on their director, Karl Kraelin. The music, supplied by the Crescent orchestra, did much to assist with the success of the event, playing for the drills and stunts.

Women—Mary Krauss, Louise Krauss, Wilhelmine Krauss, Anna Seidel, Anna Volkman, Lula Herman, Mrs DeCelles, Dorothy and Margaret Heibel, Lillian Stricht, Mildred Kloss, Frieda Bauer, Kate Leupold, Bertha Thoma, Bertha Hahn, Pauline Wunderlick, Dorothy and Erma Vogtman, Anna Bauer, Margaret Troger, Elsie Heberding, Augusta Thoma Emma and Hilda Spielvogal, Frieda Hermann, Elizabeth Puchta, Frieda and Hilda Thoma.

Orchestra, John Eckstein leader George Hemboldt, Adol Heinrich, Geo. Muddleman, Alvin Kampf, Max Heinrich, David Livingstone, J. Heap.

All the participants are surely worthy of the success that was theirs last night, and are to be encouraged for adopting this pastime, which means bodily health and vigor, as well as the pleasure derived from the sport.

COLLINS EASILY BEATS DOC ROSCOW, 300 To 127

New York, Feb. 27.—Percy N. Collins, of Chicago, easily defeated Dr. Richard M. Roscow, of Baltimore, 300 to 127, tonight, in the fourth game of the tournament for the national class A amateur 18.2 balkline billiard championship. Roscow is national class B champion.

Emil A. Reuner, Youngstown, Ohio, in almost entirely open table play, took the third game this afternoon from Robert M. Lord, of the Illinois Athetic club, Chicago, 300 to 138.

Burnbrock Kayoes Sheldon

PIONEER A. C. TO SEEK INJUNCTION TO PREVENT FIRPO-BRENNAN MATCH

New York, Feb. 27.— An injunction to prevent Luis Firpo, South American heavyweight, from meeting Bill Brennan in a bout at Madison Square Garden, March 12, will be sought in court by the Pioneer Athletic club which claims an agreement with the Argentinian for first demand upon his services.

Announcement of the club's intention was made tonight by Frank Harris, its attorney, after he failed to convince chairman William Muldoon of the state boxing commission of the client's views. The comission Firpo and promoter Tex Rickard were notified of the impending action.

The Pioneer club, claims Firpo agreed to meet Jack Herman of Newark, N. J., in its arena, but instead fought Herman under auspices of another club. When the commission was appealed to last sumer, chairman Muldoon counseled the club to arrange another bout for Firpo, saying the South American was a bigger drawing card than before.

While arrangements for the new match were in progress, Firpo returned to Sout America and while there accepted Rickard's terms for a match with Brennan, which the commission had sanctioned. The club demands that Firpo fight for it before he meets Brennan.

COLLETTI ISSUES DEFI TO VILLA AND GENARO

New York, Feb. 27.—The New York state athletic commission today accepted a challenge filed by Joe Colletti, flyweight boxer, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., for a match with the winner of their bout Thursday night between Pancho Villa, the champion, and Frank Genaro, for the American flyweight title.

Colletti's challenge, which must be accepted by either Villa of Genaro within six months, under the commission's rules, was accompanied by a $2,500 forfeit, posted by his manager, Frank Bagley.

CHARLEY SCHMIDT SIGNS AS SCOUT FOR DODGERS

Thermoesto, Calif. Feb. 27.—Charlie Schmidt, a brother of Walter Schmidt, formerly catcher of the Pittsburgh Nationals and himself a former major league baseball catcher, signed a contract with the Brooklyn National League club to serve as scout and trainer of young pitchers. He will leave Modesto tonight, he said, to join the Brooklyn club at their spring training camp at Clearwater, Fla.

ALL-CUBAN TEAM TO FEATURE NEW LEAGUE

New York, Feb. 27. An all-cuban team representing the Middletown, N. Y., club in the new Atlantic League, now in process of organization, will be a baseball novelty this season if plans of Richard Henriquez, of Long Branch, N. J., materialize.

Henriquez, who will manage the Middletown club, announced today he had just returned from a tour of Cuba, where he signed fifteen island players, all of whom he described as possessing promising diamond ability.

EVER HAMMER GETS $1,000 FINE FOR BUTTING

Detroit, Mich, Feb. 27.—A fine of $1,000 today was imposed on Ever Hammer by Charles P. Gardner boxing commissioner, after an investigation of last night's bout between Hammer and Sid Barbarian which was stopped in the sixth round after the referee warned Hammer against holding and butting.

Hammer claimed he was injured in the first round and resorted to the clinch to regain his strength.

ORGANIZER OF FAMOUS ORIGINAL CELTICS DEAD

Waterloo, N. Y. Feb. 27.—Edward Clark well-known athlete and a former native of this country, died today at Shelter Island, Long Island. He was the organizer of the original Celtics, basketball team, and was a member of the five when it won the world's championship at the Pan-American Exposition in 1901.

Four sixteen months he was a director of athletics of the American forces in France.

McKee Navy Captain

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 27.—Ira C. McKee, of Butler, Pa., a third year student at the Naval Academy, was today elected captain of the navy basket ball squad for next season. McKee also plays on both the football and baseball teams.

Ross Breaks Course Record

Pinehurst, Feb. 27.—The constantly decreasing record for the championship golf course here went down another notch today under the attack of Alex. Ross, Detroit professional, who turned in a card of 65 against a par of 71, Ross's score was 31-34.

Peterson Yale Swimming Captain

New Haven, Feb. 27.—Edwin W. Peterson, of Honolulu, Hawaii, was elected captain of the Yale freshman swimming team.

Berlin Wins From New Haven

New Haven, Feb. 27.—The Berlin N. H. hockey team defeated the New Haven hockey club, 2 goals to nothing in an exhibition game here tonight.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

Intra-mural athletics at Michigan testants.

J. Howard Shoemaker, of the New York, A. C., amateur pocket billiard expert, will enter the English tourney.

Ohio State University has added polo to its curriculum of athletic games.

Howard Drew, one of the real 9 2-5 second sprinters is now a practicing attorney-at-law in Hartford, Conn.

Chicago by next year will have 19 full 18-hole golf courses in operation under the jurisdiction of the Chicago Public Links Association.

Pol Perrit, former Giant and Cardinal hurler, is pitching fine ball in Southern California, turning in shutouts every now and then.

Red Rommel, Connie Mack's star pitcher, is not a knuckle ball twirler. He says he uses his finger nails, not his knuckles.

Ernie Johnson has a cinch making a regular place for himself in the White Sox infield this season. He is the only infielder without competition.

In-tra-mural athletics at Michigan to date have attracted approximately 3,000 students, Paul Francisco, secretary of the intra-mural athletic association, estimates.

Del Monte will hold the Pacific Coast polo championships March 23 to April 15. It promises to be the biggest ever staged on the coast.

Fred Tenney and Fred Lake, two ex-Boston base ball managers, are both in the insurance business and are in the same offices in Boston.

Penn state received $35,000 for its share of the New Year's day football game at Pasadena, in which southern California beat Bezdek's players.

Despite the fact that a year ago Miller Huggins boasted he had the best pitching staff in the American League that department is now his one big worry.

Yachting fever has caught a lot of Californians, and in Los Angeles, alone, new yachts valued at more than $3,000,000 are under construction at the present time.

While Gavvy Cravath has been signed mainly as coach for the Phillies, Maj. Art Fletcher says he expects the veteran slugger to do some wallloping in the tight places this coming season.

The San Francisco Coast League now will establish a training camp for youngsters, to days being given over to the novices early in February. The camp will be located at the Valencia street grounds.

Jim Dougherty, who manages Bobby Barrett, George Godfrey and other ambitious battlers, think he has another possible champion in Alex Hart. The latter recently distinguished himself by defeating George (Knockout)

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

Crossing the River on the Ice

Well, after Mr. Wicked Wolf had gone away, the two little rabbits started off again in their sledmobile and by and by, after a while, they came to a river. There wasn't any bridge across but they didn't care, for the ice looked thick and strong. So they steered the sledmobile down the bank and then, away they went over the ice.

But, Oh dear me, just as they got to the middle, the ice broke, for it was as thin as paper way out there you see, and the cold, icy water came into the sledmobile and Uncle Lucky's little left, hind toe, the one with the rheumatism, you, know, got all wet.

"You Look pretty lonesome all by Yourself" Said Uncle Lucky.

"Oh dear, oh dear, what shall we do,
The treacherous ice has cracked in two,
The Sledmobile can't float, I know,
And soon we both will sink below."

"Don't worry, Uncle Lucky," said Little Jack Rabbit, as brave as a fireman, and then that cute little rabbit opened his knapsack and took out four little red balloons. He blew them up as big as he could and then fastened one on each corner of the Sledmobile, and after that it floated just like a ship.

"Ha, ha," said Uncle Lucky, "now we have Boatmobile."

Well, pretty soon they began to float down the river, for right in the middle it wasn't frozen over, you know, and by and by they saw a big white Polar Bear sitting on a cake of ice.

"I used to live at the cold north pole,
But when they doubled the price of coal
I said to my wife, I have to move,
For I can't sit still by a fireless stove,
So, I put on my hat and said adieu,
If I hadn't, I'd surely had the 'flu'."

"Yes, you look pretty lonesome all by yourself," said dear kind Uncle Lucky. "Get it with us and take a sail and perhaps we will meet with a kindly whale."

So, the Polar Bear jumped into the Sledmobile. I beg your pardon—the Boatmobile, I mean, and then away they went down the river till they came to the great roaring ocean.

"Have we enough provisions on board?" asked Uncle Lucky anxiously, as he looked out over the big wide sea, "it may be for years and it may be forever before we come back; it depends on the weather." and after the old gentleman rabbit had finished speaking in poetry, Little Jack Rabbit opened his knapsack.

"Here are three custard pies, a bag of peanuts, three lollypops and a bottle of ginger beer. That ought to last us for three weeks and two months.

"Of course it will." said Uncle Lucky, and in the next story you shall hear what the Polar Bear said.

It Pays To Advertise

Underwood & Underwood, N. Y.

That's what Louis Victor Eytinge discovered. He is out of prison only a few weeks and while behind the bars made a national reputation as an advertising expert. He is now in New York with his bride, the girl who waited for him for eight years, and he is holding down a $10,000 job with a large advertising company.

Eytinge served sixteen years for murder in the Arizona State Prison and during that time he had a chance to study the present day prison systems. He will make it his life work to help the mag be-

Chaney for the second time in succession.

More than 4,200 men participated in the 25 different kinds of athletics at the University of Wisconsin last year, according to Prof. T. E. Jones, chairman of the men's division of the department of physical education.

Georgetown base ball has been very regularly of a high order, and it looks as if the 1923 nine would be the least of the Hilltopper's worries in sport. Almost the entire 1922 unbeaten nine will start the season this spring.

Ski enthusiasts of Canton, S. D., are enthusiastic over the prospects of the national championships tournament in 1925. The 1924 classic will be held in Brattleboro, Vt. this year's event was held in Minneapolis.

Harry Hulen of the Minneapolis Western League club, on Aug. 1, 1895, scored six runs against Grand Rapids without being to bat once, every time he opposed the Michigan pitchers he walked. Hulen additionally stole five bases.

Garfield A. Wood, Detroit speed boat exponent, has entered Miami-Havana express cruiser race, it has been announced by C. F. Chapman, secretary of the American Power Boat association. Prizes totaling $10,000 have been offered by the commission Nacional Pura el Fomento del Tourismo, of Havana. The event is to be held on March 3.

The University of Kansas memorial stadium will furnish the working model for the new municipal stadium to be built at Terre Haute, Ind. It will be one of the largest strictly municipal stadiums in the world and will seat 20,000 and cost $400,000. It will be U-shaped.

Willie Kamm, highest priced minor leaguer, will make his major league debut in the spring with a set of infielding gloves costing $200. Kamm, for whom the White Sox paid the San Francisco club $100,00 had four gloves made to order. The work and material for each cost $50.

The annual report of the Pacific A. A. U. swimming committee just published shows that little Miss Hilda Curtis, 14-year-old star of the Neptune Club, Alameda, won 12 coast championships for women in 1922. The record is especially noteworthy in that she was a novice last spring. California critics expect her to figure in some of the national title tests this year.

THE THAMES RIVER CHANNEL.

If Norwich and surrounding towns haven't sent home the arguments made in favor of a deepening and widening of the channel of the Thames river from Allyn's Point to the city to a degree sufficient to put a report recommending this work, it should lose no time in bringing to the front the many important commercial aspects in New England. The approach to a large degree [illegible] for more favorable freight rates. The deepening and straightening of the channel by Willimantic river has made that one of the most important coal discharging points in New England. The removal of the same handicaps that exist in the lower half of the river would give opportunity to the handling of general freight from the city by water. [illegible] channel that is gradually filling and making it impossible for the present coastwise line to realize [illegible] would undoubtedly improved conditions or for others to obtain the water advantages that they have a right to expect from the river the benefit of the river is gradually being denied.

What need there is not only for a favorable report concerning this improvement but the commencement of work upon it as early as possible, is further disclosed by the experience of the coal boat which went aground and was frozen in the ice in the river ten days ago when endeavoring to get to this city.

A river that does not assure safe passage for the regular freight service must be regarded as worthy of attention. It serves to discourage river traffic when a channel of the width and depth sought would be certain to increase it.

Norwich isn't taking an unreasonable or selfish view of the situation. It is not trying to have a creek developed into a waterway for ocean liners. With restrictions placed upon vessels using the river the tonnage that is now handled there can not be recorded as an estimate of the demand for river service, any more than the business handled at Allyn's Point before the channel was improved could be rightly compared with that of today.

Norwich needs to be awakened to the importance of getting a report favoring the improvement. It is a vital preliminary.

PROVIDING FOR COAL COMMISSION.

It will be most unfortunate if there exists in congress a disposition to restrict the activities of the fact finding commission that is endeavoring to get to the bottom of the trouble in the coal industry. Perhaps it may seem like a threat when the commission gives notice that unless it is provided with the sum of $40,000 which it considers necessary to complete its investigations it will be obliged to quit work with the ending of congress.

It cannot be expected that a commission can go to the expense which is involved in such an extensive investigation without being provided with the means of meeting it. It has had one appropriation, and the addition may seem large, but it is certainly not the time to throw any handicaps in their way, or to let the expenditures which have already been made go for nothing.

There is confidence in the commission and good reason to believe that it is not squandering the funds which have been voted it to get at the facts which the country desires.

These demand, of course, to see it through. A preliminary report has been filed but there is much which needs to be learned before a final report with recommendations as to what should be done to put the industry on a proper basis. In view of the feeling of the people who have suffered through the inadequate coal supply none should be more anxious to see this investigation completed than the members of congress.

It is a problem that has long existed. Other efforts to end the [illegible] have failed to put the finger upon such trouble areas as have succeeded in changing the situation. The need of the appropriation to complete the work is so apparent that it is surprising that it has been necessary for the commission to remind congress that its work must end unless it provides for its continuance.

USING BITUMINOUS COAL.

The fact has just become public that Secretary Hughes has been burning soft coal in his home in Washington all winter. That isn't so much different than many others have been doing where the disposition has been to make the best of the coal shortage and utilize such substitutes as were available.

The impression is too often gained however that those in high places are not affected by such things as coal shortages. There are many who might be pointed to who have not been obliged to resort to the use of soft coal, or some of the other substitutes for the usual sizes of anthracite. Some have been extremely fortunate in this respect while there are many who can attribute it to the foresight displayed last spring which made it possible for them to get in such a supply that by the use of economy they have been able to get through the winter without discomfort and without resorting to bituminous coal.

But from those who have used soft coal for household heating there are many favorable reports. There is the general complaint of the dirt, but the price and heating results have appealed. Secretary Hughes might have set himself up as an example during the early weeks of winter had he so desired. Caught, apparently, like many others, he took his medicine like the good fellow that he is, without whining. He didn't plead for special privileges. He didn't fill his bins at the expense of the little consumer. He did make the best of the situation without howling, and even though the claims of a coal shortage have not been exaggerated there can be little question had others taken the bit in their teeth and used bituminous even as has Secretary Hughes much of the shortage might have been relieved. The secretary of state cannot be pointed to as one who had his cellar filled with anthracite while others were being overcharged and kept from getting fuel.

THE CABINET CHANGES.

The cabinet changes which have been made by President Harding, as the result of the resignation of Secretary Fall of the department of the interior, are as anticipated. They jibe completely with the intimations that have been given as to the probable adjustment of the situation.

Because of the fact that he has become familiar with the duties of the postmaster-generalship it is unfortunate that Dr. Work is to be moved from that post in which he has made a good impression to take up other duties, but with his ability returned in the cabinet and devoted to a department that is of much importance the benefit of his services is not to be lost. He will carry to the department of the interior views which will harmonize with the requirements more satisfactorily than did Secretary Fall, and the shift in his portfolio comes because a man west of the Mississippi had been promised for that position.

In the selection of Senator New as the new postmaster-general President Harding picks the man whom he desired as one of the original members of his cabinet, a man of unquestioned ability and thoroughly in sympathy with the administration's policies. Political differences in Indiana have been the means of setting up opposition to his selection but the president knowing the man he wanted has had the courage to name him, and there is every reason to believe that he will prove a most valuable addition to the president's official family. Secretary New will assume important duties but there is good reason to rely on the judgment displayed by the president in picking him.

THE INTERNATIONAL COURT.

The president made it known in his message that he would be pleased if the approval of the senate concerning the proposition to come into closer relationship with the international court of justice was given. Perhaps down in his heart he didn't believe that it would be obtained at this time knowing as he does what opposition there has been to getting into relationship with the league of nations.

The time was of course short, for taking up and acting upon such a matter, and yet the opposition that is being manifested is coming from the republican leaders.

Putting the matter off means that it will be left for the next congress to act upon, and in view of the increased democratic strength in that body it may not augur so badly for the ultimate approval of the plan since democratic support is indicated now and seems likely then.

In offering the bill at the late date in the session that he did the president has given this senate the chance to deal with it. Even though the time was short it was entirely reasonable through close attention to business for action to be taken. In the many hours that have been thrown away intentionally this and many other matters might have received action one way or another.

The administration has nevertheless indicated to the people of the country its policy. If it is blocked by the senate the responsibility must rest right there, and if it is the next senate that puts it through the credit must of course fall right where it belongs.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

After a cold and snowy winter, spring is bound to be all the more glorious, and warm, and welcome.

From the way in which the mark is recovering Germany ought to see some good in the invasion of the Ruhr.

The man on the corner says: There's joy in the realization that the coldless days are getting nearer and nearer.

Those who procrastinate have no inclination to get their income tax report in any earlier than it is absolutely necessary.

If you want to get nervous and excited to the nth degree delay making out your income tax xreturn until the day before it is necessary to file it.

Many of the members will complete their service in congress this week, but it will not be beause they are disgusted with the practices tolerated there.

Those who are buying large quantities of sugar because someone has been boosting the price are simply helping to lift it higher when a big surplus of the sweet stuff exists.

When the British see no change in the American policy as the result of the proposal by President Harding concerning the international court, it doesn't look as if it were a step toward the league of nations, into which they would warmly welcome us.

A New Yorker has sent $50,000 to Princeton for a building fund. Though not a graduate of that university he writes he has "caught the Princeton spirit" as thoroughly as if he were. What a fine thing it would be for someone or more to catch the Academy spirit about now.

ABANDONED CASES

"If," began the frolicsome bachelor, who liked to be informed on all topics, "if it is so dangerous and productive of pneumonia to expose the feminine lower limb from the ankle to the calf, why is it so perfectly safe to let the portion from the calf to the knee meet the chilly blast of winter sheltered only by a cobweb silk stocking? In other words, if one simply must wear thick, cumbersome galoshes over the first part in order to maintain health, what providential dispensation prevents the second without an extension of the galosh? It seems so odd!"

"There isn't anything 'about girls' behavior which isn't odd," growled the young man who had just suffered his first refusal and had been a confirmed pessimist ever since. "They'd be going barefoot through the snow if it happened to be the style and declaring that they felt perfectly comfortable—in fact, were a trifle too warm if anything, particularly in the feet. If you're looking for any reason about anything they do—"

"Why, Mr. Hartburne!" reproachfully cried the young woman who always took pains to sit with her back to the light and though that a girlish giggle helped to chloroform them. "Galoshes simply aren't made any different! And anyhow think how they'd look!"

"I don't see why," pursued the pessimistic young man fiercely, "you girls don't go crazy over a style which slashes six inches out of the middle of your coat sleeves with some of that thin stuff—chiffon—set in. It would be too cute!"

"Why, I think you have utterly grand ideas!" cried the young woman who was not so young. "I positively never heard of anything so interesting and I know my tailor will be crazy about it. He always likes to introduce styles—"

"Oh, Mr. Zizzle," the young woman who was not so young cried archly, "you can't expect us to have the clear, cold judgment you men have. It isn't our nature. I've always been told that if I weren't such an impulsive creature I should get along so much better in the world, but I just can't help it. Before I know it my heart runs away with my head. If a woman stops to consider every action from all standpoints it seems so utterly hard and—and unfeminine, don't you think?"

"They don't consider all standpoints, that's sure," agreed the pessimistic young man. "You'd think that any girl with sense would be glad to marry an upright young man who isn't so bad looking and earns plenty to take care of her and buy oriental rugs and a tin car, wouldn't you? Well, she isn't! It simply is beyond that girl to realize that each day she is getting a little older and prizes don't grow on every bush and true devotion isn't often met, and things like that. No! All she considers—"

"Well, but," gracefully interrupted the not-so-young woman, "don't you think, Mr. Hartburne, that it is a terrible mistake to judge all of us women by a single example? Just because one girl is foolish and selfish is no sign that the world is not full of lovely girls."

"But they haven't got any sense," pursued the frolicsome bachelor firmly. "I stick by the galosh premise. How foolish a man would be to tie up to a girl who didn't have any more brains than to act as though it was Alaska for ten inches upward from the earth, Palm Beach for ten more, and Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, the rest of the way to her marcel! I like a girl who knows where she is going and is on her way!"

"Just because you are so strong and sensible and able to think so clearly, Mr. Zizzle," pursued the not-so-young woman in a soft, appealing voice, "is exactly the reason you should be kinder and more sympathetic toward women! I often think that men like you who denounce us so fiercely really have the tenderest hearts and make the best husbands! A friend of mine married a confirmed bachelor last year and you never saw two happier people! He just adores Galicia and never goes to a club or anything and she makes the most wonderful home for him! It must be such fun to fix up a cozy living room with a blazing grate fire and—"

"Wouldn't you think so?" gloomily agreed the pessimistic young man. "That's precisely what I said to her and she—"

"And a white enameled kitchen," pursued the young woman, turning her batteries full upon the frolicsome bachelor and ignoring his friend as past hope. "I think on a cold morning that buckwheat cakes and little sausages and—"

"Well, they've gotta show more sense before I'm interested," insisted the frolicsome bachelor hastily and with great emphasis. "Nothing doing!"

"As though anybody would dream of marrying either one of you two absolutely impossible creatures!" sniffed the not-so-young woman indignantly. —Chicago News.

Wives of Famous Men

Margaret Montgomery, Wife of Boswell

Accurate though he was as the chronicler of the sayings and actions of the famous Dr. Samuel Johnson, James Boswell, almost as famous by virtue of his biography as its subject, was not so accurate in following his great master's matrimonial example. Johnson was a model husband. Boswell anything but that.

Constantly falling in love with beautiful but unresponsive young women, Boswell one day poured out his troubled heart to his cousin, Margaret Montgomery. She was as delightful in her sympathy that his capacious heart soon included her, and shortly after they were married. "It was an evil day for her," writes a biographer, "when she accepted him, for Boswell, whatever else he learned from Johnson, had not imbibed the first principles of martial conduct.

In spite of this, and the fact that Boswell never showed much consideration for Margaret he was, in his fashion, genuinely fond of her, and had great respect for her character and admiration for her cleverness. She was witty, shrewd and somewhat sarcastic. Boswell often quoted her proudly to his friends. This made them smile, for they knew of his fear of her sharp tongue.

He was wont to tell with great relish of the occasion when in commenting upon a horse, he referred to it as a horse of blood.

"I hope so," the tart Margaret is quoted as saying, "for I am sure he has no flesh."

Mrs. Boswell cherished an intense dislike for the eccentric and slovenly Dr. Johnson who, on the other hand, was very kindly disposed toward the lady, and did much to make her husband appreciate her sterling qualities. This must have had some effect ultimately, for when Boswell, after leaving his ill wife alone when he went to London, and returning to find that she had died, wrote contritely:

"I cried bitterly and upbraided myself for leaving her, for she would not have left me. This reflection will, I fear, pursue me to the grave. I could hardly bring myself to agree that the body should be removed; for it was still a consolation to kneel by it and talk to my dear, dear Peggy."

Revenue From Saloons

When it was proposed to close the saloons in St. Petersburg—several years before the national prohibition was instituted—there was much talk of the city's loss in revenue from saloon licenses. But the saloons went out of existence here without any election being held and without any legal action being taken. Lack of patronage was responsible for the saloons quitting business as they could not afford to pay the high license. And, by the way, there were bootleggers here in those days when there were saloons—the bootleggers selling in opposition to the saloons without paying a license. Since the saloons closed their doors the city has not missed the revenue which the people paid through the saloons. But the same old argument about loss of revenue is still being heard in the nation. W. Stayton, of the Association opposed to prohibition comes forward with a bulletin to show that the country is losing one billion dollars a year in taxes through prohibition.

Surely of all the silly arguments of the "wets" this is quite the silliest. "One billion dollars in taxes going to be paid to the federal and local governments in the United States during the calendar year of 1923 if the government would again legalize liquor traffic." But who would pay that one billion dollars? The people who live in this country. And they would pay a great deal more. They would pay the profits of the men engaged in the liquor traffic, and the wages of the men employed in distilleries and breweries, and also the bartenders in the saloons, and on top of that billions of dollars that would be spent by the liquor interests in politics. It would cost the people of the United States, in addition to what they are now paying a good five billion dollars to bring the liquor traffic back.

And yet the most important point remains to be stated. We are willing to pay one billion or five billion dollars a year for food for our people to build up their health and support them in labor. We are willing to spend many millions for amusement—amusement is almost as necessary as food. We are willing to spend money for new houses, for automobiles, for schools and universities and roads. All of these things contribute to the progress of the human race. But liquor does no one any good and makes countless millions mourn. We are not willing to spend one dollar to debauch the men and boys of our nation and bring shame and grief to mothers, wives and children.—St. Petersburg, Fla., Independent.

KIDNEYS MUST HAVE PLENTY OF WATER

Also Take Salts Occasionally If Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers

Kidney and bladder irritations often result from acidity, says a noted authority. The kidneys help filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it may remain to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread; the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is often one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Begin drinking lots of soft water, also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast. Continue this for two or three days. This will help neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer are a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs, which then act normal again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juices, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by acid irritation. Jad Salts causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink which may quickly relieve your bladder irritation. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

Daghestan.

"A land of mountains second only in magnitude to the Himalayas, of men and customs that are holdovers from the tenth century, and of cliff-side villages that resemble nothing so much as our own Indian pueblos of the southwest."

Such is Daghestan, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society in regard to "the Russian Switzerland," a tiny "republic" of the soviet federation, whose starving people, it has been announced are to be given American relief.

"Daghestan, it is safe to say, is one of the least known regions of Europe," continues the bulletin. "One reason for this is that it is on one of Europe's remote borderlands. Despite political borders of the past and muddled racial boundaries of the present, the Caspian Sea and the Caucasus Mountains are generally accepted as marking the southeastern lines where Europe ends and Asia begins. Daghestan is wedged in between the two.

"The rough rectangle of Daghestan, about 60 miles wide by 100 miles long consists almost entirely of practically treeless mountains that extend from the crest of the Caucasus to the sea, and deep valleys and gorges. In the more open valleys near the coast the inhabitants were influenced by the Russians and became relatively civilized and prosperous. But in the deep valleys and on the precipitous terraces of the higher mountains the primitive life and customs of the Middle Ages still exist.

"Daghestan has had waves of immigration since before Jason and his Argonauts went into this part of the world in search of the Golden Fleece. But it cannot be called a 'melting pot.' Instead it has been a sort of 'racial sample room' where the odds and ends of many peoples have been thrown together. Descendants of Aryans, who dropped out there as Aryan tribes moved westward, were joined by deserters from the Greek and Roman armies of Alexander and Pompey. The Celts who founded Galatia probably lost some stragglers there. Some of Tamerlane's Mongols were added. The Arabs who overran the country in the eighth century established in the mountains military colonies, whose members became another factor in the population and gave it the Mohammedan religion. Crusaders, wandering back from the Holy Land, stopped there to rest and never took up again their homeward journey. To these mountain fastnesses, too, have come the persecuted of all neighboring lands—Jews, Georgians, Persians, Armenians and Tartars.

"There has been a fusing of these diverse elements, of course, but in many of the isolated villages of aouls certain dominant strains are easily recognized. Dress some Daghestanian highlanders in kilts and bonnets, and you could hardly distinguish them from Scotsmen. Some fair-haired, blue-eyed villagers one might meet on a German highway. Others are obviously of Italian, Armenian, Jewish or Mongol origin. But though they keep the appearance of their remote ancestors and resemble their distant cousins of today, psychologically they have lost the kinship. Their mountain environment has molded them as mountain environments ever do. They have common traits: and the plainsman of the north does not differentiate. To him they are merely the gortse, or mountaineers.

"Like mountaineers throughout the world the people of Daghestan cherish their liberty. They were unconquered until the tremendous numbers and modern equipment of the Russians, pushing their empire southward, overwhelmed them about the middle of the nineteenth century. Even then, it had taken two generations to subdue them.

"They are a picturesque people, the Daghestanians. Like the Georgians on the south slope of the Caucasus, they wear long, tight-waisted outer garments, decorated across the chest with shining cartridge cases. On their heads are large woolly brimless hats.

"Just as the need of protection from enemies drove the Indians of southwestern United States to build dwellings on the cliff-sides, so a similar need developed such houses in Daghestan. Some of the villages or aouls are as much as 2000 feet above the valley floors, on almost perpendicular cliffs, and can be reached only by several hours of climbing along zigzag paths. The houses are built of rough stone stuck together with clay. The floors are of hard-beaten clay, but in many cases are covered with rugs. House rises above house in terraces, the roofs of the lower one serving as courts for those above. The comparison with pueblo villages does not depend on superficial appearances, but may extend even to the ladders and notched logs used to mount from level to level.

"Deep among the higher Daghestan mountains the traveler finds his calendar turned back almost a millennium. The port-hole windows of the houses have neither glass nor sash. Dried human hands, the trophies of battle, may now and then be found nailed to a door. Meals are eaten on the floor from a common dish with sharpened splinters of pine. There is trial by ordeal, and the blood feud still rages."

Stories That Recall Others

He Puts Them On His List

The lawyer was calling at a friend's last fall when he noticed a young couple on the porch next door, quarreling. He stayed on the porch an hour, and all the time he was there the couple quarreled. When he rose to leave he asked: "Why doesn't that couple get a divorce?"

"They aren't married-just engaged," the hostess explained. "They are to be married this winter, though."

New Clothes, Same Old Boy

The bride had baked a sponge cake. It was her first trial and the cake was tough indeed. So, of course, husband didn't eat it at lunch. When he went home for dinner that evening there was that same cake, elaborately iced with white icing. But still it wasn't eaten.

The next morning she called him over the phone. Her two small nephews were coming. She was going to put pink icing on the cake and adorn it with walnut meats.

The patient husband turned to his partner. "If those two little shavers don't eat it," he said, "I bet when I go home it will have a chocolate icing. And then I'll feel I have grounds for—"

But the shavers ate the cake.

Additional Time

Where additional time for filing an income-tax return is required because of illness, or absence of the taxpayer from home, the collector of internal revenue for the district in which the taxpayer lives, or has his principal place of business, may grant, upon application before the return is due—on or before March 15, 1923—an extension of time not to exceed 30 days. If before the end of 30 days' extension, an accurate return can not be made, an appeal for a further extension must be made to the commissioner of internal revenue, Washington, D. C., with a full recital of the causes for the delay. The commissioner, on presentation of a reasonable cause, may grant an extension not exceeding six months, except in the case of taxpayers who are abroad.

As a condition for granting an extension of time for filing a return, a collector of internal revenue may require the submission of a tentative return and the payment of one-fourth of the estimated amount of the tax. A tentative return form marked "tentative" and should contain a sworn statement of the estimated amount due. No other data need be given.

The commissioner of internal revenue will not grant an additional extension without a clear showing that complete return can not be made within the 30-day period. Failure to file a complete return within the period of the extension granted by the commissioner or collector subjects the taxpayer subjects the taxpayers to the penalties for delinquency.

C. F. NOYES CO. PUTS THROUGH ANOTHER BIG DEAL

August Heckscher, one of the largest holders of improved business properties in Manhattan, has purchased the twenty-five story Wall Street exchange building, at 43 to 49 Exchange Place, New York., covering a plot 100 x 100, and having an arcade through to Wall street. The deal was negotiated for the Wall Street exchange building association, Hubert E. Rogers, president, by the Charles F. Noyes company and Wm. A. White & Sons.

In part payment, Mr. Heckscher gave his country place known as "Wincoma" at Huntington, L. I., comprising 100 acres surrounded by water on three sides which Mr. Heckscher has owned for more than twenty-five years. The entire deal involves about $7,000,000. As part of the transaction the Noyes company arranged a loan of $2,500,000 with Otto M. Stanfield on the Exchange place building through Bonright & Co.

The Exchange place building is fully rented for about $560,000. It has a number of prominent tenants, including the Equitable Trust Company, which occupies the ground floor in connection with its building abutting on Wall street. It is on the same block with the buildings of J. P. Morgan & Co., the Mills building, the United States Trust and the Atlantic buildings.

PHYTHIANS' MYSTERY MEETING HAD INITIATORY WORK

The mystery of several months was solved Tuesday evening at the Buckingham Memorial when about 100 Knights of Pythias met there, coming from Willimantic, Jewet City, New London, Mystic and other towns in this part of the state to meet with Wauregan lodge, No. 6, of this city. Frank Peiper, who was in charge of the mystery show, brought on his acrobats, a group of candidates for the degrees of page and squire and the initiatory work was done by Trumbull lodge No. 48, of New London, and Undaunted lodge No. 34, of Jewett City. The work came as a surprise to the members and the affair proved to be one of the biggest drawing cards of the year.

The meeting began at 8 o'clock with Chancellor Comander Dr Kopeland R. Markoff in charge. Routine business was transacted, following which it was planned to hold a dance in Norwich in the near future, when representatives from many lodges of the state will be here. It was also decided to hold another Pythian Day and to make it bigger and better than the Pythian Day of last year. Chancellor Commander Markoff announced that within a few meeting a class of 20 candidates would be worked in three degrees by Undaunted lodge, No. 34, of Jewett City.

It was also voted that Harry Pecan, Josiah Greenstein, Dr. Paul Schwartz, Frank Peiper and A. J. Noran go to Jewett City on Wednesday evening and give Undaunted lodge bowlers the beating of their lives. The Jewett City brothers promised something to eat for the Norwich men attending and plenty of action.

At the close of the meeting the Knights were invited to the banquet hall where members of Clover Temple, No. 9, Pythian sisters, had prepared a most appetising banquet, consisting of

Roast Beef
Brown Gravy
Mashed Potatoes Mashed Turnips
Celery Cranberry Sauce
Rolls
Apple Pie Ice Cream
Coffee Cigars

After the banquet had been enjoyed Chancellor Commander Markoff spoke briefly and introduced Grand Chancellor Thomas Troland of Trumbull lodge, No 48, of New London, who had honored Wauregan lodge by his presence at the mystery meeting. Grand Chancellor Troland spoke briefly and was followed by the following speakers: Past Chancellor Commander William J. Donahoe of Wauregan lodge, District Deputy Jacob Weschler of Undaunted lodge, Jewett City, Kinant Josiah Greenstein of Wauregan lodge, Chancellor Commander Ernest Ericson of Mistuckt lodge, No. 42, of Mystic, Chancellor Commander H. A. Davis of Undaunted lodge, of Jewett City, and speakers from Natchaug lodge, No. 22, of Willimantic.

Another feature on the programme came when Arthur Archangel, William H. Noyes, and Edward Schoonmaker of Westerly, rendered several vocal and instrumental selections. Group singing and a social hour followed. During the meeting three hearty cheers were given Frank Peiper, who had charge of the mystery meeting and arrangements for the big time.

Three cheers were also given for the following members of Clover Temple, Pythian Sisters, who served the fine banquet: Mrs. Grace Fowler, Mrs. Lillian J. Johnson, Mrs. Lillian Rogers, Mrs. Elizabeth Mackay, Mrs. Alice Latimer, Mrs. Bessie Salomon, Mrs. Annie Ableman, Mrs. Jennie Pieper and the Misses Marion Fowler, Charlotte Fowler, Hattie Fowler, Doris Sternlieb and Beatrice Ableman.

Trial of the suit of Charles L. Stewart, administrator of the estate of John C. Morgan, against the Edward Chappell Co., Willis Austin and Lucius Briggs, which would prevent the Central Wharf Co. from placing gates across the northerly end of Center street on Central wharf, was begun before Judge Allyn L. Brown in the superior court here Tuesday morning. It is expected the case can probably be concluded by the noon recess today (Wednesday).

The plaintiffs secured a temporary injunction last May when posts were erected for the gates which were to close Center street at night.

Before the trial opened Tuesday morning the attorneys in the case, Judge Gardiner Greene and Judge H. H. Pettis for the administrator, and Arthur M. Brown for the Chappell Co., spent considerable time in conference, during which they agreed upon certain stipulations.

As first witness for the plaintiff, Civil Engineer George E. Pitcher explained a plan of the property where the Morgan estate owned a coal and lumber yard just south of the Chappell property on the westerly side of Central wharf.

Testimony by Reuben S. Barthett, one of the appraisers on the Morgan estate, was followed by testimony by Administrator Stewart, who said that he had conducted the Morgan coal business from March to July, 1922, Mr. Morgan having died Feb. 19, 1922. He told of a talk with the Chappell interests regarding selling the Morgan property to them, in which he put a price of $50,000 on the property. They made an offer of from $12,000 to $13,500. The Morgan property was subsequently sold to another purchaser for $30,000. Mr. Stewart testified that the Wilson line of steamboats was doing business from the Morgan dock and that the manager complained that the erection of the fence and gates would increase his insurance rates.

On cross examination Mr. Stewart said that it seemed evident to him that the erection of the fence and gates was to be carried out because the Chappell interests could not buy at their own price and wanted to discourage other purchasers.

Chief Howard L. Stanton of the Norwich fire department for the past 22 years, testified that he was familiar with the location in dispute, and if a gate were locked there at night and outside of ordinary business hours, it would have to be knocked down to drive in for a fire at night and would make some delay. This is considered a hazardous district and a gate or any obstruction would increase the hazard. He had never known of any gate or obstruction there. The majority of serious fires occur about 2 o'clock in the morning, the chief said. In one fire on Central Wharf, the bodies of two tramps were found.

On cross examination the chief said this place made a good hiding place for loafers. One fire in 1913 was supposed to have been caused by tramps. One of the reasons for the hazardous rating was because of the tramp hazard. If gates were erected there, he thought there might be no fires there from this cause.

Attorney Brown asked if the fire and police officials were furnished with keys whether there would be much delay. The chief answered that they would get in quicker with an axe and that's what they would use. They would have to come to a full stop to do it.

Asked whether it wouldn't be better to have that little delay and have the tramps shut out than not have the delay, the chief answered that he would rather have the delay and see the tramps shut off. The delay might be 15 seconds.

On redirect examination Chief Stanton said he was called in by Mr. Briggs and consulted about the character of fence to be erected and Mr. Briggs offered to furnish such keys as the chief desired. The chief told him he didn't think this was necessary.

Assuming that a warehouse for cotton waste storage were erected on this Morgan property, Attorney Pettis asked if this would increase the fire hazard from spontaneous combustion. The chief said he thought it would.

Frank R. Denison, connected since 1891 with the Morgan coal and lumber firm, testified there had never been any obstruction at this point. He testified to the amount of teaming by the company wagons and by transient customers. Mr. Denison is connected with the present coal business there and said they are doing more teaming than formerly now putting out 50 tons of coal per day.

The auto trucks and horse teams make a total of about 100 trips in and out each day. The witness also testified as to the cartage of freight for the Wilson Line at the Morgan dock. He said that he knew the present owner, Mr. Goldberg, intended to build a storehouse on the property for cotton waste.

Frank L. Tuttle, employed as a watchman by the Max Gordon Corporation on several pieces of property, including the Morgan coal yard, testified that trespassers on the Central Wharf property come from the water side and not from the landside. He had not had any trouble with the trespassers on the Morgan property.

Samuel Goldberg, vice president and general manager of the Max Gordon Corporation, which now owns the Morgan property, testified that the company owns eleven automobile trucks of which the widest is 8 feet wide and when loaded with cotton waste it would be 10 to 11 feet wide. Such loaded trucks, he said, could not go through the proposed gateway. The posts even now, he said, make an obstruction for the trucks when there is anything on the Chappell Co. scales. He said the trucks of his company arrive or leave at any time of the day or night. The company expects to build a cotton waste warehouse off the Morgan property from which all the cotton waste business of the property will be handled. There had been no trouble from theft or from loafers or tramps at the property.

On cross-examination Mr. Goldberg said they also expected to rent docking privileges to some steamboat company if they erected the warehouse. Mr. Goldberg told of the use of trucks in the cotton waste business and said he didn't believe it would work to have all of them supplied with keys if there were a fence and gates.

Chief of Police George Linton of the Norwich police department, testified that he had received complaints from Willis Austin of tampering with the Chappell Co. trucks, but no complaints of thefts from the Chappell Co. or the Morgan Co.

R. B. S. Washburn, a former member of the Chappell Co., testified briefly, saying there had never been any obstruction at the point in question, while he was with the company and Deputy Sheriff George H. Stanton, who had known the location for many years, also said he had known of no obstruction.

Court adjourned at 5 o'clock to continue trial of the case at 10 o'clock this (Wednesday) morning. It is believed the case will probably be finished during the morning.

SACHEM CHAPTER HOLDS SOCIAL AND ENTERTAINMENT

Sachem Chapter, No. 57, O. E. S., met in regular session Tuesday evening at Odd Fellows hall, Main street, with Worthy Matron Mrs. Frances A. Geer in the chair. Routine business was transacted, following which an entertainment was held and refreshments were served.

The entertainment which was in charge of Mrs. William Crowe, Jr., consisted of several mandolin duets by Eloise and Charles Davey, accompanied by Miss Mary A. Gray, vocal duets by Mrs. Leonard Prentice and Mrs. William Crowe, Jr., and a group of humorous readings by Mrs. Avery Park. Following the entertainment a social hour was spent during which sandwiches cake and coffee were served by the refreshment committee, Mrs. Fitch Dolbeare, chairman.

It was announced during the meeting that a matter of much importance to the chapter would come up in the near future, announcement of which announcement will be made later.

THOUGHT FORD STOLEN, WAS SIMPLY MISLAID

A Norwich professional man who had a Ford coupe stolen several months ago could hardly believe his eyes Tuesday night when he found that the new coupe which had replaced the other was gone from the place where he had left it at the court house in the afternoon.

He hustled into police headquarters where his report of his second case of bad luck set the wires working energetically to head off the escape of the car over the Groton or the Saybrook bridge or the Middletown bridge or through points to the north and east.

After a while the missing car was located on Franklin street by Officer Michael Carroll and when this was reported to the owner, with the place where it was found, it flashed across his mind that that was exactly where he had left it.

READINGS AND MUSIC GIVEN AT PRESTON CHAPEL

An excellent program was given on Tuesday evening at Preston chapel on the East Side by a group of entertainers from New London and Norwich. The audience continually called for encores to vocal and instrumental numbers, and the stories of John D. Libby of New London, reader, provoked considerable laughter.

The program follows: Selection by Swahn's orchestra; John Swahn, cornet, Mr. Heap, flute, Theodore Sterry, violin, and Mrs. Faith Ryan, pianist; reading, John D. Libby; cornet solo, Mr. Swahn; vocal solo, Miss Hazel Church of New London; flute solo, Mr. Heap; reading, Mr. Libby; selection, Swahn's orchestra; vocal solo, Miss Church; violin solo, Mr. Sterry; reading, Mr. Libby, selection by Swahn's orchestra.

For U. S. District Court

Donato Depolito was presented before U. S. commissioner Earl Mathewson on Saturday, on the charges of violation of the Volstead law, at 157 Franklin street. Probable cause was found and Depolito was bound over to the U. S. district court under bonds of $500. The arrest of Depolito was made by federal officers Robert Church and Joseph Fitzpatrick.

HOUSE GIVES APPROVAL TO CHIROPRACTIC BILL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Hartford, Feb. 27.—A substitute bill for the several bills concerning chiropractic was presented in the house this morning and passed. It provides for the appointment of the governor of an examining board to be known as the state board of chiropractic, to consist of three members ,who shall be practicing chiropractors, and shall have practiced in this state for at least three years. Any person desiring to practice chiropractic shall make application for a license to said board. He shall have had a high school education or its equivalent and shall be a graduate of a chartered chiropractic schoolo or college which requires of such applicant a course of instruction of three years of six months each, each of which years shall include nine hundred hours or more of actual attendance. Applications for examinations must be made in writing and sworn to and contain a statement of the applicants' educational advantages, his experience pertaining to a knowledge of the care of the sick, the length of time and the school in which he studied, the length of time engaged in clerical practice with evidence of good character and reputation. It provides penalties for violation of the statute or the use of bogus diplomas. No licensee shall use the title of "Doctor" or any abbreviation thereof unless he holds the degree of doctor of chiropractic from a chartered chiropractic school or college, in which event the title shall be such as will designate the licensee as a practitioner of chiropractic.

STOLEN IN PROVIDENCE, LEFT IN NORTH STONINGTON

A new 1923 Hudson coach that had been abandoned on the North Stonington to Westerly road after it had crashed into a fence and turned around about 2 o'clock Tuesday morning was stolen in Providence on Monday from Benjamin Brier of Peach street, according to information gained Tuesday by State Policeman M. R. Sterling.

The abandoned car was reported by Lafayette Main of North Stonington. Officer Sterling was able to identify the car by the motor number and by the owner's registration which he found under the carpet of the car.

Rehearsals For "The GloriousGirl"

Rehearsals have been begun for "The Glorious Girl," which is to be presented by Nemrod Grotto with a Norwich cast of 125 people, whose training has been begun under Clark Munson, who has come here from Ohio, which is the headquarters of the Harrison-Adams productions. Principals and the various groups and chorusses will be busy with rehearsals every afternoon and evening from now until the date of the production.

Sub Base Sailor for Forgery.

New Haven, Feb. 27—George H. Durant, a sailor in the U. S. navy, stationed at the submarine base at New London, was sentenced to six months in jail on a charge of forgery by Judge Goddard in the federal court today. Durant pleaded guilty to forging the name of another sailor to a money order for $40.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Harry Lipman

The many friends of Bessie Bruckner beloved wife of Harry Lipman, will be grieved to learn of her death Monday, in Newbern, N. C. where she made her home. Mrs. Lipman was taken ill about two months ago with typhoid fever and her condition became dangerous, and her parents Mr. and Mrs. Myer Bruckner, of 76 Washington street left for Newbern. Later she began to improve in health but later sustained a hemorrhage and death came on Monday.

She was born in Norwich, December 17, 1902, and received her education in the Greeneville and Broadway grammar schools. On June 26, 1921, she was united in marriage to Harry Lipman of Newbern, N. C., and left for that city where she made her home.

Besides her parents she is survived by six brothers and four sisters, Herman of Norwich, Louis of New York city, A. B. Bruckner, Leon, Irving and Morris Bruckner of Norwich, Mrs. Sarah Halpern of Pittsburg, Pa., Mrs. Ida Dworsky of Raleigh, N. C., Mrs. Etta Brenner of New London and Miss Goldie Bruckner of this city.

The body is to be brought to Norwich for burial.

Joel J. Crouch

One of Whistletown's well known residents, Joel J. Crouch, died Tuesday morning at his late home, 85 years of age. Mr. Crouch had for many years made his home in the Whistletown section of the town of Lyme, and was a highly respected citizen. He is survived by two brothers, one of whom is John Crouch of the same village.

Charles Burdick.

After an illness of about five days the death of Charles Burdick occurred Tuesday morning in this city. Mr. Burdick was born in Voluntown, June 21, 1849 the son of James and Betsy Beckwith Burdick. He received his early education in that town and later came to Norwich to reside with his parents.

When a young man he learned the carpenter's trade and after serving his time entered the contracting business, and was successful in that business in Norwich and in Athol, Mass., until his health failed him in 1904 and he had to leave for Chico, Calif., where he continued in the contracting business until about 1917, when he returned to Norwich and made his home with his son, Herbert F. Burdick, at 44 River avenue, remaining there until his death.

About 50 years ago he was united in marriage to Miss Emily Sheldon of Oneco, Conn., and of this union two children survive, Mrs. Judson Chapman of Holyoke, Mass., and Capt. Herbert F. Burdick of Norwich. His first wife died about 40 years ago and several years later he was united in marriage to Lucy Williams of Fitchburg, Mass., who survives him with a daughter, Mrs. Charles Rice of Oakland, California. There are also four grandchildren, Irwin E. Burdick of this city, Virginia and Sheldon Chapman of Holyoke, Mass., and Nadine Rice of Oakland, Calif., and two brothers, James S. Burdick and Stephen T. Burdick of Seakonk, Mass., and one sister, Mrs. Lafayette Albro of Voluntown.

Mr. Burdick was well known to many residents of Norwich and was a man who loved his home, his chief interest being in his children. He did not belong to any organiations. His family has the sympathy of a wide circle of friends in their time of sorrow.

DISTRICT GOVERNOR VISITS WILLIMANTIC ROTARIANS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, Feb. 27.—The Willimantic Rotary club tendered a warm reception to District Governor Donald A. Adams, who visited the local club at the regular meeting Tuesday evening. The meeting was in charge of a committee of which John Ahearn was chairman and was held in the spacious dining hall of the Hooker house. The room was tastefully decorated for the occasion. Other guests at the meeting included 17 Rotarians from Norwich, four from New London and 15 business men from Putnam who are interested in organizing a club in that city. President Valentine L. Murphy was in charge of the meeting.

At 8 o'clock District Governor Adams was escorted into the room and upon his entrance was given a rousing cheer. The meeting opened with the singing of America. A delightful native roast turkey dinner was then served and small favors with humorous readings were at each plate. President "Val" read a "phony" message from Tex Rickard which implicated Jim Bath and Jim Mustard in a boxing bout. Harry W. Standish moved that a committee of ten be appointed to look into the matter and that it be known as "The Mustard-Bath committee." The club united in singing a selection led by the club quartet entitled "Don is a Pal." The song was written by President Murphy in honor of Don Adams.

Secretary Charles W. Hill read a humorous letter from Raymond A. Parker, who represents the coal and wood business, and the reading was followed by fitting remarks by George W. Hickey. Senator William G. Park, president of the Norwich Rotary club, was called upon to lead the meeting in singing "Old MacDonald Had a Farm," which he did in a realistic manner. James Hammond of the New London club led in a real Rotary song. Jim's efforts as a song leader received hearty applause. The old favorite, Sweet Adeline, and Hortense, which was led by that dignified gentleman, C. A. Gager, from the Norwich club, brought much applause. Two more letters bordering on the humorous were read for the edification and benefit of Henry Congdon, the wet wash man, and Representative T. J. Laramee, th club butcher. Jim Hammond was called upon for a few timely remarks and stated that the New London club was glad to have the opportunity to break bread with its grandchild, the Willimantic club. He then explained for the benefit of the men from Putnam that the Chamber of Commerce and the Rotary club do not conflict but rather that they are in need of each other in that the latter is the right hand of the former.

Bill Park of Norwich spoke on the good fellowship of Rotary and of the splendid work this organization was doing among boys. He concluded his remarks by saying that he hoped the Putnam club would soon organize and that Norwich would lend a helping hand at all times.

President Murphy said that this was the local club's first opportunity to entertain a district governor since its organization two years ago and he then presented District Governor Adams, who was greeted with applause and a song.

District Governor Adams reviewed the origin of Rotary by Paul Harris in Chicago with a club of four men which expanded to its present dimensions. It was called Rotary because each week the club meetings were held at the offices of the various members. Within 18 years it has of its own free spirit spread over the world. The speaker said that th messages on "Citizenship" sent out during the recent anniversary week of Rotary embodied the ideas of Rotary, which develops the individual to do his part and therefore beome a better citizen. "Rotary is not objective but subjective," said Mr. Adams. "What is a city?" he asked. It is a living, pulsing thing and its worth depends upon the character of the individual. Rotary establishes these individual characters to be better citizens and have for a motto "Servi Above Self."

Ex-Mayor [illegible] M. Lucas of Norwich and president of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce told of the team work of the C. of C. and the Rotary club in that city. A number of questions regarding the formation of a Rotary club were asked Mr. Adams by some of the Putnamites. In behalf of the local club President Murphy said that Don Adams [illegible] the benefits of good fellowship and [illegible] liness of the various clubs of the [illegible] of his district but that Mr. Adams failed to enjoy these [illegible] for th long days which he [illegible] spent away from his home in New Haven, and then he presented a quantity of silk cloth to Mr. Adams' manufactured by the Holland Silk mills and a box of thread from the American Thread Co. as a gift to Mrs Adams. The meeting was closed at 11:30 by the singing of The Star Spangled Banner.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Tonight's the night—the big night. If you doubt it, ask any basketball fan within a radius of twenty miles. They'll be pouring through the doors of the town hall this evening like a spring freshet over a dam a few weeks hence. Getting the Whirlwinds of Boston, champions of New England to come here has aroused all the enthusiasm there appears to be in stock among the basketball followers and they are delighted over a chance to see the contest that is to be staged for them. Manager Earl Wood of the Danielson team said Tuesday afternoon that he will have a great lineup of players to represent the town, so that means a fast and furious game from whistle to whistle.

The month that ends today has been one of peace and quiet in the town court. During the period there was been only one arrest—that of a man charged with having been intoxicated. If there have been law violations they have not been accompanied by any disturbance or other features that attracted the attention of or were reported to the police. Many restrictions that the extreme cold weather and bad conditions for getting about placed on the public during the tough four weeks now ending are regarded as being responsible in large degree for the ultra fine court record. All of which most naturally points toward the fact that what the public needs is more restriction. So why not advance the price of gas four more cents?

About tomorrow morning—which will be March 1—automobile drivers who have not taken out their operators' licenses for the next twelve months may be surprised—or pretend to be—if an officer stops them and asks them to see whether the little slip they are carrying about is of the proper shade and bears the magic figure 1923.

Operators who drive without having the proper authority will, under certain conditions, be liable to arrest for being out on the highways of the state without a new license. Figures given out at Hartford indicate that this section has its share of the heavy proportion of drivers who have not taken out new operators' licenses, which cost $3 each, a much lower rate than the judge will be able to quote anyone who comes before him for the sort of law violation herein discussed.

Announcement was made Tuesday of an important real estate transfer in which Moses H. Berthiaume, Jr., comes into possession of what is known as the Charles H. Keach property, on Cottage street, near Killingly High school, in exchange for his Mr. Berthiaume's property on School street and payment of a money consideration. Mr. Berthiaume's exchange was with F. X. Dubrieul and Julia Dubrieul, who purchased the Cottage street property from the Keach estate last year. Mr. Berthiaume will occupy his new home about April 1. It is one of the best situated and among the most attractive properties in the borough.

This week marks the inauguration of a campaign in which the entire student body of Killingly High school will actively compete in an effort to swell the school's gymnasium fund, now amounting to $800, at which figure it has remained dormant for a long time. In this campaign the students, divided into two "field armies" will solicit subscriptions for one of the best known magazines in the country. Their activities will cover all of the communities represented by students in the school.

So happens that the publishing company that has given them their opportunity is to allow them to take subscriptions at the regular rate and given them a commission of 50 cents on every subscription obtained.

Enthusiastic interest marks the inauguration of the campaign. The "Mott" army is headed by Miss Dwight, as commanding officer with Paul Gagnon as first assistant. Norman Brierley is commanding the left army with Miss Pauline Boulaine as his chief of staff. Of course there will be certain honors attached to being a member of the particular army that turns in the greatest number of subscriptions.

In this campaign, the good will and generous consideration of the public is solicited for them. In exchange for what they seek they are offering something of real value and at its regularly fixed price. This campaign is but one of a series of efforts now under consideration to materially increase the gymnasium fund within the next few weeks.

Killingly High school is sadly in need of a gymnasium. It would be very nice if the town would build it, but as there has been no move in that direction the pupils are showing their earnestness by getting behind the move to make the gym fund grow. The public, proud of its high school, likely will respond to their appeal.

A pick and shovel brigade attacked the heavy accumulation of ice under which the business section paving and parts of the bordering sidewalks have been buried for weeks when a thaw set in Tuesday morning. All this effort, considerately classed as more or less compulsory physical culture, was induced to save stores and cellars from being flooded if a real flow of frozen stuff comes on quickly. There was from a foot to eighteen inches of ice along the sides of the Main street when this clearance work started Tuesday. Most of it is still there. But it has been manipulated and operated upon in such a way as to open various channels through which the water may run off to seek its level rather than running into stores.

Killingly High school's basketball team will get away this afternoon for New Haven, where it is to compete in the conference games between leading high school teams of the state. This is the second consecutive year that Killingly has been considered good enough to get into the big shoes—and this entirely on merit. Killingly will play Torrington High school Thursday at 9.55. If the team wins this contest it will on Friday meet the winner of the Bristol-Naugatuck game. Nine players, the manager and coach will make the trip—and all Killingly wishes the team success.

Sharp advances in quotations on the common stock of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company since the recent statement showing the tremendous success and amazing recovery of the corporation has been of interest the past two days to those who follow the market. This common stock, selling about 8 for more than a year, but on the recent statement of earnings ran up to a high more than double that figure and then receded somewhat. Its movement is now being watched with interest here where there are a number of small lots to dispose of among those who see the full recovery of the company and as of course a profit up again.

There will be no performance at the Orpheum theatre Tuesday evening, and owners to attend the presentations of The Eternal Light, a photoplay presented under the auspices of St. James' parish.

Owing to an insufficient number of [illegible] the weekly meeting of the Treble Clef club has been held with Miss Margaret [illegible] of Academy street this evening was postponed.

Announcement here of the death in Florida of John G. Johnson of Putnam was received with regret by a host of manufacturing and other friends who had come to know him and appreciate his sterling worth.

THE BOY THAT FAILED

FATHER had planned a brilliant future for him. Mother's high hopes for his success were supported ably by her everlasting faith in him.

But the boy was a bitter disappointment. He was being outdistanced steadily by his schoolmates, was dull, listless all the time, "felt sick" most of the time, never had "nep" for play nor ambition for his future.

Father had about given him up. Poor mother's heartstrings were nearing the breaking point. Evidently, it was not to be.

Then an old friend of the family—a man successful in every sense—came to the boy's rescue. Today, the father is proud of the boy who is indeed a joy to his mother.

It was simply a case of poor digestion, sluggish liver and constipation gradually dulling the senses and poisoning the system.

Knowing from experience that Beecham's Pills were harmless as well as efficient, the old friend suggested them. They made the boy well—as they have boons of other children, and grown-ups, too, who suffered from like disorders.

PUTNAM

John G. Johnson, manufacturer's agent of the H. K. H. Silk Company, whose home was on Grove street in this city, died at 7.10 o'clock Tuesday morning in Newport Richey, Florida, where he went just five weeks ago Tuesday to attempt to regain his health which had become impaired through overwork. The news of Mr. Johnson's death quickly passed through the city and cast a gloom upon the community where he had lived for the past 19 years. The death of Mr. Johnson came as a greater shock because a week ago word was received that he was improving and was enjoying fishing and bathing in the Gulf of Mexico. The first news that he had suffered a hemorrhage of the brain was received in Putnam Monday and was printed in this column Tuesday morning.

Mr. Johnson was born in Nova Scotia, May 18, 1865, and would therefore have been 58 years old next May. When he was but a lad the family removed to Canton, Mass., where he obtained his education in the public and high schools. After he finished his education he entered the mill of the Eureka Silk Company. His close application to his duties was rewarded in promotion and he became overseer of the finishing department. As a young man he joined the Congregational church and became active in church affairs and was superintendent of the Sunday school in Canton.

It was about 18 years ago that the Eureka silk mill was removed to Putnam and became a branch of the Hammond-Knowlton Silk Corp. Mr. Johnson came here and continued in his line of employment. His sterling character and worth was recognized and when a vacancy occurred in the superintendency of the Hammond-Knowlton mill he was made superintendent and under him the mill developed and expanded.

Some years ago the Hammond-Knowlton Company was consolidated with the Hemminway & Sons Silk Company. Mr. Johnson became manufacturers' agent of the consolidated company, his duties taking him to the several mills in several towns in New England and New York state. Mr. Johnson traveled much of the time by automobile and was on the road early in the morning and late at night covering his wide field of endeavor.

With the great responsibility of his important position upon him Mr. Johnson assumed many public duties and gave unsparingly of his time and energy in the behalf of others and of the public good. For a number of years he had been a member of the common council and seldom missed a meeting. He was chairman of the highway committee, the most important committee of the council and the most arduous one on which to serve for several terms. He was a power in the executive body of the city and his counsel and advice was eagerly listened to by his brother members.

Mr. Johnson was also an active member of the Congregational church and was a deacon of the church and was assistant superintendent of the Sunday schole. He was a member of the music committee and of the committee that recently acquired the services of Rev. Simeon Cozad as minister. He was liberal in his donations to church work and to all public movements and during the war did much in all of the drives.

Mr. Johnson was a prominent figure in the religious, social and political affairs of his adopted city. He was much sought after to serve on various committees and boards where service was for the betterment of the city. He could never refuse such appeals and it was in some measure due to this generosity in assuming additional burdens that he suffered a mental breakdown. He was of a kindly disposition, had a cheery word for all, but always remained the dignified man and genial gentleman. His passing on will be felt in this city in all walks of life. He was known to a broad acquaintance who are today mourning his loss.

Mr. Johnson was a Knight Templar, a Shriner, an Odd Fellow, and a member of the Elks. He was also a member of the Arcanum Club and the Putnam Country Club.

Mr. Johnson's parents died some years ago as did two younger sisters. He is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Douglas Fenwick, of New York, and Mrs. Jeanette Freeman of Roxbury, and two brothers, Austin of Norwood, Mass., and Merton of Putnam. Merton accompanied him on his trip to Florida and his two sisters hurried south upon learning that he was not making the recovery that was expected.

The body will be brought to Putnam where a funeral service will be held but at this early hour final arrangements for the service have not been completed.

The insurance adjusters were in Putnam Tuesday settling claims caused by the Donahue block fire. As the building and contents were a total loss there was no difficulty in agreements being reached by the adjusters and insured.

The work train on the N. Y., N. H. & H. railroad left Putnam south bound on the Worcester to New London branch at an early hour Tuesday morning. The engine broke down and the train became stalled between Putnam and Dayville. When the north bound boat train came along it was flagged and pushed the crippled engine and car to this city.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

Day's total sales, 956,000 shares.

MARKET WAS FIRM.

New York, Feb. 27.—Prices turned upward during the latter part of today's stock market after three days of reaction which had been attributed in many quarters to the higher money and local federal reserve rediscount rates. A bullish demonstration in American Can, which established a new high record at 101 3-4, and heavy accumulation of the copper shares, signaled the turn of the market but it came so late in the session that not all shares which had been heavy earlier praticipated, making the close irregular.

Several factors contributed to the more optimistic sentiment, including slightly lower call money rates, higher prices for cotton, copper, zinc and steel products, the resumption of dividends by the Anaconda Copper Mining Company and more favorable January railroad earnings statements.

Virtually all the copper stocks sold at new high levels for the year, Anaconda at 51 7-8, Utah at 72 1-4, Butte & Superior at 35 5-8 and Cerro De Pasco at 48 1-2. Kennecott duplicated its previous high of 42 1-4.

There were a few conspicuous strong spots in the railroad group, notably Atlantic Coast Line, Great Northern Preferred, Louisville & Nashville, Western Pacific and Lackawanna, all of which gained a point or more, but several others closed at net losses, Chesapeake & Ohio dropping more than a point. The first 13 railroad statements to be made public show combined net income of slightly more than $13,000,000 for January as compared with $24,800,000 in December and slightly less than $10,000,000 in January of last year.

Some of the motor accessory stocks developed marked strength, Stewart Warner creating a new peak price at 100 and closing 3 3-4 higher at 98 1-2. Bosch Magneto closed 2 5-8 points higher at 47 3-4, buying being influenced by reports that January shipments, totalling over $860,000, were 60 per cent greater than those of the same months last year. Coca Cola jumped 2 1-2 points on overnight announcement of an extra dividend of 50 cents a share.

Baldwin was again reactionary, closing nearly a point lower at 130 after having touched 137 5-8. United States Steel Common, selling exdividend, closed at 106 1-2. Studebaker crossed 120 but fell back later to 119 3-4, up 5-8. Burns Brothers A and B, Kelsey Wheel, Iron Products, United Railways Investment Preferred, United Retail Stores and Woolworth, all up 3 to 4 points, were other individual strong spots.

Kresge and Liggett and Myers, each of which dropped 5 points, were the outstanding weak spots.

Call money opened at 5 per cent but dropped to 4 1-2 during the fourth hour, closing at that figure. The time money and commercial paper markets were quiet with no change in rates.

Foreign exchanges were firm, demand sterling selling around $4.71 1-4, an overnight gain of more than a cent. French francs sold as high as 6.17 cents but dropped back to 6.13 in the late afternoon. Other European rates also eased after an early display of strength.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Feb. 27.—Today's bond market was dull and reactionary throughout the greater part of the session, but prices stiffened somewhat in the late dealings in sympathy with the rally in stock prices. Copper Company liens took a prominent part in the late advance. Chile Copper 6s establishing a new peak price, and Cerro De Pasco 8s closing 1 1-2 points above yesterday's final quotation.

Foreign bonds fluctuated within a narrow radius, Netherland 6s gaining a point, Mexican 5s losing a point, and the others showing only fractional changes. Victory 4 3-4s gained two cents on $100 but the other active United States government issues were reactionary, the new 4 1-4s dropping 24 cents and the others two to four cents.

Railroad mortgages were mixed, a number of the speculative bonds moving to higher ground while liens of some of the dividend paying roads were relatively backward. Losses of approximately a point in Missouri Pacific Consolidated 6s and Chicago & Alton 3 1-2 were the only important changes among the popular issues.

Otis Steel 7 1-2s, Donnar Steel refunding 7s, and Goodyear 8s of 1941, closed one to two points higher, but United Drug 8s broke three points and Armour & Company 4 1-2s one.

Total sales (par value) were $11,874,000.

Public offering will be made tomorrow of a new issue of $6,000,000 Lockwood, Green & Company, Inc., 7 per cent ten-year collateral trust sinking fund gold notes, dated March 1, 1923 and due March 1, 1933, to be offered at par and accrued interest.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Feb. 27.—Uneasiness regarding the crop outlook in Western Kansas and in Nebraska, together with some signs of improvement in export business, did a good deal today to bring about higher prices for wheat. The market closed firm at 1 1-4 to 2c net gain, with May 1.18 6-8 to 1.19 3-4 and July 1.15 3-8 to 1.15 1-2. Corn finished 1-2c to 7-8c @1c up. Oats advanced 1-4c to 1-2c and provisions 2 to 12c@15c.

It quickly became evident that bulls had the advantage in the wheat market, especially after attention began to focus on crop conditions for winter wheat. Dry weather reports from western Kansas were emphasized by assertions that west of a line drawn north and south through Kinsley the state had received practically no moisture since last July. Advices from Omaha said that owing to drought, the Nebraska crop prospect was the poorest known for years past. Under such circumstances, pit offerings here became meager, and with demand increased the upward tendency of values encountered but little obstacle.

Word that 11 cargoes of wheat on ocean passage had been disposed of to European Continental countries encouraged hope of exports from the Pacific coast that Japan had purchased 50,000 barrels of flour. Some bullish sentiment in addition was associated with predictions of speedy passage of farm credit bills, and with notice that animal feeds were bringing higher prices than human food grains, bran at Minneapolis being quoted at 1 1-2c a pound, with rye a little less.

Corn and oats moved up with wheat.

Higher quotations on hogs and foreign inquiry for lard strengthened the provision market.

EAST WOODSTOCK

George Potter, who has been ill with influenza, is improving.

Mrs. G. L. Upham returned Saturday from a month's visit with H. E. Bannister and family in Worcester.

A missionary meeting was held with Mrs. Carl Morse last Wednesday. The study of India was continued, the leaders being Mrs. George Wetherell and Mrs. Ezra May. Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess.

About 40 new books have been added to the public library.

A social was held last Saturday evening at the clubhouse, the attendance being about 60. A deputation from Brown university was present by invitation of the Y. M. C. A. boys. They made short speeches, singing class songs, etc. John Corbett of Putnam also gave a talk and led in the community songs. The orchestra gave some fine music. Mr. Frink is the leader. Cake and coffee were served and games were enjoyed.

Dwight Bartlett, George Hunt and John Kinley of Brown university took part in the morning service at the Congregational church Sunday and held a special service for the young men at 6.30 o'clock Sunday evening. The regular service was held at 7.30 in the church and was a union service. There was a good attendance. The young men conducted the service, each giving a 15-minute talk. Rev. Henry Baker and wife entertained the young men during their stay in town.

EAST HADDAM

Mrs. W. S. Comstock and Miss Nellie Boardman entertained the members of Nathan Hale chapter, D. A. R., last Thursday afternoon. It was the usual Washington's birthday meeting.

Henry Baer, a local merchant, is at a hospital in New York for the removal of his tonsils.

Mrs. S. Wilson Gates died last week Tuesday at the age of 89 after a few weeks' illness, during which she was cared for by her daughter, Mrs. George W. Morgan. She is survived by her daughter, eight grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren. The funeral was held on Thursday at 2 o'clock, Rev. Franklin Countryman officiating.

Richard Clark, who has been ill with pneumonia, is now able to sit up for a short time each day.

Mrs. Reed Bartman is on the sick list, as is also William Bartman.

Arthur Alexander, Fred Ballik and others delivered their crops of tobacco last week.

It is expected that work on the 12-room high school will be commenced about March 1st and be rapidly pushed to completion.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Comstock and little daughter of Virginia have been passing a few days with Mr. Comstock's grandmother, Mrs. Daniel Arnold, before leaving for Chicago.

PHOENIXVILLE

Miss Gladys Joslin is a visitor in Worcester.

A teachers' meeting was held at Eastford Wednesday last. There was no session during the afternoon at the local school.

Saturday visitors in Putnam included Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Warren, Mr. and Mrs. Archa Walker and Edmond Greene and family.

The social for benefit of "Prell" in Eastford was well patronized.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Clemens recently entertained guests from Thompson.

Mrs. Henry LaForte and Mrs. Roy Clemens attended the Pomona meeting held in Odd Fellows' hall Saturday. Charles M. Gardiner of Massachusetts was the installing officer.

Mrs. Helen C. Joslin was the guest of Mrs. Delle Warren of Putnam Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bennette are occupying their recently purchased home on River road, moving from Ashford last week. Mr. and Mrs. Curtis have charge of Mr. Bennette's other farm which he owns in Ashford. All are glad to see occupants in the old Bullard house again, as it is a fine location. Mr. Bennette is making extensive improvements.

Mr. Mouncey, who has been ill suffering a relapse, and under the care of Dr. Pike of Woodstock, is convalescing.

Roy Clemens was a recent Thompson visitor.

Mrs. Horton, mother of Mrs. Mouncey, sustained serious bruises when walking on River road near the residence of C. P. Latham. A sled carrying a number of children hit her and knocked her down. Fortunately, no bones were broken.

SOUTH KILLINGLY

Isadore Tilendes had an auction at his home on the Morrison farm Monday to dispose of the farm and farming equipment.

Highland grange held its regular meeting Saturday evening. After routine business had been disposed of, there was an open meeting to which the public was invited. During this meeting there was a poultry discussion.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Barlow entertained on Sunday Herman Barlow of Danielson, Byron Place and family of Foster and Mrs. P. H. Coffey and children of this place.

A card recently received from A. A. Tillinghast, who is spending the winter in La Jolla, Cal., states that there are plenty of oranges on the trees and flowers in abundance, although on the mountains one can see snow.

Gertrude Hall returned to her school duties in Winchester, Mass., Sunday after a week at The Oaks.

Burton Brown is suffering from a severe attack of grip.

Mrs. Edmund Goodness, who has been ill with a severe cold, is reported better.

Organized Fair Play

JUST as thousands of slender threads are woven into a single fabric of enduring strength and beauty, so are the employees of this organization united for a single purpose —to produce woolen and worsted fabrics of enduring value for the world's millions.

The American Woolen Company is a recognized leader in the woolen industry of the world because it has, through efficient organization, been useful to the people and to the industry it represents.

And that efficiency was rendered possible through co-operation and fair play. Fairness to employees and to the people who buy and use its goods is the driving force behind the "seven league looms" of the American Woolen Company.

TAFTVILLE

Post Office Hill, which has been one of the worst spots for automobiles all winter, was as smooth as a floor on glass Tuesday morning and until the sun came through the clouds automobiles were sliding all over the hill. A heavily loaded oil truck was one of the first trucks to come to trouble at this point. It was trying to make the hill from the north side of the road into the south side, when the wheels started the snow and ice down to the bare spot before the truck could progress. After half an hour later a second oil truck was down the hill, and could scarcely keep upright. As soon as the sun came out the thaw began and the roads were covered with water. Gangs of men chopped channels through the snow and ice and made it a little more comfortable for those who had to travel. Many of the autos were clogged again in spots of operations taken a week ago, which had remained in the Converse Company cleared them almost entirely of ice.

The Checker Girls gave a second performance of their musical comedy at the Taftville Casino Tuesday evening and many attended. The show was a duplication of Monday night's performance and the income is to be contributed to paying the village's electric lighting assessment on local people.

The standing committee of the Taftville Congregational church met Tuesday evening, Chairman George L. Meyer presided and routine business was transacted.

Nothing further has been heard of the escape of Joseph Brodeur from the county jail on Sixth street several days ago. The Ponemah Mills across the Shetucket river and into the Lisbon woods. A few people reported seeing a stranger loafing in Lisbon Monday afternoon, as they were unable to identify him until they saw the Bulletin Tuesday morning. The boy had been in the county jail for two months at the time of his escape. He was awaiting trial on a charge of breaking and entering. Three months ago he was sentenced to from one to three years.

Howard Olney of Norwich avenue is recovering from an attack of pneumonia.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold E. Anderson of Greeneville were guests early in the week of Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Worthington of Providence avenue.

Fire Company, No. 2, was called out Sunday afternoon because of a small blaze in the Taftville market caused by an overheated stove. Speedily extinguished and the fire suppressed so that the damage was but slight. The only loss was to the stove.

A special collection was taken up at the Taftville Congregational church Sunday morning, and over $15 was realized for the Red Cross fund.

Dr. Lucien Bonet of Providence street is slowly recovering from a serious attack of influenza.

Kenneth Bergen has resumed his position with the weaving department of the Ponemah Company.

Workmen's Compensation.

The following workmen's compensation settlements have been approved by Commissioner J. J. Donahue:

Thomas Kelliher Express Company, 50% of wages, employer, and John H. Jordan, New London, employee, broken leg, at rate of $15.42.

Brand Paper Board Co., Versailles, employer, and William Daley, 122 Central street, Norwich, employee, fracture of left ankle, 10 2-3 weeks compensation at $10.54 for 15 per cent. loss of use of left foot.

H. E. Crampton Tube Co., New London, employer, and Mrs. C. Marcin, employe, finger crushed, at rate of $9.30.

Assisted At Battery Supper.

Assisting in serving at the supper given Monday evening for Battery B at the armory were Mrs. Adam Bergquist and Mrs. Edward Reavy.

SALVATION ARMY COUNTS $1,421 IN CASH AND PLEDGES IN DRIVE

First financial reports since the Salvation Army captains started Monday in their work for the $15,000 fund were totalled up Tuesday at the headquarters at 10 Cliff street, reaching the total of $1,421 in cash and pledges.

The twenty teams were all at work during the day, covering all parts of the city. This (Wednesday) evening all the team captains and lieutenants are to be on hand at the meeting to be held at the Elks' home at 7.30.

DEFENDANT'S DAUGHTERS ON STAND IN $5,000 SUIT

Two daughters of the defendants were the first witnesses for the defense called to the stand in the superior court at New Loondon late Tuesday afternoon in the suit of James L. and Anna M. Chapman, husband and wife, of this city against Frank and Sophie Jakobik, husband and wife, also of Norwich. Damages of $5,000 are sought. Mrs. Chapman suing for personal injuries and Mr. Chapman suing for loss of his wife's services because of these injuries which it is claimed were caused by assault and battery committed upon her by the Jakobiks upon driving off cows on Aug. 16, 1921 from the premises of William A. Burgess of Bozrah.

The case is being tried before Judge C. A. Akery and a jury.

Sophy Jakobik 15, testified to what she saw of the alleged assault from a distance and Carrie Jakobik testified to the way her mother looked afterwards.

When court came in at 10 in the morning, Wm. A. Burgess, father of Mrs. Chapman, was called to the stand by the plaintiff's attorney.

Mr. Burgess corroborated the testimony of his daughter last Thursday in most respects. He testified that on the day of the assault he was milking his cows in the barn of his home when his daughter told him that the Jakobiks' cows were in his pasture. He said that he had just finished milking a cow and he went down into the lot with his daughter and drove the cattle off. Mr. Burgess declared that the cows instead of going toward their own home went in the opposite direction and that he tried to head them off. He testified that a few minutes later Jakobiks attacked his daughter with a club and broke her wrist.

Under cross examination Mr. Burgess denied that he and his daughter drove the cattle into his yard and kept them there three days. He admitted that when he first saw his daughter after she had helped him drive the cattle out of the pasture she was on the ground with the Jakobiks standing over her. He admitted that he did not actually see the Jakobiks strike her but he assumed that they must have when he saw that she was injured.

Mrs. Jane Burgess, wife of the preceding witness, went on the stand next and testified along the same lines, adding that at the time of the fracas she ran into the house and got the shot gun. She said that she did not use it, but she has wished since then that she had.

Dr. Clarence G. Thompson, a witness for the defense, was called out of turn so that he could return to his duties and he told of a wound which Mrs. Jakobik had on her forehead and which he closed with several stitches.

Jeremiah P. Allen, grand juror of Bozrah, was then called and testified to having picked up a stick near the scene of the fight after it was over.

Other witnesses who concluded the testimony for the plaintiff were Dr. C. C. Gildersleeve, James L. Chapman, Louis Burdick and men named Farnam, Hall and Lathrop. The last four testified to seeing Mrs. Chapman doing a dirty business with her automobile.

Attorney A. F. Libby is counsel for the plaintiff and Roderick M. Douglass for the defendant.

JOKER DISCOVERED IN ON EXEMPT PROPERTY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Hartford, Feb. 27.—A bill that was passed under suspension of the rules last Tuesday and transmitted to the senate where it was immediately passed under suspension of rules on Thursday, was on motion of Senator James MacDonald reconsidered and was tabled.

The far reaching effects of the bill evidently was not studied when it came up in the two houses for action. The bill allowed all exempt property in several towns and municipalities to be included in the grand list and would thus allow them to increase their bonded indebtedness from beyond what the present statute allows. As passed it would allow the city of New Haven to add $53,000,000 to their present limitation, Yale college alone being exempt to the extent of $28,000,000. The amount that would be added to all of the towns in the state is almost incalculable. The bill was tabled for further consideration and may be recommitted to the finance committee.

ASK YOUR NEIGHBOR

There is hardly a neighborhood in the United States where women cannot be found who have derived benefit from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For nearly fifty years this botanic medicine has been overcoming some of the worst forms of female ills. As one woman has been benefited by its use she has told others, who have used it with the same good results so the use of this great medicine has spread from shore to shore by the recommendation of those who have found it good. Therefore, ask your neighbor; let her tell you from experience the benefit which may be derived from its use.

PATRIOTIC ADDRESS AT RICHMOND RADIATOR PLANT

At the weekly noon meeting Tuesday at the Richmond Radiator plant under Y. M. C. A. auspices, Rev. C. H. Ricketts delighted his large audience of employees with an address on Washington and Abraham Lincoln. Following is the address he delivered:

Probably no two great men in any country were outwardly more unlike than Washington and Lincoln, or more alike in the things that make for great service and noble character. By nature and the accident of birth, Washington was an aristocrat, but that had nothing to do with his high destiny. With Lincoln it was wholly different. His nature and the circumstances of his birth place him among the plebians of the world. The name of Washington was great and honorable in old England and it became even more so in the New World. The family was wealthy over there and became even more so over here in the possession of broad and fertile acres.

The name of Lincoln is not associated with wealth in either England or America. Neither is it associated with any vast estate. There is no Mount Vernon connected with the name of Lincoln that has become a national shrine. "The lap of luxury" was something that the Great Emancipator knew nothing about.

How little it matters whether it is in palace or hut that a child is born! If the Creator put his stamp of greatness on the little soul he will rise to immortality in spite of either. The palace cannot lift him up nor the hut keep him down if the Almighty has picked him out for some signal service to humanity! Nobody today thinks of Washington as the possessor of 8,000 acres of land, or of Lincoln because he had very few. We forget the externals of both of these men in the incomparable richness of their spirits.

Naturally the early days of these two lads were spent in totally unlike environment. If either had been reared in the other it would have been a tragic misfit. The court in Washington would not have looked well in homespun, nor the lonely Lincoln in the garb of a courtier, it seemed to be logical that the one was born to be affluent, and the other indigent. And it may be that the unlikeness of their personalities required this unlikeness in their surroundings, for, outwardly, they carried this unlikeness throughout their active, stormy lives. This great difference between Washington and Lincoln illustrates this fact: that the highest we ascend in the scale of life the greater are the differences. To the eye two snowflakes, two peas, two oysters, two sheep are just alike. Two savages also look very much alike. But who would ever confuse Washington with Lincoln, or Gladstone with Lloyd George? The greater men are the less do they resemble one another. This refers as much to mental activity as to bodily appearance.

As Washington and Lincoln approach manhood they begin to develop points of personal identity. Their great spirits catch gleams of the vision of coming service. These two young men, though unlike in worldly fortune were both schooled in the hard disciplines of life. Washington's wealth was not the stepping stone to a wild and dissolute career, neither did Lincoln's poverty crush his enthusiasm for the richer life. It took as much ability in the one instance to make riches, as it did in the other to make poverty, the basis of moral elevation. This is another evidence that real greatness will take hold of whatever circumstances are at hand and make them servants in the upward trend of the human spirit.

Washington might easily have had a gay and frivolous life without being dissolute, but he chose the better way. The wild and unsettled state of Virginia of his day somehow appealed to the iron fiber of his soul. He wanted a man's job that would require activity, endurance and courage. This he found in full measure under Lord Fairfax as the surveyor of the latter's vast estates. Understanding as he did all the traits of the Indian temperament he was employed to deal with them when the interests of the white settlers became imperilled. He was just and wise as a negotiator, and when peaceful measures failed, he was equally skilled and brave as a fighter. It was this double quality of peacemaker and soldier that brought him into public notice. The old militia system made him acquainted with that warlike science which later was to astonish the world. It was not strange that a young man so still, graceful and commanding in personal appearance, with such knowledge of firearms, of the country and Indians, with all their peculiarities, should have been selected to accompany Gen. Braddock in that fateful expedition of 1755. If Braddock had only listened to this young colonel that awful tragedy would have been avoided. It was not strange that his standing socially and politically, as a wealthy young landed proprietor, as a diplomatist and soldier should have advanced him to the house of burgesses of Virginia.

During the same early years in Lincoln's life there was likewise rapid advancement but along different lines. That splendid attempt at mental improvement, that heroic struggle to rise out of limited conditions, that determination to master political questions. Like Washington, by using aright his splendid strength he grew tall and strong mentally and morally. No young man who ever measured strength with him, could either wrestle with him or debate with him. He soon had them on their physical and mental back. Very early in life he became a marked man just the same as Washington did but in a different way. Both were unconsciously drifting towards careers which they could not avoid. God was "leading them by ways that they knew not." When Washington was made a member of the house of burgesses near the beginning of the Revolutionary war he was led just as truly as Abraham was by a mighty hand when he was guided from the land of the Chaldiis into the land of Canaan and where he became the "Father of the Faithful." The roar of the cannon of Lexington by the house of burgesses in Virginia was God's voice speaking to the young Washington, saying: "Get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and from thy father's house, unto a land that I will show thee; and I will make of thee a great nation, and make thy name great." It is this what the roar of Lexington's cannon said to Washington? Listen! When the news of that battle was read in the legislature, with his face aflame with righteous wrath, Washington rose, hesitated a moment to control his emotion, then said calmly: "I will raise 1000 men, subsist them at my own expense, and march them to the relief of Boston." Soon after this, having been made a member of the Continental Congress, he was made commander in chief of the American forces and took command under the historic elm in Cambridge. Was not this great man just as truly called to be the "Father of His Country," as the earlier hero came to become the "Father of the Faithful"?

The case of Lincoln was strikingly similar to that of Washington, after he, too, had seen the vision of a great national necessity. These great souls did not move along the same pathway to glory and honor. Lincoln was not a soldier nor Washington a debater. He would have made as much of a failure in conducting a military campaign as Washington would in a political debate. But God spoke to and led the one even as he had the other. He led Abraham to found a nation, but to redeem a nation from the curse of slavery that had been founded. Abraham was the founder and Moses the emancipator of the people of Israel. The work performed by Washington and Lincoln was strikingly similar to that of Abraham and Moses. And the hand of God is seen just as clearly in the creation and preservation of the American republic as in the ancient Hebrew. But how different were the abilities required in Washington's work than Lincoln's! All this goes to show that when God has some great, specific work to do, he knows just where to find the man best fitted to do it.

"I should be utterly false to my theme if I failed to show how these two men, so utterly unlike in many minor characteristics, were one in depending upon God's guidance. Take Washington at Valley Forge. It is one of the most pathetic, if not the sublimest, in the military history of the world. The darkest hour of the long struggle for freedom had come. The British were feasting and revelling in Philadelphia during that eventful winter. In the spring they would be ready for the final, crushing blow. Washington's army was small and suffering from cold and hunger. The Continental congress had miserably failed in sending relief. But Washington in that icy, snowy valley spent much of his time in praying to the God of Abraham, and deliverance came in a way hardly short of miracle.

By the side of this, put if you please, the darkest hour in the civil war with Lincoln in the White House. McClelland had failed, Lee was having his own way in Virginia, and his troops were almost in sight of the capitol. Northern patriotism in spots was growing weak-kneed. Growls against the administration were being heard like the distant rumble of thunder. Lincoln, worn out and sad, had recourse to prayer again and again. Did God hear it? Well, while that great sad man prayed, there was a small, silent man doing things in the southwest. No one sooner saw him than the man in the White House. The man is called to

BRAKEMAN AT MIDWAY DIES FROM INJURIES

Joseph Le Fevre, 32, of Nashua, N. H., a brakeman in the employ of the New Haven road, was crushed while coupling cars at Midway about 6.30 o'clock Tuesday morning and died at the union station in New London, to which he was taken soon after the accident. A doctor was waiting there to attend to him and take him to the hospital.

At the offices of the railroad company, it was stated that LeFevre had disobeyed the instructions given to all employes of the railroad, by stepping between the cars in arranging the coupling and that his act in so doing had made possible the injury which resulted in his death. It was said that a preliminary hearing had been held Tuesday morning to get at the facts in making out the compensation claim.

ADVOCATES LIQUOR BILL BEFORE JUDICIARY COM.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Hartford, Feb. 27.—Senate Bill 252, introduced by Senator McGrath concerning defining intoxicating liquors was advocated by him today before the judiciary committee. The senator was closely questioned by Chairman Buckley as to why he desired the passage of a bill that conflicted with existing national law. Senator McGrath said that the legislation ought not to have been passed and Chairman Buckley said it was too late now to talk about that. The bill as presented defines all spirituous and intoxicating liquors of which a part is intoxicating, all wines and ciders, all distilled spirits and Jamaica ginger above 10 per cent in volume and all ales, porters and beers manufactured from hops and barley containing more than 4 per cent in volume shall be considered intoxicating.

Several other bills relating to the subject had to be continued so that a number who had come from a distance might be heard on the state purchasing agency.

YANKEE DIVISION GAINS BRILLIANT BATTLE RECORD

(Special to the Bulletin)

Washington, Feb. 26.—Revised and corrected battle credits for the units of the 26th Division have been prepared by the battle preparation board of the war department. They show that each unit has now been given more credits than allowed it by the original board of the A. E. F., as shown by the latter's tabulated report soon after the war ended.

As a whole the Yankee Division averaged 208 battle days of front line combat under fire, which is a record not exceeded by any other division of the A. E. F. except the 1st division, which is a regular army outfit. The Yankee Division was made up of National Guard units from the New England states.

According to the original credits given by the board only to these units carrying colors or standards engaged in actual combat. The present board was appointed about a year ago to revise the work of the first board. The present board has given battle credits to every unit when it participated in a major combat operation as a part of the corps under fire. The board, for example, didnot require that an infantry regiment should be actually in trench combat to receive battle credits, but accorded the credits if the unit was part of a corp engaged in combat and under fire, whether the unit was in the trenches or behind them for available service.

It is now possible for every member of the Yankee Division to learn the battle record of each unit in that famous division whose record is now even more brilliant than shown by the credits of the first board. The present record will become a part of the official and permanent war department history of the A. E. F. in France.

INTERDENOMINATIONAL MEET ON SOCIAL SERVICE

The religious bodies taking part in the social service conference of the Connecticut Federation of Churches to be held in Middletown on Monday and Tuesday, February 26-27, are the Connecticut Baptist convention, the Congregational conference of Connecticut, the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of Connecticut, the Methodist churches of the state that are members of the New York East and New England Southern Conferences, the Connecticut churches of the Connecticut Valley Presbytery and the Universalist state convention. In the relationship of social service the federation holds a wider connection than in any other of its functions. This is due to the fact that the Episcopal diocese of Connecticut is officially represented in the social service work of the federation. The breadth and purpose of the conference is set forth in a communication which has been sent to all of the clergyman of the state signed by Dr. Rockwell Harmon Potter, president of the federation, Dr. Wm. P. Ladd, chairman of the social service committee, and Morris E. Ailing, secretary:

"The Kingdom of God waits upon the growth of a spirit of greater unity among Christians. Are we doing all we can to accelerate the growth of such a spirit in Connecticut? Will this conference, where we shall meet together, face some of our common problems together, and rekindle the fires of Christian fellowship, be a step toward the realization of that unity for which our Lord and Master prayed? We believe so, and we hope you are planning to make your contribution by coming to the whole conference and giving your hearty cooperation."

The local committee in charge of arrangements for the conferences have received requests for reservations from clergymen representing all sections of the state. The churches of Middletown as the hosts of the conference will furnish entertainment and will in every way assist to make the arrangements for the conference worthy of the occasion.

BRANDEGEE DISSAPROVES OF INTERNATIONAL COURT

Senator Brandegee (Conn.), "reconciliate," expressed Monday in Washington absolutely no admiration for the Hughes plan for an international court. He said:

"I do not believe the Foreign Relations committee will endorse the President's proposal and I am quite sure the senate would not give him the authority he seeks. The suggestion that we recognize the authority of the League of Nations in any way certainly does not meet by approval."

L. J. JORDAN ACCEPTS POSITION IN ROANOKE

L. J. Jordan, who has been operating engineer with the Eastern Connecticut Power Co., for over three years, has presented his resignation and will leave about the middle of March for Roanoke, Va., where he has accepted a position with a firm manufacturing artificial silks.

For Restoration of Louvain Library

A campaign to complete the $1,000,000 fund to build a library for the university of Louvain, Belgium, which will replace the library burned by the Germans in 1914, is now under way, in Connecticut this campaign is in charge of a committee of the Connecticut Library association. This committee is endeavoring through librarians and trustees of the public libraries and through college and university libraries to raise the Connecticut proportion of the quota of $87,000 expected from New England.

The committee is as follows: Belle Holcomb Johnson, Helen Coffin, Helena B. Alford, Charles J. Barr and Arthur F. Adams.

A new telephone dictograph system has been installed in the motor vehicle department at the Capitol. Through the device, it is possible for the officials of the department to communicate with each other without giving a name or number. It is merely necessary to press a particular button.

DEPOSITS made on or before Monday, MARCH FIFTH, will be entitled to INTEREST or DIVIDENDS from MARCH FIRST.
